FLEE! TRUMAN WARNS JAPS

REDS ADVANCE 14 TO 33 MILES IN MANCHURIA

LONDON, Aug. 9 (AP)—Three Russian invasion columns advanced into Manchuria in a great pincers and surged as deep as 14 miles into the stolen province from the east today, seizing Japanese outpost bastions and bursting thru a concrete defense zone, the soviets announced tonight.

The western prong, meeting little resistance, captured Jin-Jin Sume, an airport town 33 miles inside Manchuria from the border of Outer Mongolia.

The crack Siberian army, given the battle cry to "settle an old score," smashed ahead on a wide front from the maritime provinces on the east to Outer Mongolia on the west, said Moscow's first bulletin of this 24 hour old war.

Used Wassel Artillery

Front dispatches suggested that the soviet troops had already seized numerous lines of communication leading into enemy territory and were employing tanks, cavalry, and infantry as they launched their assault.

Following the pattern of all their offensives, the Russians stunned the Japs with massed artillery backed up by strong mortar, tank and infantry operations.

No hint was given of who was commanding the Red armies in their turn against the Japanese, but it appeared that a very large force had been unleashed for the offensive.

750 Miles Apart

The east-west prongs of the multiple pincers clamping upon Japan's Kwantung army were about 750 miles apart. The Russian assault had already been assisted by blows by United States planes and Chinese parachute troops aimed at choking off Japanese troop movements from China to the new battle area. Red bomber fleets ranged ahead, pounding enemy rail centers.

Striking from the maritime province on the east, Red army troops cracked thru the enemy's reenforced concrete defense zone and advanced nine to 14 miles, the bulletin said.

Tokyo asserted the Russians were attacking from the east at points along a 300 mile front.

[A BBC broadcast monitored by NBC in New York said the Tokyo radio had announced the Japanese were counter-attacking. The enemy statement did not say exactly where in Manchuria the counter-attack was under way.]

Cross Two Rivers

Farther north, the soviets battled over the Amur and Ussuri rivers from the Khabarovsk area and captured the Japanese stronghold of Fuyuan, in the northeastern tip of Manchuria, besides several other populated places, Moscow said.

In a third blow from the west the soviet troops beat down "fierce enemy resistance" and captured the towns and railway stations of Lupin [Manchouli] and Chalainoerh, 15 miles farther southeast on the Chinese Eastern railway.

The heaviest fighting apparently raged in this area in the northern tip of a western bulge of Manchuria, where the soviets stormed and captured the Lupin-Hulun lake fortified area.

Some 120 miles farther south, other Russian forces springing from Outer Mongolia punched into the Lake Bor area and captured Jin-Jin Sume and Hoshoin Sume "without meeting any particular enemy resistance."

Tokyo earlier said the soviets

40 Reported Injured as 2 Sections Crash

Michigan, N. D., Aug. 9 (AP)—From 25 to 40 persons were killed in the observation car of the first section of the Great Northern railway's Empire Builder when the second section crashed into it here tonight. The train had been en route from Chicago to Seattle, Wash.

The second section of the train crashed into the rear of the first section, which was stopped here by a hot box on its locomotive. The two sections ordinarily run about 2b minutes apart.

West of Grand Forks,

The scene of the mishap, at this little town of 450 residents, is about 50 miles west of Grand Forks, N. D. The collision took place at about 7:20 p. m.

The train left Chicago last night as one unit, the water level route along the Mississippi river to St. Paul permitting one engine to pull the 22 cars. It arrived at St. Paul at 8:30 a. m. today and left 20 minutes later after being divided into two trains for the heavy pull across the mountains. Both of the trains were of all steel equipment.

18 Cars Movable

One of two relief trains, bearing doctors and nurses, was sent from Devils Lake, N. D., 34 miles west of here, and the other was sent from Grand Forks.

C. W. Moore, advertising manager for the Great Northern in St. Paul, said eight of the first section's cars were movable after the accident and that 10 of the second section's could be moved. The 18 cars were to be consolidated into a single train which was to resume its trip west at 10:30 p. m.

Russell Dushinske, editor of the Devils Lake, N. D., Journal, who was at the scene, said that many bodies, mostly service men, were visible in the car, which was half telescoped and raised onto the top of the locomotive of the second train.

Dushinske said Great Northern railroad officials estimated the bodies could not be removed for another 12 hours, as the mass of twisted steel must be cut apart with acetylene torches.

Over 40 Hurt

More than 40 persons were injured, Dushinske estimated, the most serious being a sailor who suffered a broken neck.

Dushinske said 10 men labored for more than an hour to remove an injured woman from the observation car, only to have her die while being placed in an ambulance.

He paid tribute to Arnold Ingram, St. Paul, a dining car steward, and Corp. Carl Hade, Tiffin, O., for the early organization of rescue work.

Both the fireman and engineer lived, Dushinske said, H. E. Nelson, Grand Forks, the engineer, altho suffering from shock, was taken from his cab, which was below the rear end of the observation car.

Fireman Leaps to Safety

The fireman, a man named Harris, also from Grand Forks, was shaken up when he saw the crash coming and jumped clear just before the impact.

"Rail men said every one in the observation car was killed," Dushinske said. "A woman collapsed when she was so informed. Her husband was in the car."

MAY USE ATOM BOMB IN CHINA, SAYS GENERAL

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 9 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer told a press conference today that use of atomic bombs "is very much under consideration in the China theater wherever military necessity dictates."

Wedemeyer, commander of United States forces in the China theater, specifically mentioned Japanese occupied Shanghai as a possible military target.

It was presumed here that leaflet warnings would be distributed prior to any bombings in occupied Chinese territory in an effort to avert loss of civilian life.

Blind Scouts Hike and Cook Like Regulars

BY GAIL COMPTON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Muskegon, Mich., Aug. 9—Five blind Boy Scouts from Chicago cooked their breakfast this morning over an open log fire in the woods. They prepared oatmeal and fried bacon and eggs. Two blisters and a spilled can of hot water destined to make cocoa were the only casualties.

The Scouts are members of Troop 300, which consists of eight blind Scouts, all from Chicago. The troop is spending two weeks at Camp Dan Beard, at the Owasippe Scout camps, 14 miles north of here. In charge of the troop, the only one like it in the nation, is Howard Heldt, a lawyer with offices at 134 S. La Salle st.

Swim, Bow, Go on Hikes

The boys are having a wonderful time. They go swimming every day. Several are learning to row a boat. They wash their own clothes, go on 14 mile overnight hikes, and take part in all the normal activities of the other Scouts. They ask no sympathy and prefer to be on their own.

That they can get along all right and compete with other Scouts is proved by the fact that in the troop there is one Tenderfoot, five second class Scouts, one star Scout and one life Scout. The life Scout, with 12 merit badges, is well on his way to becoming an Eagle Scout, the highest class in Scoutdom.

Play Baseball, Too

The boys, ranging in age from 12 to 23, have developed their own brand of baseball, which they play by the hour. The batter crouches on the ground with a heavy stick in his hand. He pounds the stick on the ground. The pitcher, 30 feet away, rolls a soft ball toward the sound.

When the batter hears the ball opposite him he swings his bat. Two outfielders, grouped close to the pitcher, listen for the sound of the ball rolling toward them. When it sounds close they lunge for it. Their dexterity is remarkable.

On hikes they are led by sighted scouts who drag a branch along the ground. The blind boys follow the sound of the branch.

Troop members are Robert Brinker, 23, of 2019 W. 68th pl.; Robert Loudon, 15, of 2522 Shakespeare av.; Wilbur Gilles, 15, of 3313 Walnut st.; Larry Wos, 15, of 421 S. Central Park av.; William Matenko, 14, of 3313 Flournoy st.; Frank Donahue, 14, of 7436 W. 56th st., Summit; Robert Turek, 14, of 4217 W. Cullerton st., and Larry Johnson, 12, of 5653 Montrose av.

REVEAL NAZIS MINED EAST U. S. HARBORS IN 1942

Charleston, S. C., Aug. 9 (AP)—Southeastern coastal residents learned today for the first time that German-laid mines were found at harbors in Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, and South Carolina in 1942.

The disclosure came from Rear Adm. Jules James, U. S. N., 6th naval district commandant, who stated that mines were found at Charleston, Jacksonville, Savannah, and Wilmington between August and September of 1942. United States minesweepers swept the channel approaches daily. Mines floated to the ocean's surface when their cables were severed by the minesweeper's cutters. Under usual procedure, crewmen exploded the mines with machine gun or cannon fire.

Plan Airplane Broadcasting of Television

New York, Aug. 9 (AP)—A system of broadcasting television and FM programs the length and breadth of the United States by means of airplanes cruising six miles above the earth was announced today by Westinghouse Electric corporation.

This system, known as stratovision, would make coast to coast television and FM broadcasting possible "at a reasonable cost" even to the most isolated farm home "years ahead of any previously suggested system," Walter Evans, Westinghouse vice president, told a luncheon of writers and editors.

Range Now Is Horizon

Originated by C. E. Nobles, 27, of Paris, Tex., stratovision was said to conquer "the astronomical expenditures which have hampered all earlier concepts of nation-wide television service." Evans, who said application had been made with the federal communications commission for test flights this fall, explained:

"Television and FM radio waves travel in a straight line and for all practical purposes stop at the horizon. This means that television broadcasts from the highest practical tower cannot be received much more than 50 miles away.

Could Blanket Earth

"The stratovision system simply puts the antenna and transmitter in an airplane flying in lazy circles 30,000 feet above the earth, out of sight of human eyes. The short waves sent out from this airborne antenna would blanket the earth's surface like a great inverted ice cream cone, covering an area 422 miles across or equal to about the combined area of New York, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey."

Present plans, designed for economy of operation, provide that each plane would broadcast four television and five FM programs at the same time.

14 Cities Considered

Coast to coast coverage by the stratovision system could be provided by planes over New York, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Kansas City, Curtis, Neb., Leadville, Colo., Salt Lake City, and Los Angeles, it was said.

Additional coverage, to bring the potential audience to 78 per cent of the nation's population, would be provided by planes over Durham, N. C., Atlanta, Memphis, Dallas, Sacramento, and Portland, Ore.

Evans added that "reception of stratovision broadcasts would be practically free from interference and distortion, caused normally by reflected ground waves and the numerous amplifications or relaying stages required by any previously proposed system."

FINAL SURRENDER WARNING ISSUED; ATOM BOMB SMOKE HIDES NAGASAKI

TRUMAN ADDRESS

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9—President Truman tonight solemnly warned the Japs that unless they surrender speedily they will suffer decimation and the destruction of their country by America's terrible secret new weapon, the atomic bomb.

The President beamed this final word to the enemy in concluding his report to the American people by radio on the results of the Big Three conference at Potsdam.

Bases to Be Retained

For the most part the address was an undertaking to explain and justify the agreements of Potsdam. Almost at the outset the President took occasion to correct an impression given by his Berlin speech in which he said America does not want "one piece of territory" from this war. The question raised at the time was whether he was waiving claim to the Japanese islands needed for American military bases.

He said tonight the United States would maintain bases essential to "complete protection of our interests and world peace" and those not now in our possession we will acquire in accord with the provisions of the united nations charter. Under the charter the United States may annex the islands our arms have conquered or commit any or all of them at our discretion to an allied nations trusteeship.

A Pre-Bomb Decision

Mr. Truman asserted that Russian Dictator Stalin agreed at Potsdam, before he had learned of the atomic bomb, to enter the war against Japan. Just when the news of America's secret weapon was broken to Stalin the President did not say, but he did not deny that the Russian declaration of war, which tho impending came yesterday to the surprise of Mr. Truman, was precipitated by the annihilation of Hiroshima by the first atomic bomb dropped Sunday on the enemy.

The only secret agreements at Potsdam, said the President, were military arrangements, and Russia's

JAPS THREATEN TO USE WEAPON LIKE ATOM BOMB

LONDON, Aug. 10 [Friday]—(AP)—The Japanese controled Singapore radio, boasting of Japan's atomic "researches," sought to imply today that the Japanese have a weapon like the atomic bomb and said Japan would "use it to the utmost against United States military personnel." The broadcast was monitored by the BBC.

The broadcast was not clear as to the exact nature of the purported weaponfi but said, "Japan is fully aware of the true aspects of atomic energy" and "the Anglo-United States nations . . . must have drawn on the result of Japanese researches."

"America has asked for it; now she will get it," said the English language broadcast, beamed to Europe.

Not Against Civilians

"It can be stated immediately and in definite terms that Japan does not intend to employ it after the pattern of American capital in the deliberate massacre of innocent civilians," the radio said.

"An Anglo-American invasion fleet of warships and transports could be kamikazed by our suicide planes loaded with fixed atomic detonators.

"If that were done hundreds upon hundreds of naval craft and thousands upon thousands of United States military personnel would be sent to the bottom of the sea."

Retaliation "in Kind"

Threatening retaliation "in kind" for the atomic bombing of the Japanese homeland, the broadcast asserted:

"Suppose Japan decides to retaliate in kind and also employs weapons like the atomic bomb. That may happen and Japan will use such a weapon now. But it would be more appropriate to say that Japan has been compelled to do so."

"An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth," the broadcast said. "The entire Japanese nation fully realizes the significance of this phrase.

"Japan will surely put into execution what she inevitably must and when thousands upon thousands, even millions, of Anglo-American military personnel meet their tragic end, their blood will be on the heads of President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee.

"Since the Anglo-Americans have resorted to it, Japan is fully justified in retaliating. The Anglo-Americans called the tune, now they will find they must dance to it."

[The Tokyo radio, in another broadcast beamed to Europe, compared the bomb with poison gas, which it said the warring countries had refrained from using because of an "ethical standard" whose basic principle is that "no arms or weapons, when they are capable of mass slaughter of humanity, are to be allowed to be used as actual weapons against man."]

Photos Show Fires Outside Heart of Target Area

GUAM, Aug. 10 [Friday]—(AP)—Smoke and dust completely covered Nagasaki and rose to 20,000 feet three and one-half hours after yesterday's atomic bombing of that Japanese seaport.

Gen. Spaatz, chief of the United States strategic air forces, announced after viewing reconnaissance photographs from the second use of the bomb against the enemy that scattered fires were visible outside the smoke obscured area.

Earlier, Spaatz's headquarters had been notified by radio from the high flying mission that results were good. There was no further word on the fate that struck the western Kyushu city of 253,000 population in the noon bombing.

Compared to Hiroshima

The meager description of the atomic bombing of Nagasaki corresponded to first reports about Hiroshima, where a great cloud of white smoke funneled upward to 40,000 feet for four hours after the world's first atomic bomb was dropped on that city of 343,000.

After four hours, Hiroshima still was obscured by smoke and there was no possibility of assessing damage then. Later photographs showed that 60 per cent of Hiroshima's 6.9 square miles was destroyed.

The Tokyo radio, which admitted tha' the first atomic bombing of Hiroshima on Monday had destroyed "practically every living thing," let hour after hour pass without comment about Nagasaki.

There was a general expectation later photographs would show that the industrial section of Nagasaki was reduced to the same desolate waste as the center of Hiroshima.

Mission Details Secret

Spaatz's bulletin did not disclose whether the bombing of Nagasaki was by one or more Super Forts, or by some other type of plane. Since the first bomb was carried in a Super Fort manned by a specially trained crew it was believed one or more Super Forts also flew the Nagasaki mission. It was possible also more than one bomb was dropped on Nagasaki.

Nagasaki is an industrial center and important port on the supply route thru Korea to Manchuria under invasion by Russia. It spreads over 12 square miles.

LONDON PRESS GETS COPIES OF TRUMAN'S SPEECH BEFORE U. S.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9 (AP)—Advance copies of President Truman's "report to the nation" tonight were made available to the press in London more than an hour and a half before they were given to reporters in Washington.

The office of war information, which sent the text abroad while newsmen were waiting at the White House for their copies, said in a statement that it was a case of inadvertence.

At 4:46 p. m. Chicago time the Associated Press in Washington learned that the OWI in London had the text. Lacking any from the White House, the Associated Press obtained a copy from the London OWI and transmitted it back to this country.

Almost half the 4,000 word text had been cabled from abroad and distributed over the country before the text had been received from the White House, a few blocks away.

The OWI said it "normally either does not export advance texts received by it or sends them abroad only with a ban on giving them to the press before they are made available to the press here. Inadvertently, neither precaution was used in this instance."

HELP WANTED ADVERTISING

Because of the unprecedented demand for Help Wanted advertising space, regular classified Help Wanted advertising will be published only on the first four days of the week, Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, during the months of August and September.

Help Wanted advertising of critical war plants recommended by the United States Government will be published each day except Saturday.

This enables the Tribune to utilize to the best advantage of readers and advertisers the total weekly supply of paper allocated to such advertising under the Tribune's paper conservation program.

'PORTENTOUS': COMPTON

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 9 (AP)—Heat measured in billions of degrees, 10 times that of the sun's surface—

Light like a dozen suns, so brilliant it blinds a man six miles away—

A blast stronger than the strongest earthquake—these are some of the qualities of the atomic bomb, described today by Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Dr. Donald Leet, professor of geophysics at Harvard university, who helped perfect the new weapon.

Dr. Compton described the bomb as the "most portentous scientific achievement in history."

"Beggars Description"

The bomb in action, said Dr. Leet, who saw it tested in New Mexico last month, "beggars description." Dr. Leet, a student of earthquakes, was present at the New Mexico test with others recording the earth shock.

"I was standing in a doorway 50 miles away," he said. "As the H-hour, 5:30 a. m., approached, the sun was just coming up. We had a radio hook-up so we would know when to start our recording instruments but I thought the radio might go out, so I was watching for the light of the blast.

"A thunderstorm was hovering over the horizon and I thought I

FLEET, PLANES BLAST 2D DAY AT JAP 'FRONT DOOR'

Warships Repulse Attack by Enemy Flyers

GUAM, Aug. 10 [Friday] (AP)—The 3d fleet, so close to Japan that it has heavily damaged the steel city of Kamaishi with its guns, sent 1,500 carrier planes back over north Honshu today at dawn for the second straight day. Then around noon Super Fortresses in their fifth straight day over Nippon spilled 2,000 pound demolition bombs on the big Tokyo arsenal.

Nimitz gave no details of today's carrier strikes renewed against Honshu but an Associated Press warship dispatch said air bases under attack included ones the Japanese might try to use to send planes against the Russians.

The raid by 70 B-29s on the Tokyo arsenal followed by a few hours another by 90 Super Fortresses on an oil refinery company at Amagasaki near Osaka. Explosions in the refinery illuminated the whole countryside.

Like Steam Bath

"It was hotter than a Turkish bath up there," said Lt. Andrew Kaye, 5335 Leland av., Chicago. "Our plane was hit with flak, which slowed us up some."

"Hollywood never did it like the picture we saw over the target," said Master Sgt. Leroy E. Eckberg of Wyton, Ill. "You'd have to see it yourself to believe it. The whole area looked like some impossible painting."

The shelling yesterday of Kamaishi by Adm. Halsey's 3d fleet and light forces of the British Pacific fleet was described officially by Nimitz as a "heavy naval bombardment."

Sink Four Jap Vessels

While the big ships were boldly steaming up and down opposite Kamaishi and pouring their tons of shells into its steel mills, American destroyers pounced upon and sank a small enemy freighter-transport and three other small vessels offshore.

Kamaishi, 275 miles north of Tokyo, was badly damaged July 14 in the first naval bombardment of the Japanese homeland, which, like yesterday's, was directed at the Imperial Iron and Steel works.

Yesterday's shelling began at 12:49 p. m., Japanese time, and continued for an hour and 45 minutes.

Aerial observers reported direct hits were scored on coke ovens, transfer tables, rolling mills, and storage plants.

The Japanese, who themselves had first reported the shelling, replied only with light anti-aircraft fire, which Nimitz said caused no casualties to the American or British forces.

K. O. Grounded Planes

Associated Press correspondents with the fleet reported that the carrier attacks yesterday knocked out scores of planes which the enemy had been unable to hide quickly enough, and set fire to many ground installations.

Most of the planes destroyed were parked on the ground, but the Japanese did manage a small-scale raid on the fleet. It was smothered promptly, two planes being shot down before they got within sight to the ships and two others being downed by anti-aircraft fire.

This was the first enemy air effort against the fleet since the mighty surface force won control of Japan's home seas a month ago.

Nimitz also announced one other offensive effort by the enemy, the torpedoing of an American victory ship at Ie Island near Okinawa on July 27. The aerial torpedo blew a hole in the ship's side but caused no casualties.

The Super Fortress aerial offensive to the south thundered into its fourth straight day. A moderate task force heaped 500 tons of demolition bombs on the Amagaski oil refinery and storage tank farm in a bid to wipe out that battered fuel center near Osaka.

Board Hospital Ship

The Japanese Kiki Maru, a hospital ship, en route from Marcus Island to Yokosuka, in Tokyo bay, was intercepted and boarded by the United States destroyer Cassin about 250 miles northwest of Marcus on Wednesday, Nimitz reported. The boarding party found no violation of international conventions. After making proper inspection the Cassin directed her to her destination.

Smash 60 Jap Ships

MANILA, Aug. 10 [Friday]—(AP)—Far east air force and 7th fleet planes in wide sweeps Tuesday and Wednesday destroyed or damaged more than 60 enemy ships and small craft and 47 planes, Gen. MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The blitz against the southern Japanese island of Kyushu roared on and planes rained ruin on factories, railroad installations and air strips.

The hunt for Japanese planes was the best for some time, with nine fighters and a bomber shot down and 37 other planes destroyed or damaged on the ground.

had struck forward at "several points" from the east along a 300 mile line from Hutou to Hunchun, the latter 90 miles west of Vladivostock. Hutou is 150 miles north of Vladivostok.

The Russian assaults threatened to cut off the northern half of Manchuria.

Bomb Rail Junctions

Winging ahead of the ground forces, Russian bombers rained blows on the rail junctions of Harbin, Hsinking, and Kirin, and on the harbor areas of the Korean ports of Sheitsin and Rashin, the soviet bulletin said.

Lupin, taken in the soviet push from the west into Manchuria, is the first station in that province on the railroad linking the trans-Siberian line with the Russian port of Vladivostok. The railroad was originally Russian owned, but after the Japanese establishment of the puppet state in Manchuria, the Russians sold their interests to the puppet government for 140,000,000 yen in 1935 and thereafter were forced to make a 700 mile detour around the Manchurian northern frontier.

A Russian attack could be swung around this railroad toward Harbin, a distance of 500 miles. From the east, the soviet attack could roll along the Sungari river to Harbin, 440 miles from Khabarovsk.

Troops Exhorted

From Harbin it is 410 miles to the Gulf of Chihli, an arm of the Yellow sea on which is located Port Arthur, the rich plum lost by Russia in the nation's first war with Japan 40 years ago.

A special soviet broadcast to the far eastern forces exhorted them to bend every effort to smash the Japanese "so that mankind can breathe freely after getting rid of aggression." It called the Japanese the "worst enemies of our people and all the peace loving peoples of the world."

Tokyo said the Manchurian puppet government yesterday summoned that puppet nation to defense against "the soviet army's unlawful invasion."

London reports estimated that the Japanese had some 2,000,000 men in North China and Manchuria. There was no accurate estimate of soviet strength in the area. At last reports, Gen. Maxim Purkaev was in command of the soviet far eastern army, succeeding Gen. G. M. Stern, now a member of the high command.

Moscow Cheers Army

MOSCOW, Aug. 9 (AP)—Columns of singing Red army men, fresh from victory over Germany, tramped thru the streets of Moscow today and were cheered by crowds pouring from buildings a few minutes after the news of the new war had been announced.

From all over the soviet union came news of factory meetings, at which speakers declared their determination to liquidate the last "den of aggression" in the world and restore peace to freedom loving peoples.

The government newspaper Izvestia emphasized that the soviet government was "keeping the faith of its pledges to its allies" in order to achieve a "speedy ending of the war."

Sato Still in City

Japanese Ambassador Naotake Sato remained at the Japanese embassy in Moscow's residential section last night, with his staff.

Gen. A. A. Antonov, chief of staff of the Red army, met with the heads of the United States and British military missions today in a projection of allied European military coördination into the east Asia sphere.

Maj. Gen. J. Russell Deane of the United States army and British Lt. Gen. James Gammell spent considerable time with Antonov.

Reds Raid Korea: Tokyo

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 10 [Friday]—(AP)—Radio Tokyo said today that Russia attacked Korea with 240 planes yesterday and that another 50 planes of unknown nationality simultaneously raided a convoy off Korea.

The broadcast said 14 of the 50 convoy attackers were shot down. It added that this mission "seemed to be inexperienced as far as attacking our leading vessels, for they were easy targets for our defensive gunners." No details were given concerning the attack on Korea.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9 (AP)—President Truman interrupted a busy day today to drive to Union station and meet his wife, returning from their home at Independence, Mo. The President was out of the White House little more than 15 minutes.

Vincennes, Ind., Aug. 9 (AP)—A veteran just home from the Pacific walked into police headquarters today and said a Japanese plane was passing over the city. And he was right. EXPERT HOLDS RUSSIA BREAKS TREATY IN WAR

Palo Alto, Cal., Aug. 9 (AP)—Dr. Harold H. Fisher, director of the Hoover library on war, revolution, and peace, and an authority on Russia, said today that "strictly speaking, Russia is breaking her neutrality treaty with Japan by declaring war on her."

"In its broad aspects," Fisher said in an interview, "Russia's entrance into war is a further piece of evidence that the principle of neutrality is impossible in a world of atomic bombs, robot planes, and Super Forts."

Fisher said that article 2 of the soviet-Japanese neutrality pact provides that if one of the contracting parties should become the object of hostilities on the part of third powers, the other contracting party will observe neutrality.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL

A cyclone of rhythm will strike Soldiers' field Saturday night, Aug. 18, at the 16th annual Chicago Music Festival. For one of the attractions will be "Two-Ton Baker, the Music Maker." This behemoth of pianists, who weighs 340 pounds and stands 6 feet 2 inches, has agreed to let his hair down at Soldiers' field. And when Richard Evans Baker gets going on a number like "One Meat Ball," he may shake his head so hard that his long, black hair will form an umbrella over the midget piano he will be playing.

Richard Baker

A Self-Made Pianist

"Two-Ton," known to thousands of radio listners because of his appearances each morning and afternoon on W-G-N, is a Chicago product. He was born at 700 Van Buren st. and attended Dore grade school. Even then he thought the combination of "Do" and "Re" in the school's name held a significance for him. Baker never took a piano lesson. His family moved to Berwyn and he was graduated from Morton High school in 1933.

He played for dances and, soon after his graduation, joined the Charley Mack reviews and traveled thruout the east and south. Baker knows 1,000 songs from memory, and composed his own theme song, "We Belong Together."

Married and Has Son, 6

Baker is married and the father of a son, 6, whom he has nicknamed Jughead. The boy's real name is Richard Evans Baker Jr.

"Two-Ton" hasn't decided what he will play at the music festival, but his repertoire includes the "Machine Gun Song," "Her Tears Flowed Like Wine," and a medley including "I Want a Girl" and "When You Wore a Tulip."

Baker has entertained at thousands of service camps, war hospitals, and bond rallies.

probably would not be able to distinguish between the flash of the lightning and that of the bomb. But when it went off the whole sky was lit up. It was like a dozen suns. And after this flash a big, red ball rolled up into the sky, out of sight.

One Man Blinded

"All the men present had been given a double thickness welder's helmet and were instructed not to look directly at the blast even thru it. One man who looked at the explosion of the bomb without a helmet was blinded—and he was six miles away."

Dr. Leet said the desert sand around the giant crater was fused into quartz by the terrific heat althe the bomb was released on a tower. He explained that the damage from concussion is far greater than would result from earth shock if the bomb were exploded on the surface or below the ground.

Worse than Earthquake

"I would rather go thru the worst earthquake than be within a mile of the explosion of the bomb," he said.

What would happen if one of the bombs were dropped into Fujiyama, Japan's volcano, he was asked.

"Nothing," he said. "I have been plagued ever since 1940 with the problem of reviving volcanoes. It is like trying to fire an empty gun; pull the trigger as many times as you want and what happens? Nothing."

Dr. Compton arrived in the Philippines three days ago to direct the Pacific laboratories of the office of scientific research and development. Dr. Leet is one of the specialists who will be assigned to the Pacific laboratories from time to time.

CONGRESSMEN VISITING BERLIN HAIL RED ACTION

Some Believe Russians Complicate Peace

BY HENRY WALES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Aug. 9—Members of the house of representatives' joint committee of 11 visiting here today exactly reflected army opinion concerning Russia's declaration of war on Japan.

The older, more conservative politicos took an identical viewpoint with officers—the entry of the soviets into the war was unnecessary from a military standpoint, and Moscow's participation in the peace conference settling the Nippon empire vastly complicates the solution.

The younger congressmen shared the attitude of the GI's—if the Russian army shortens the war with Japan one day and saves one American life it is worthwhile.

Wants to Go Home

The committee members are Representatives Ramey [R., O.], Feighan [D., O.], Huber [D., O.], Merrow [R., N. H.], Fulton [R., Pa.], Weiss [D., Pa.], Dondero [R., Mich.], Carnahan [D., Mo.], Chelf [D., Ky.], and Horan [R., Wash.].

"I would not care if they let the Krauts declare war on Japan and raise an army to fight the Japs," said a 2d armored division staff sergeant, "if it would release me from being sent to the Pacific."

"If the Russkies can help lick the Japs quicker and get me home sooner, give them what they want," said a private of the 82d air borne division. "The main thing is to get the war over and let us out of the army."

Most Germans Apathetic

Certain higher ranking staff officers took a different view. A ranking Britisher said, "The Big Three declaration to Japan plus Russia's ultimatum creates a suspicion that the war in the Pacific is nearing an end, and the Kremlin is determined to become a belligerent in order to take part in the peace negotiations and strengthen her demands for territory on the Asiatic mainland and for strategic islands as bases for the Red navy."

Most Germans are apathetic concerning the news which does not affect them, but a former ministry functionary whom I induced to speak said, "We shall see if Emperor Hirohito holds the Japanese people's lives in higher esteem than Hitler held German lives and capitulates when he sees the whole world lined up against him and the destruction of Japan inevitable unless he surrenders."

Australia Hopeful

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 9 (AP)—Prime Minister J. B. Chifly said in a statement today that Australia's policy since Pearl Harbor had been aimed toward bringing the soviet into the Pacific conflict.

U. S. LEAFLETS TELL JAPANESE OF SOVIET BLOW

Airmen Drop Millions Over Home Isles

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 9—(AP)—Millions of propaganda leaflets were showered from the skies over Japan by warplanes today in a psychological warfare drive to quicken a desire for peace among the Japanese people.

They scattered the printed word that Russia had joined the war against the Japanese war lords.

Other millions of pamphlets, telling of the atomic bomb as well as of Russia's declaration of war, were carried to Japan by Super Fortresses from the Marianas Islands.

The twin leaflet offensives are under direction of the psychological warfare branch of the American forces. Brig. Gen. Bonner F. Feller is in charge of the work in Manila, Brig. Gen. Thomas F. Farrell on Guam.

First Mission in Reds' Support

Planes of the far east air forces flew their first mission in support of their new Russian ally when they showered Japan with the news of the soviet union's declaration of war. Printed in advance in expectation of the Russian action, the leaflets warned the Japanese people they would be "compelled to meet much of the combined armed might of the entire world."

"Surrounded by a ring of steel," the statement read, "the Japanese people must take action to avoid utter destruction of their country. Will you continue to allow the militarists to drag your ancestral country to utter ruin?"

The leaflets pictured an American GI warmly clasping the hand of a soviet soldier across the map of Japan.

Gen. Feller said the advance preparation of the leaflets was a gamble that Russia would come into the war.

"However, as long as four months ago, the probability that she would come in seemed so strong," he said, "that we felt it would be a criminal neglect if we did not plan an exploitation of the psychological advantages of this probable event."

Prepared in Secret

Secrecy covered the preparation of the message to the Japanese people, Feller said. Only one copy of the English translation of the text ever existed at a time. Fewer than 10 persons knew of the existence of the leaflets in the Manila printing headquarters where hundreds of army men and civilians are employed.

On Guam, the psychological warfare branch operating under Adm. Nimitz said it was informing the Japanese of the atomic bomb and of Russia's action.

Its leaflets pointed to Hiroshima, 60 per cent devastated by the first atomic bomb ever used, and said:

Suggest Plea to Emperor

"Before using this bomb to destroy every resource by which the military is prolonging the war, we ask that you now petition the emperor to end the war. Our President has outlined for you 13 consequences of an honorable surrender. We urge that you accept these consequences and begin the work of building a new, better, peace loving Japan."

David Burghley Resigns as Governor of Bermuda

Hammer Retreat

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 9 (AP)—United States planes and Chinese paratroops, striking with reported foreknowledge of Russia's plan to war on Japan, already have seriously interfered with the movement of Japanese forces northward in China toward the Manchurian front, Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer asserted today.

The United States 14th air force has been hammering for a month at Japanese withdrawal routes from south-central China, said the general commanding American forces in China.

Chinese parachute forces achieved surprise in a dawn drop recently between Kweilin and Hengyang, a rail hub, and caused confusion and heavy casualties among the enemy, he said.

The Chinese high command announced its troops had scored a new advance in a sweep along the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad toward the rail city of Chuanhsien, 70 miles northeast of recaptured Kweilin. The extent of the gain, made yesterday, was not disclosed.

SUITS OF ARMOR PROTECT YANKS IN PACIFIC WAR

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 9 [Special]—Suits of armor are being issued to American infantrymen in the Pacific.

The armor weighs 12 pounds and will not stop a rifle bullet. If the armor were heavy enough for that, the soldier would find movement difficult in view of the other equipment he carries into battle.

But it will stop shell fragments. About 65 per cent of all wounds are caused by shell fragments rather than direct fire, army officers say. Its main purpose is to protect the heart, lungs, stomach, and kidneys.

Sent to Pacific

The McCord corporation is making the plates for the armor. The suits are made by the Crawford Manufacturing company, Richmond, Va.

"The first order was for plates for 8,800 armor suits by mid-June," Alvin C. McCord, president of the firm said in a statement. "We delivered them and they were flown to the Pacific area for men in action."

Carried in a Sack

The suits fold into a small compact bundle when not in use and are carried in a sack. They are put on much easier and in the same manner as a catcher's chest protector.

The suits, now being produced at a rate of 85,000 a month, were approved after the effectiveness of flak suits for bomber crews became apparent. These flak suits, which also are produced by McCord, have brought about a reported 60 per cent reduction in casualties in the last year.

BARBEY DOUBTS NECESSITY TO INVADE JAPAN

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 9 (AP)—Vice Adm. Barbey, commander of the navy's 7th amphibious force, said today, "The need for an invasion of Japan may now be regarded as questionable."

Before returning to the Pacific, where he organized 58 major landing operations, Adm. Barbey said it was "inconceivable" that the Japanese leaders would permit the annihilation of their people by continued resistance.

Commenting on the atomic bomb he said in an interview:

"This terrible destruction of life is abhorrent to the western mind, but it may result in a smaller overall loss of life by forcing a speedy end of the war. How long can even the Japanese lose 100,000 people at a time? Their situation is hopeless."

MOUNTBATTEN HAILS USE OF ATOM BOMB AS KILLER OF JAPS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Aug. 9—Adm. Mountbattan, commander in chief of allied forces in southeastern Asia, today welcomed the atomic bomb as a means of killing Japanese with the minimum of losses to the allies. Mountbatten stated his views at a press conference.

The southeast Asia commander also welcomed the entry of soviet Russia in the war, saying we cannot have too many allies. He pointed out the Red forces could engage the main body of Japanese on the mainland of China, which so far neither he nor Gen. MacArthur could hit.

Prime Minister Attlee said the Russian action was "proof of the solidarity that exists between the principal allies" and predicted that it would "shorten the struggle."

ASKS NATIONS TO CO-OPERATE TO CONTROL 'ATOM'

New York, Aug. 9 (AP)—Dr. Lise Meitner, whose research aided in the development of the atomic bomb, tonight urged coöperation among nations for its future control.

Dr. Meitner spoke over a radio network from her home in Leksand, Sweden, where she fled after being driven from Germany because of her Jewish origin.

She said she hoped the bomb would not only help to "finish this awful war" but also would prove useful in "peaceful work."

OWI BROADCASTS APPEAL DIRECT TO JAP PEOPLE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9 (AP)—The Japanese people are having it dinned into them by American broadcasts that they must accept the Potsdam ultimatum their leaders rejected "if you wish to stop the rain of atomic bombs."

An increasing number of broadcasts, OWI disclosed tonight, are being addressed specifically to the people of Japan. They are being told that it is up to them to decide the fate of their country.

The following message has been broadcast repeatedly to the people: "If Japan does not end the war now you may expect devastation from the air the like of which has never been seen on earth. If you wish to stop the rain of atomic bombs, these terms must be accepted. If you accept these terms you know the government of the United States does not intend to exterminate or enslave you. It is up to you, the people of Japan, to decide the fate of Japan!"

HERE ARE MEN WHO DEVELOPED ATOMIC BOMBS

Civil and Military Had a Hand in Miracle

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9 [Special]—The war department today made public additional information concerning the military and civilian scientists who had important roles in production of the atomic bomb which has become the world's most potent weapon. The men are:

Brig. Gen. Thomas F. Farrell—A former chief engineer of the China-Burma-India theater, Gen. Farrell was first assistant to Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, who had charge of the whole project. The general, who took part in five major engagements in the World war, is described by the army as fast moving and fast talking, capable of handling a score of problems at once.

He refers to himself as Gen. Groves' handy man. The army took no chances with its two top-flight atomic generals. It ruled they were never to travel by plane together. Gen. Farrell lives in Albany, N. Y. He flew from Washington to the Pacific to supervise delivery and care of the new weapon.

Urey—Nobel Winner

Harold Clayton Urey, chemist—A Nobel prize winner in 1934, Urey discovered the hydrogen atom of atomic weight two. Urey, who lives in Leonia, N. J., is the executive officer of Columbia university's chemistry department.

Vannevar B. Bush—As director of the office of scientific research and development since 1941, he has headed much of the nation's research for war.

James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard—A constant adviser to Gen. Groves, he is credited with giving much advice on procedure in developing the bomb. Said Groves: "Dr. Conant has the gambling spirit of the New England pioneers—a calculated gambling spirit."

Conceived by Californian

Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, University of California physics professor—A leading authority on the atom's structure, the army said he was one of the first to conceive the possibilities of the atomic bomb.

Dr. Richard C. Tolman, physicist—Normally dean of the graduate school of the California Institute of Technology, he was special scientific adviser to Gen. Groves.

Col. Stafford L. Warren—As chief of the medical services for the project, he is credited with having much to do with the "remarkable plant safety record."

A West Pointer

Col. Kenneth David Nichols—A West Point graduate, as district engineer he had charge of approximately 125,000 persons. He is 37 and lives in Washington.

Col. Franklin T. Matthias, commanding officer of the 631 square mile Hanford engineer works in Washington state, also is 37. A one time star athlete at Abbotsford [Wis.] High school, he had civilian experience with the Tennessee valley authority before entering the army in 1940. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Matthias, live in Curtiss, Wis.

Arthur H. Compton, dean of the division of physical sciences at the University of Chicago—Coming from a family of distinguished scientists, Compton is one of the nation's outstanding physicists.

Ernest O. Lawrence of the University of California—Like Compton, this scientist has made an outstanding record in physics.

Col. Clarence D. Barker—As chief of the labor division in the office of the chief of engineers, he had charge of obtaining the immense crew of laborers needed on the atomic bomb project.

Churchmen Deplore Atom Bomb

Vatican's View

VATICAN CITY, Aug. 9 (AP)—Under the heading, "The Target," the Vatican City newspaper L'Osservatore Romano said editorially today: "Voices on the phone ask us, 'What are your impressions on the atomic bomb?' The answer comes from our editorial dated June 22, 1944, when the first flying bombs over London were announced. We said then:

"'One is in the field of an application of the air arm which aggravates its defects, which can be called constitutional, wherefore its use is unfortunately indiscriminate, to the damage of civilian populations. The never exact target of any piloted machine extends, with the new application, to much vaster proportions.'

"Exactly as a year ago, thus today. The substance of things does not change because of the different point of launching."

Bombing Criticized

LONDON, Aug. 9 (AP)—The Catholic Herald today criticized atomic bombing of Japanese cities. The religious newspaper, in a front page editorial, said use of the bomb "is not only utterly and absolutely indefensible in itself but the reaching of this appalling goal lights up for us all the immorality along the path we have all been treading."

Points a Moral

LONDON, Aug. 9 [Reuters]—The archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, today expressed his fear that the real danger of the atomic bomb lay not in endless destruction but in the increased leisure it offered mankind. Great comfort, he said, is a temptation.

Writing in tonight's London Star, he said:

"Here is a source of such terrific power that it could be used to destroy civilized life altogether. My own fear is not of endless destruction, but of something quite different. In time this discovery will immensely increase the ease of human lives, relieving men of much labor, setting them free to enjoy greater leisure and comfort.

"Why do I fear that? Because great comfort is a temptation to men. To use increased power, increased leisure by the service of this new power, and to use them fruitfully, will call for an increase in man's own spiritual resources. Man must always aspire, or he is lost. Men must become better men. That is the moral of it all."

[Other London dispatches said protests over use of the atomic bomb were made by the bombing restriction committee and by the London Women's parliament.]

Atomic Bomb Points End of War, or History: Smuts

PRETORIA, South Africa, Aug. 9 (AP)—Field Marshal Smuts declared today that the atomic bomb and the accomplishments of the united nations conference in San Francisco signify the end of war as an arbiter of fate. The field marshal said, "I think that people are becoming convinced that war can no longer be carried on as a method of influencing history. If it continues there'll be no history."

RUMORS V-J DAY IS NEAR AT HAND FLOOD CAPITAL

Japs Promise News

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 9 (AP)—A Tokyo broadcast tonight requested listeners to be sure to tune in at 1:30 p. m., Aug. 13, [11:30 p. m., Aug. 12, Chicago time] "to receive direct from the citizens of Japan a sensational message the people of the war-torn world have been waiting and longing to hear."

Japan's senior politicians of the Seiiikai party are giving emergency consideration, Tokyo reported today, "to the sudden development in the war situation following the soviet union's declaration of war."

BY WALTER TROHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9—The national capital was on the qui vive tonight for an early surrender of Japan.

Altho there was no official indication that a surrender overture was in hand or expected momentarily, as rumored thruout the day, a number of news developments were widely interpreted as intimating that peace is not far away.

In some quarters surrender was confidently expected in 24 or 48 hours. In other quarters it was believed that the peace bid would not come for possibly several weeks.

Think Hirohito May Act

In all quarters it was agreed that the Japs are seeking a way out and that a peace offer will probably be made by Emperor Hirohito.

It was believed that the peace bid might be preceded by dissolution of the present Jap cabinet and the formation of a peace cabinet, altho it was considered likely Hirohito would take the initiative in the surrender in order to pose as the savior of his people in an effort to retain the Jap throne and his position as the son of heaven.

Absence of official confirmation of various rumors that the Japanese had made a surrender offer was regarded as unimportant in the capital.

Jap Peace Offer Denied

It was recalled that the state department told the American people four times in late June and July that no peace offer had been received from the Japs, altho it was later disclosed that Japan had asked Russia to act as a mediator in ending the war in mid-June.

Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov disclosed that the Japanese ambassador in Moscow had presented that peace overture to the Russian government and also that Hirohito has sent a personal message on the subject to Dictator Stalin. Both these requests were relayed to the state department.

Reports that the Japanese had made a surrender offer veered about the capital and were given wide credence by the following developments during the day:

1. Key war and navy department units were alerted for 24 hour duty.

2. Telegrams calling for cancellation of war contracts were prepared for delivery on formal conclusion of peace.

3. President Truman conferred with State Secretary Byrnes, War Secretary Stimson, and men intimately associated with the development of the atomic bomb.

Plan for Reconversion

4. President Truman called for lifting war production controls "as soon as they are no longer needed" in urging the war production board to emphasize a five point program already under way looking toward orderly transition of production to civilian needs. [Story on page 23.]

5. Members of congress in recess until Oct. 8, expected a summons to return to work as soon as the Jap war ends.

Postponement by Secretary Stimson of his weekly press conference for the White House policy meeting helped spur the peace rumors.

HEAR REDS PLAN BELT OF PUPPET STATES IN EAST

BY E. R. NODERER
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Aug. 9—Russia's forces will be concentrated mainly against Japanese troops in Manchuria rather than included in any amphibious assault on the Japs' home islands, military circles here believe.

It is understood that the Kremlin plans to establish a belt of Russian dominated states on Russia's eastern frontiers much as has been set up in the west as a result of Red conquests during the European war. These states would have interlocking relations closely tied in the soviet union.

Wants 1905 Losses Back

Russia's intention to enter the far eastern war was disclosed both at Yalta and Potsdam, it was reported here, at which times Premier Stalin defined the price of his participation.

Russia is understood to want the return of all taken from her by Japan after her defeat in 1905, including Port Arthur, Dairen and the lost section of the Chinese Eastern railway. Stalin is said to have demanded the establishment of a Manchurian "people's republic" governed by north Chinese Communists, with close military and political relations with Moscow.

To Let Chiang Rule

The fusion of Outer and Inner Mongolia in a Mongolian "people's republic" and a similar setup for Korea also are thought to be part of the soviet program.

With the exception of the above territories, Stalin is understood to have agreed to let China proper be ruled by the Chinese national government of Chiang Kai-shek on the condition that it broaden its base by taking in some members of the Communist government of Yenan.

'GOLDEN GATE SEPT. 8' IS NEW SLOGAN ON GUAM

"At the latest by Dec. 1."

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 9 (AP)—About 20 persons, possibly including some from the United States, were reported hurt today in a rear-end collision of passenger trains at Aragon, 85 miles northwest of here. A hospital train was sent from here and other aid was dispatched from Queretaro.

RESCUE PLANE UNIT SAVES 724 DOWNED AT SEA

'Snafu Snatchers' Have Wearisome Task

BY ROBERT CROMIE

(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

MOROTAI ISLAND, Dutch East Indies, Aug. 4 [Delayed]—Seven hundred and twenty-four persons, mostly American or Australian airmen, owe their rescue and, in many cases, their lives to flyers or boat crews of the 2d emergency rescue squadron.

Catalina planes of the squadron have effected the rescue of 556 while crash boats have brought in 168. In addition to the rescues the squadron also has evacuated several hundred persons and performed other missions such as delivering urgently needed blood to Balikpapan, Borneo, during the heavy fighting there.

Capt. Delos H. Burks of Picayune, Miss., a member of that part of the squadron based here, was navigator of the "Cat" which, with fellow PBYs, rescued eight members of a Liberator bomber crew day before yesterday. The Catalina picked up the men from rafts despite a heavy sea which pounded the open nose door, flooding the plane knee deep and almost preventing a take-off.

Drop Rescue Boats

Occasionally when heavy seas prevent the landing of rafts discovered by men of the squadron flying B-17s [Flying Fortresses], the B-17s drop a 27 foot rescue boat which settles gently down with the help of three parachutes. Even if the lost flyers drift so far they are not located again by the Cats or crash boats, they still have a far better chance for life in the Fortress delivered boats, which have a 600 mile range, are equipped with two engines, sails, enough food and water to last 10 men 30 days, as well as 10 air mattresses and signal equipment.

One of the most important missions the Catalinas are serving is that of serving as "shepherds" for bombing planes.

Stay for Rescues

The PBYs, leaving long before the bombers, reach the target at approximately the same time and circle just outside the range of the Jap ack-ack, ready to swoop down on the water and pick up flyers who bail out or "ditch" crippled aircraft. When the raid is ended the Cats lumber along behind the homing bombers and fighters ready to rescue any cripples that can't make it.

The "snafu snatchers," as they call themselves—snafu being the name for crippled planes or those in trouble—believe they pick up 100 per cent of those downed flyers whose whereabouts are accurately known—perhaps 15 per cent of those for whom only the vaguest directions are known.

EUROPEAN CROP OUTLOOK GRAVE, UNRRA IS TOLD

LONDON, Aug. 9 (AP)—The united nations relief and rehabilitation administration was told today that critical shortages of many basic foodstuffs would continue thru the first half of next year and that Europe's 1945-'46 crop outlook "can only be viewed with grave misgivings."

In a report to the third conference of UNRRA, the administration's combined food board asserted the continental harvest in all likelihood will be 10 to 15 per cent short of the 1944 yield.

The board, which controls distribution of food stocks on the basis of availability, said international allocation of scarce commodities would have to continue until the defeat of Japan to prevent "wild inflation of prices."

The report, signed by representatives of the United States, Britain, and Canada, urged liberated countries "to make the fullest use of their own resources."

OKINAWA B-29S WILL CARRY 15 TONS: DOOLITTLE

OKINAWA, Aug. 9 (AP)—Okinawa based Super Fotresses will be able to carry a 15 ton bomb load on every strike they make at Japan, Lt. Gen. Doolittle said today in welcoming the B-29s of his 8th air force to their new home here.

The Marianas based Super Fortresses have been able to carry a top load of 10 tons, but nearness to the target and some technical changes permit the Okinawa B-29s to increase their destructive load 50 per cent.

It's a Record Load

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9 (AP)—The 30,000 pound bomb load that Lt. Gen. Doolittle says will be carried by his Okinawa based B-29s will be the largest ever carried regularly on combat missions. The technical adjustments to which an Okinawa dispatch referred probably mean the installation of external racks and modification of internal racks.

BARE NAZI SPY PLOT TO GET U.S. ATOM BOMB DATA

Orders to Agents Told of Foe's Progress

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9 (AP)—German efforts to spy out the secrets of American atomic bomb development enabled this country to piece together a fairly accurate picture of the Nazis' own atomic efforts, the federal bureau of investigation announced today.

The questions on which the Germans sought answers gave indications of the extent to which experiments by the enemy had progressed. Their questions went to spies who secretly had turned on their masters and worked instead for this country.

The FBI disclosed that after 1939 the Germans made concerted efforts to disrupt the atomic bomb program and to glean information on it.

Aimed to Cripple Power

The eight German saboteurs landed on the east coast by submarine and subsequently caught by the FBI carried instructions to destroy Tennessee valley authority plants in an effort to delay atomic bomb research, an FBI spokesman said.

They intended to wipe out part of the tremendous electrical voltage needed for the atomic program, he said.

The eight saboteurs were captured in June, 1942, and six of them were put to death. One was sentenced to life in prison and the other to a 30 year term.

Other parts of the FBI story:

Five Nazi spies also were sent to this country to ferret out data on American atomic bomb development. They became "double agents," collaborating with the FBI while maintaining contact with Berlin.

Intercepted Spies

The FBI got in touch with several of the Nazi agents in Europe and South America before they reached the United States. FBI men persuaded them to double cross the Nazis and engage in counter-espionage for this government.

Under FBI supervision, the German agents sent doctored data on American atomic bomb development to Berlin.

The Nazi high command specifically probed for information on protective devices used in atomic experiments, on the sources of uranium and whether explosions had occurred in atomic plants or laboratories. Those queries were taken as indicating hitches in the Nazi experiments.

EARLY COLLAPSE OF JAPAN SEEN BY CHUNGKING

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 9 (AP)—Russia's entry into the war should bring about Japan's collapse at an early date, the Chinese government said tonight. It issued a statement praising Russia's help to China in the past and asserting China and Russia had numerous special interests in common.

"If there is to be permanent security in east Asia, the close cooperation of China and the soviet union must be regarded as a first prerequisite," the statement said.

The Chinese government said Russia formally adhered in her declaration of war to the Potsdam ultimatum, "in which there were explicit provisions for the treatment of Japan after the war, and effective implementation of the decisions of the Cairo conference."

AWAIT RED POSITION ON ROLE OF SPAIN IN TANGIER CONTROL

PARIS, Aug. 9 (AP)—Russia's attitude toward Spanish participation in the international control of Tangier, the strategic zone across the straits of Gibraltar at the entrance to the Mediterranean, is the principal puzzle awaiting solution at a twice postponed conference now scheduled to start here tomorrow.

A group of experts representing Britain, the United States, Russia, and France has assembled at the invitation of the French government to decide a method of reestablishing international control of the zone, which was upset when the Spanish took it over in 1940. Spain was not invited.

GETS TWO YEARS UNDER DYER ACT

Henry J. Claremboux, 30, of Washburn, Wis., convicted of transporting a stolen automobile from his home town to Amboy, Lee county, was sentenced to two years in federal prison yesterday by Federal Judge Elwyn R. Shaw for violation of the Dyer act.

FRENCH TAKE OVER BERLIN ZONE SUNDAY

BERLIN, Aug. 9 (AP)—The allied kommandantur announced tonight that the French would occupy their section of Berlin at noon on Sunday.

The allied control body also said it had approved an order confiscating certain types of valuables from German organizations and individuals in greater Berlin. Marshal Zhukov, Russian representative, several days ago ordered Germans in the soviet occupation zone to hand over their valuables such as gold platinum, and jewels, and also to register their money holdings.

U. OF C. ATOMIC WORK TO CREATE TWO INSTITUTES

Nobel Prize Winners to Become Professors

Establishment of two more institutes at the University of Chicago as a direct outgrowth of work done at the university in connection with the development of the atomic bomb was announced yesterday by Chancellor Hutchins.

They will be an institute for the study of nuclear physics and an institute of metals.

Establishment of the institutes, the chancellor added, will bring to Chicago two Nobel prize winners, Dr. Enrico Fermi, self-exiled Italian physicist, who will become professor of physics at the university, and Dr. Harold C. Urey, as professor of chemistry. Both formerly were at Columbia university.

Institutes' Heads Chosen

Dr. Samuel K. Allison, present professor of physics at the university, will head the institute for nuclear study, and the metals institute will be directed by Cyril Smith, former research metallurgist for the American Brass company.

The university also will create at once two new units, which later may become departments or even institutes, Dr. Hutchins said: a unit of industrial health and a unit of applied mathematics. Creation of the new units is necessitated, he said, because of the fields opened by the university's program in nuclear research.

U. of C. Operates Plant

Simultaneously, Dr. Hutchins disclosed that the university, in connection with its nuclear research program, operated the pilot plant for the construction of atomic bombs at Oak Ridge, Tenn., until June 30, at the request of army engineers.

The two new institutes, he emphasized, will not seek primarily to develop military or industrial applications in their research; contributions will be accepted from the government for their maintenance, but their core will be maintained with the university's funds.

Research May Remain Secret

In connection with the contribution of government funds, he mentioned that some of the fundamental research carried on in the development of the atomic bomb may have to remain secret "in perpetuity."

Deploring the fact that for the last six years the nation virtually has abandoned basic research and the training of a new generation of scientists, Dr. Hutchins said:

"In a large and important area, the two new institutes at the University of Chicago, because of the demonstrated ability of the men who will staff them, will be a significant means for remedying our short sighted policy."

$10,000 Robbery

Robbers who smashed thru the wall of an adjoining vacant store and hid in a passageway took $10,000 from the safe of the Paulina Currency Exchange, 443 S. Paulina st., yesterday.

Miss Rose Kwasnick, 31, of 1531 S. Kolin av., the cashier, said the men walked thru the passageway door after an armored truck had made a delivery, and one pointed a revolver at her. While they were packing a waste basket with bills, a third man appeared and commanded them to "Hurry up!" Cut telephone wires delayed an alarm.

Police said a similar holdup occurred at the exchange three years ago when a hole was smashed a few inches away in the same wall.

VENEREAL RATE RISES SIX FOLD IN U. S. 3D ARMY

Idleness Blamed by Doctors

BY HAL FOUST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MUNICH, Germany, Aug. 9 — Venereal disease in Gen. Patton's United States 3d army has multiplied more than six times since combat ended. Doctors say it is the plague of idleness among hundreds of thousands fretting out delays in redeployment as well as other hundreds of thousands trying to enjoy the leisure of occupational assignments.

The army's veneral specialist reported that infections have reached the all-itme high of 100 per 1,000 persons per year. This means that at the present rate, 1 out of 10 soldiers would be contaminated every year—unless some had more than one infection in a year.

Training Rate 20 to 30

During the European war the 3d army venereal rate was less than 15 per 1,000 per year. During training in the United States in 1943 the rate ranged from 20 to 30 per 1,000. In the United Kingdom in the spring of 1944 the rate ranged from 12 to 15.

The specialist, who requested that his name not be used, said it was the relative number of exposures rather than differences in health and morals of the women, which accounted for the different venereal rates in Germany, France, the United Kingdom, and the United States. The number of exposures, he added, was governed more by the leisure of soldiers than by the morals of women.

"The highest infection," he said, "is among soldiers on leaves, whether they take their holidays in Germany, France, or the United Kingdom."

Hygiene Improved

The doctor said there was no change in the venereal rate which he would attribute to the relaxation of the fraternization ban in Germany. When army regulations outlawed a soldier talking with a fraulein, he met her after dark where they would not be seen.

With fraternization there are more soldiers with German girl friends. However, from the health standpoint alone, the probable increase in sex relationships is compensated by the improvement in hygiene. Soldiers no longer feel the restraint of the nonfraternization era in utilizing sanitary facilities provided by the army.

U. S. DESTROYER TORN BY MINES, TYPHOON, BOMBS; BACK ON JOB

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9 (AP)—The United States destroyer Ross is back in action in the Pacific after surviving two mine explosions, 286 air raids, a kamikaze crash, and a typhoon.

The navy disclosed today that the action packed 30 day ordeal put the Ross into repair yards for 110 days. It was estimated in the report that the shortage of skilled workers at Mare Island, Cal., held up the job 25 days.

The Ross struck a mine last November while screening a mine sweeping unit south of Homohon Island in the Gulf of Leyte. The destroyer struck a second mine 20 minutes afterward and later was attacked by planes for days. After the typhoon struck the Ross returned to Mare Island.

REHIRE TEACHER FIRED IN ROW OVER ROOSEVELT

Miss Nellie I. Mills, veteran school teacher of East Chicago, Ind., who was dismissed from her job last spring for an alleged disparagement of the late President Roosevelt, was reinstated by the suburb's school board last night with retroactive pay.

Stanley Kwiat, a new member of the board, moved to rehire her after telling the two other board members and 30 persons who were present: "I made a pledge of the people of East Chicago that I would take politics out of the school system. I move that we reinstate Miss Mills and keep politics out of our schools."

His motion was seconded by Michael Havran, new president of the school board, who has been a member for some time. His seconding of the motion automatically reinstated Miss Mills, because there are only three votes.

George Grimmer, the third member, who had voted several months ago to dismiss Miss Mills, remained silent.

HEART ATTACK IN HOME FATAL

BACK ON COUNTY POLICE PAY ROLL DESPITE RECORD

County Highway Policeman Jerry Thomas, who was laid off the force in December, 1943, several months after it was disclosed he had a police record, was rehired in March, 1944, and is now serving at the Homewood station, it was learned yesterday.

Sheriff Mulcahy denied that Thomas' layoff had anything to do with his record or with his questioning in September, 1943, about the disappearance of roulette wheels seized by state's attorney's police at the Dome, 7466 Irving Park rd.

"Thomas and 89 other policemen were laid off when our appropriations were cut," Mulcahy said. "He was rehired when there was an opening." Mulcahy said Thomas and Acting Lt. Arthur E. Jelinek, for whom he drives, are one of his "best teams."

Records show that Thomas was arrested in 1932 on a charge of stealing a riot gun belonging to the Flossmoor police department, where he had been a policeman in 1930. The charge was dismissed and he was fined $10 and costs for disorderly conduct. In June, 1935, records of the case in the bureau of identification were destroyed on order of Police Commissioner Allman.

ADMITS ERROR IN ARMY GROUP LISTED AS REDS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9 [Special]—The house military committee acknowledged today it had made a mistake in listing First Lt. Edward W. Finkelstein of New York among 16 army personnel having backgrounds reflecting communism.

In removing his name from its files, the committee explained that the background attributed to Lt. Finkelstein "is not his at all but that of another person whose name is similar." The committee said "this is wholly a case of mistaken identity which is very much regretted."

Lt. Finkelstein, who has been awarded the silver star and bronze star medal, was listed by the committee in a report last month as chairman of the Philadelphia District International Workers order, which Committee Counsel H. Ralph Burton identified as a "subservient instrument of the Communist party."

ACTION DELAYED UNTIL MONDAY IN DURKIN RELEASE

Judge Elwyn R. Shaw of federal District court yesterday continued to Monday a plea by Martin Durkin, 44, "sheik bandit" of the 1920s, for release on bail while awaiting a hearing Aug. 20 on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus to save him from an 11 year sentence to the Atlanta, Ga., federal prison for interstate automobile theft.

Durkin was released Wednesday from Stateville penitentiary after serving 19 years of a 35 year sentence for the murder of a federal agent in 1925 in Chicago. He was rearrested by United States deputy marshals on the federal auto theft conviction, and is being held in the marshal's lockup in the Bridewell.

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe, to whom the habeas corpus petition has been assigned, will return to the bench from vacation Monday.

U. S. WILL KEEP BASES IT NEEDS, SAYS TRUMAN

More Secret Weapons in Store, Japs Warned

entry into the war was the first of these to be disclosed. Ther mysteriously and ominously, he added that the Japs will soon learn of other military secrets of Potsdam. They will learn of them by experience at first hand and "they will not like them," Truman opined.

One Chance to Escape

Terrible as is the atomic bomb, "we shall continue to use it," the President sternly proclaimed, "until we completely destroy Japan's power to make war. Only a Japanese surrender will stop us."

At some length he justified the employment of this new engine of destruction. The Japs had been given due warning in the Anglo-American-Chinese ultimatum of July 26 but had ignored it. Now they have become acquainted with the atomic bomb and know what it can do and can visualize what it will do in the future.

The first of the cosmic bombs, the President said, was dropped on Hiroshima, a military base, in order to avoid so far as possible the killing of civilians. But if Japan does not surrender, he went on, it will be necessary to bomb war industries at the risk of killing thousands of civilians. He urged Japanese civilians to leave industrial centers at once to save themselves.

Race Won by America

Mr. Truman said he realized the tragic significance of the bomb, that looses upon man the fundamental energy of the universe. Its development was undertaken only because of the knowledge that it was a race with our enemies to harness the atom to war and that, if they won, a terrible disaster would be visited upon America and all civilization. Only now has it become known how close they came to winning the race.

Having won the race, said the President, we have used the bomb against those who made the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, who have starved and beaten and executed American prisoners of war, and flouted the international law of warfare. We have used it to shorten the war and save American lives.

Council to Draft Treaties

The council of foreign ministers set up at Potsdam, the President said, is not intended to dominate the world, but to lay the groundwork of future peace settlements. It will negotiate peace treaties with Italy, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary, and Finland, which will be submitted to the senate for ratification.

Referred to the council was an American proposal to internationalize the Dardahelles, the Danube, Rhine, Kiel canal, and all European inland waterways bordering two or more states. This proposal was revealed for the first time. Free navigation would be supervised by commissions representing America, Britain, Russia, France, and the riparian nations.

Reparations Plan Changed

The 20 billion dollars of German reparations agreed on at Yalta had been abandoned as impractical, Mr. Truman explained, but the original proposal of 50 per cent for Russia had been adhered to approximately in the allocation of German industrial machinery and foreign assets to the allies. He said it was agreed that payment of reparations in kind should be exacted in such manner as to leave the Germans enough resources for subsistence without "sustained support from the other nations."

The Polish settlement, said the President, was inherited from Yalta. It was a compromise. He sought to justify the territorial dispositions, saying there are 3 million Poles to be transferred from the part annexed by Russia. Room for them can be found in the part of Germany annexed to Poland, from which most of the Germans fled as the Red army advanced.

TEXT OF ADDRESS

The following is the text of President Truman's address:

"I have just returned from Berlin, the city from which the Germans intended to rule the world. It is a ghost city. The buildings are in ruins, its economy and its people are in ruins.

"Our party also visited what is left of Frankfurt and Darmstadt. We flew over the remains of Kassel, Magdeburg, and other devastated cities. German women and children and old men were wandering over the highways returning to bombed out homes or leaving bombed out cities, searching for food and shelter.

"War has indeed come home to Germany and to the German people. It has come home in all the frightfulness with which the German leaders started and waged it.

Nazis Beginning to Atone

"The German people are beginning to atone for the crimes of the gangsters whom they placed in power and whom they wholeheartedly approved and obediently followed.

"We also saw some of the terrible destruction which the war had wrought to the occupied countries of western Europe and to England.

"How glad I am to be home again. And how grateful to Almighty God that this land of ours has been spared.

"We must do all we can to space her from the ravages of any future breach of the peace. That is why, tho the United States wants no territory or profit or selfish advantage out of this war, we are going to maintain the military bases necessary for the complete protection of our interests and of world peace.

"Bases which our military experts deem to be essential for our protection, and which are not now in our possession, we will acquire. We will acquire them by arrangements consistent with the united nations charter.

No "Next War"

"No one can foresee what another war would mean to our own cities and to our own people. What we are doing to Japan now—even with the new atomic bomb—is only a small fraction of what would happen to the world in a third World war.

"That is why the united nations are determined that there shall be no next war.

"That is why the united nations are determined to remain united and strong. We can never permit any aggressor in the future to be clever enough to divide us or strong enough to defeat us.

"That was the guiding spirit in the conference at San Francisco.

"That was the guiding spirit in the conference at Berlin.

"That will be the guiding spirit in the peace settlement to come.

FOUNDATION LAID

"It Was Easy to Get Along with Stalin"

"In the conference of Berlin it was easy for me to get along in mutual understanding and friendship with Generalissimo Stalin, with Prime Minister Churchill, and later with Prime Minister Attlee.

"Strong foundations of good will and coöperation have been laid by President Roosevelt. And it was clear that those foundations rested on much more than the personal friendships of three individuals. There was a fundamental accord and agreement upon the objectives ahead of us.

"Two of the three conferees of Teheran and Yalta were missing by the end of this conference. Each of them was sorely missed. Each had done his work toward winning this war. Each had made a great contribution toward establishing and maintaining a lasting world peace. Each of them seems to have been ordained to lead his country in its hour of greatest need. And so thoroly had they done their jobs that we were able to carry on and to reach many agreements essential to the future peace and security of the world.

No Secret Agreements

"The results of the Berlin conference have been published. There were no secret agreements or commitments—apart from current military arrangements.

"And it was made perfectly plain to my colleagues at the conference that, under our Constitution, the President has no power to make any treaties without ratification by the senate of the United States.

Thanks Byrnes for Aid

"I want to express my thanks for the excellent services which were rendered at this conference by Secretary of State Byrnes, and which were highly commended by the leaders of the other two powers. I am thankful also to the rest of the American delegation—Adm. Leahy, and Ambassadors Harriman, Davies, and Pauley—and to the entire American staff. Without their hard work and sound advice the conference would have been unable to accomplish as much as it did.

"The conference was concerned with many political and economic questions. But there was one strictly military matter uppermost in the minds of the American delegates. It was winning the war against Japan. On our program that was the most important item.

"The military arrangements made at Berlin were of course secret. One of those secrets was revealed yesterday, when the soviet union declared war on Japan.

"The soviet union, before she had been informed of our new weapon, agreed to enter the war in the Pacific. We gladly welcome into this struggle against the last of the axis aggressors our gallant and victorious ally against the Nazis.

"The Japs will soon learn some of the other military secrets agreed upon at Berlin. They will learn them first hand—and they will not like them.

"Before we met at Berlin, the United States government had sent to the soviet and British governments our ideas of what should be taken up at the conference. At the first meeting our delegation submitted these proposals for discussion. Subjects were added by the soviet and British governments. But in the main the conference was occupied with the American proposals.

Council Established

"Our first nonmilitary agreement in Berlin was the establishment of a council of foreign ministers.

"The council is going to be the continuous meeting ground of the five principal governments, on which to reach common understanding regarding the peace settlements. This does not mean that the five governments are going to try to dictate to, or dominate, other nations. It will be their duty to apply, so far as possible, the fundamenal principles of justice underlying the charter adopted at San Francisco.

"Just as the meeting at Dumbarton Oaks drew up the proposals to be placed before the conference at San Francisco, so this council of foreign ministers will lay the ground work for future peace settlements. This preparation by the council will make possible speedier, more orderly, more efficient, and more coöperative peace settlements than could otherwise be obtained.

TREATIES TO BE DRAFTED

Nations Concerned Must Pass Upon Them

"One of the first tasks of the council of ministers is to draft proposed treaties of peace with former enemy countries: Italy, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary, and Finland.

"These treaties, of course, will have to be passed upon by all the nations concerned. In our own country, the senate will have to ratify them. But we shall begin at once the necessary preparatory work. Adequate study now may avoid the planting of the seeds of future wars.

"I am sure that the American people will agree with me that this council of foreign ministers will be effective in hastening the day of peace and reconstruction.

Italy First on List

"We were anxious to settle the future of Italy first among the former enemy countries. Italy was the first to break away from the axis. She helped materially in the final defeat of Germany. She has now joined us in the war against Japan. She is making real progress toward democracy.

"A peace treaty with a democratic Italian government will make it possible for us to receive Italy as a member of the united nations.

"The council of foreign ministers will also have to start the preparatory work for the German peace settlement. But its final acceptance will have to wait until Germany has developed a government with which a peace treaty can be made. In the meantime, the conference of Berlin laid down these specific political and economic principles under which Germany will be governed by the occupying powers.

Principles Told

"Those principles have been published. I hope that all of you will read them.

"They seek to rid Germany of the forces which have made her so long feared and hated, and which have now brought her to complete disaster. They are intended to eliminate nazism, armaments, war industries, the German general staff and all its military tradition. They seek to rebuild democracy by control of German education, by reorganizing local government and the judiciary, by encouraging free speech, free press, freedom of religion and the right of labor to organize.

"German industry is to be decentralized in order to do away with concentration of economic power in cartels and monopolies. Chief emphasis is to be on agriculture and peaceful industries. German economic power to make war is to be eliminated. The Germans are not to have a higher standard of living than their former victims, the people of the defeated and occupied countries of Europe.

"We are going to do what we can to make Germany over into a decent nation, so that it may eventually work its way from the economic chaos it has brought upon itself back into a place in the civilized world.

"The economic action taken against Germany at the Berlin conference included another most important item—reparations.

"We do not intend again to make the mistake of exacting reparations in money and then lending Germany the money with which to pay. Reparations this time are to be paid in physical assets from those resources of Germany which are not required for her peace time subsistence.

Help Devastated Nations

"The first purpose of reparations is to take out of Germany everything with which she can prepare for another war. Its second purpose is to help the devastated countries to bring about their own recovery by means of the equipment and material taken from Germany.

"At the Crimea conference a basis for fixing reparations had been proposed for initial discussion and study by the reparations commission. That basis was a total amount of reparations of 20 billion dollars. Of this sum, one-half was to go to Russia, which had suffered more heavily in the loss of life and property than any other country.

REPARATIONS SPLIT

Russia to Get Half; Rest to Other Allies

"But at Berlin the idea of attempting to fix a dollar value on the property to be removed from Germany was dropped. To fix a dollar value on the share of each nation would be a sort of guarantee of the amount each nation would get—a guarantee which might not be fulfilled.

"Therefore it was decided to divide the property by percentages of the total amount available. We still generally agreed that Russia should get approximately half of the total for herself and Poland, and that the remainder should be divided among all the other nations entitled to reparations.

"Under our agreement at Berlin, the reparation claims of the soviet union and Poland are to be met from the property located in the zone of Germany occupied by the soviet union, and from the German assets in Bulgaria, Finland, Hungary, Romania, and eastern Austria. The reparations claims of all the other countries are to be met from property located in the western zones of occupation in Germany, and from the German assets in all the other countries. The soviet waives all claim to gold captured by the allied troops in Germany.

Friction Diminished

"This formula of taking reparations by zones will lead to less friction among the allies than the tentative basis originally proposed for study at Yalta.

"The difficulty with this formula, however, is that the industrial capital equipment not necessary for the German peace economy is not evenly divided among the zones of occupation. The western zones have a much higher percentage than the eastern zone, which is mostly devoted to agriculture and to the production of raw materials.

"In order to equalize the distribution and give Russia and Poland their fair share of approximately 50 per cent it was decided that they should receive, without any reimbursement, 10 per cent of the capital equipment in the western zones available for reparations.

Russia to Pay for Part

"As you will note from the communique a further 15 per cent of the capital equipment in the western zones not necessary for Germany's peace economy is also to be turned over to Russia and Poland. But this is not free. For this property, Poland and Russia will give to the western zones an equal amount in value in food, coal, and other raw materials.

"This 15 per cent, therefore, is not additional reparations for Russia and Poland. It is a means of maintaining a balanced economy in Germany and providing the usual exchange of goods between the eastern part and the western.

"It was agreed at Berlin that the payment of reparations, from whatever zones taken, should always leave enough resources to enable the German people to subsist without sustained support from the other nations.

THE POLISH QUESTION

Certain Compromises Made at Crimea Parley

"The question of Poland was a most difficult one. Certain compromises about Poland had already been agreed upon at the Crimea conference. They obviously were binding upon us at Berlin.

"By the time of the Berlin conference, the Polish provisional government of national unity had already been formed; and it had been recognized by all of us. The new Polish government had agreed to hold free and unfettered elections as soon as possible, on the basis of universal suffrage and the secret ballot.

"In accordance with the Crimea agreement, we did seek the opinion of the Polish provisional government of national unity with respect to its western and northern boundaries.

Await Peace Settlement

"They agreed, as did we all, that the final determination of the borders could not be accomplished at Berlin, but must await the peace settlement. However, a considerable portion of what was the Russian zone of occupation in Germany was turned over to Poland at the Berlin conference for administrative purposes until the final determination of the peace settlement.

"Nearly every international agreement has in it the element of compromise. The agreement on Poland is no exception. No one nation can expect to get everything that it wants. It is a question of give and take—of being willing to meet your neighbor half way.

Action Held Justified

"In this instance there is much to justify the action taken. An agreement on some line—even provisionally—was necessary to enable the new Poland to organize itself, and to permit the speedier withdrawal of the armed forces which had liberated her from the Germans. In the area east of the Curzon line there are over 3,000,000 Poles who are to be returned to Poland. They need room to settle.

"The new area in the west was formerly populated by Germans. But most of them have already left in the face of the invading soviet army. We were informed that there are only about a million and a half left.

"The territory the Poles are to administer will enable Poland better to support its population. It will provide a short and more easily defensible frontier between Poland and Germany. Settled by Poles, it will provide a more homogenous nation.

RIGHTS ASSURED

A Strong, Free, Properous Poland Is Sought

"The three powers also agreed to help bring about the earliest possible return to Poland of all Poles who wish to return, including soldiers, with the assurance that they would have all the rights of other Polish citizens.

"The action taken at Berlin will help carry out the basic policy of the united nations toward Poland—to create a strong, independent, and prosperous nation with a government to be selected by the people themselves.

"It was agreed to recommend that in the peace settlement a portion of East Prussia should be turned over to Russia. That, too, was agreed upon at Yalta. It will provide the soviet union, which did so much to bring about victory in Europe, with an ice free port at the expense of Germany.

Reëstablish Democracy

"At Yalta it was agreed, you will recall, that the three governments would assume a common responsibility in helping to reëstablish in the liberated and satellite nations of Europe governments broadly representative of democratic elements in the population. That responsibility still stands. We all recognize it as a joint responsibility of the three governments.

"It was reaffirmed in the Berlin declarations on Romania, Bulgaria, and Hungary. These nations are not to be spheres of influence of any one power. They now are governed by allied control commissions composed of representatives of the three governments which met at Yalta and Berlin.

"These control commissions, it is true, have not been functioning completely to our satisfaction, but improved procedures were agreed upon at Berlin. Until these states are reëstablished as members of the international family, they are the joint concern of all of us.

Agree on Press Freedom

"The American delegation was much disturbed over the inability of the representatives of a free press to get information out of the former satellite nations. The three governments agreed at Berlin that the allied press would enjoy full freedom from now on to report to the world upon all developments in Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary, and Finland. The same agreement was reaffirmed also as to Poland.

"One of the persistent causes for wars in Europe in the last two centuries has been the selfish control of the waterways of Europe.

"I mean the Danube, the Black sea straits, the Rhine, the Kiel canal, and all the inland waterways of Europe which border on two or more states.

FREE WATERWAYS

Called Important to Future World Peace

"The United States proposed at Berlin that there be free and unrestricted navigation of these inland waterways. We think this is important to the future peace and security of the world. We proposed that regulations for such navigation be provided by international authorities.

"The function of the agencies would be to develop the use of the waterways and assure equal treatment on them for all nations. Membership in the agencies would include the United States, Great Britain, the Soviet Union, and France, plus those states which border on the waterways.

"Our proposal was considered by the conference and was referred to the council of ministers. There, the United States intends to press for its adoption.

War Must Be Kept Won

"Any man who sees Europe now must realize that victory in a great war is not something that you win once and for all, like victory in a ball game. Victory in a great war is something that must be won and kept won. It can be lost after you have won it—if you are careless or negligent or indifferent.

"Europe today is hungry. I am not talking about Germans. I am talking about the people of the countries which were overrun and devastated by the Germans, and particularly about the people of western Europe. Many of them lack clothes and fuel and tools and shelter and raw materials. They lack the means to restore their cities and factories.

"As the winter comes on, the distress will increase. Unless we do what we can to help, we may lose next winter what we won at such terrible cost last spring. Desperate men are liable to destroy the structure of their society to find in the wreckage some substitute for hope. If we let Europe go cold and hungry, we may lose some of the foundations of order on which the hope for world-wide peace must rest.

"We must help to the limits of our strength. And we will.

JAPAN DISCUSSED

Enemy Given Adequate Warning of What's in Store

"Our meeting at Berlin was the first meeting of the great allies since victory was won in Europe. Naturally our thoughts now turn to the day of victory in Japan.

"The British, Chinese, and United States governments have given the Japanese people adequate warning of what is in store for them. We have laid down the general terms on which they can surrender. Our warning went unheeded, our terms were rejected. Since then, the Japanese have seen what our atomic bomb can do. They can foresee what it would do in the future.

Japs Warned

"The world will note that the first atomic bomb was dropped on Hiroshima, a military base. That was because we wished in this first attack to avoid, insofar as possible, the killing of civilians. But that attack is only a warning of things to come. If Japan does not surrender, bombs will have to be dropped on war industries and, unfortunately, thousands of civilian lives will be lost. I urge Japanese civilians to leave industrial cities immediately, and save themselves from destruction.

"I realize the tragic significance of the atomic bomb.

"Its production and its use were not lightly undertaken by this government. But we knew that our enemies were on the search for it. We know now how close they were to finding it. And we knew the disaster which would come to this nation, to all peaceful nations, to all civilization, if they had found it first.

"We Won the Race"

"That is why we felt compelled to undertake the long and uncertain and costly labor of discovery and production.

"We won the race of discovery against the Germans.

"Having found the bomb we have used it. We have used it against those who attacked us without warning at Pearl Harbor, against those who have starved and beaten and executed American prisoners of war, against those who have abandoned all pretense of obeying international laws of warfare. We have used it in order to shorten the agony of war, in order to save the lives of thousands and thousands of young Americans.

Will Continue to Use It

"We shall continue to use it until we completely destroy Japan's power to make war. Only a Japanese surrender will stop us.

"The atomic bomb is too dangerous to be loose in a lawless world. That is why Great Britain, Canada, and the United States, who have the secret of its production, do not intend to reveal the secret until means have been found to control the bomb so as to protect ourselves and the rest of the world from the danger of total destruction.

"As far back as last May, Secretary of War Stimson, at my suggestion, appointed a committee upon which Secretary of State Byrnes served as my personal representative, to prepare plans for the future control of this bomb. I shall ask the congress to coöperate to the end that its production and use be controled, and that its power be made an overwhelming influence toward world peace.

"AWFUL RESPONSIBILITY"

"Thank God It Has Come to Us Not Our Enemies"

"We must constitute ourselves trustees of this new force—to prevent its misuse, and to turn it into the channels of service to mankind.

"It is an awful responsibility which has come to us.

"We thank God that it has come to us, instead of to our enemies; and we pray that He may guide us to use it in His ways and for His purposes.

"Our victory in Europe was more than a victory of arms.

"It was a victory of one way of life over another. It was a victory of an ideal founded on the rights of the common man, on the dignity of the human being, and on the conception of the state as a servant—not the master—of its people.

Beat Professionals

"A free people showed that it was able to defeat professional soldiers whose only moral arms were obedience and worship of force.

"We tell ourselves that we have emerged from this war the most powerful nation in the world—the most powerful nation, perhaps, in all history. That is true, but not in the sense some of us believe it to be true.

"The war has shown us that we have tremendous resources to make all the materials for war. It has shown us that we have skillful workers and managers and able generals, and a brave people capable of bearing arms.

"All these things we knew before.

Society Most Powerful

"The new thing — the thing we had not known—the thing we have learned now and should never forget, is this: That a society of self-governing men is more powerful, more enduring, more creative than any other kind of society, however, disciplined, however centralized.

"We know now that the basic proposition of the worth and dignity of man is not a sentimental aspiration or a vain hope or a piece of rhetoric. It is the strongest, the most creative force now present in this world.

"Now let us use that force and all our resources and all our skills in the great cause of a just and lasting peace!

"The three great powers are now more closely than ever bound together in determination to achieve that kind of peace. From Teheran, and the Crimea, and San Francisco, and Berlin—we shall continue to march together to lasting peace and a happy world."

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Aug. 10—The Battle of Hormigueros

THE dash and gallantry displayed by American troops in the battle of Hormigueros 47 years ago today had no effect on the outcome of the Spanish-American war. Peace negotiations long had been under way, Spain had been defeated decisively, and only two days after the battle the protocol ending hostilities was signed.

Gen. Nelson A. Miles and 3,300 men had effected a landing on Puerto Rico July 25, 1898, to begin the task of wresting the island from a Spanish force reported to number more than 17,000. Well coördinated army and navy operations soon gave the Americans control of Ponce and other south coast towns.

On Aug. 9 a regiment of infantry and two batteries of artillery were ordered to begin an expedition against Mayaguez, important west coast town. The men marched 12 miles in excessive heat to Sabana Grande, where they were reënforced by a troop of cavalry. The next day, the 10th, they were again on the road. As they approached the little village of Hormigueros, the crackle of rifles announced the presence of Spanish scouts.

The cavalry swept toward them and the Spaniards fled. The whole American force pressed on.

A large body of enemy troops stationed near an important bridge opened up with light fire, then with heavy volleys, as the Americans surged toward them. There was a pause while American artillery was brought up; then the whole command moved forward.

After a brisk fight, the Spaniards broke and fled. The American loss was one killed and 15 wounded, the Spanish 15 killed and about 35 wounded. The next day the Americans entered Mayaguez with bands playing and colors flying.

AFRICA INVASION INTRIGUE BARED AT PETAIN TRIAL

Defense Witness Ejected from Courtroom

BY ROBERT SAGE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Aug. 9—The inside story of frantic negotiations and intrigues in Vichy, Algiers, and Germany during the first days of the American landings in North Africa was told today at the trial of Marshal Petain by Capt. Edouard Archambault, 48, assistant of Adm. Auphan, Petain's confidential adviser in 1942.

A violent incident was produced by another of the day's eight witnesses when Charles Donatti, former Vichy regional prefect, climaxed an outspoken defense of the aged marshal by shouting: "Many thousands of Frenchmen believe this trial is a gigantic blunder." Amid a thunder of protests from the jury and French newspaper men, Judge Pierre Mongibeaux ordered the witness ejected from the courtroom, reminding him that under Vichy he would probably have been sent to jail for two years.

Two unscheduled witnesses were Fernand de Brinon, Vichy's delegate to the occupied zone, who used to brag he was the first Frenchman to shake Hitler's hand in 1933, and Joseph Darnand, chief of Vichy's notorious militia.

Prosecutor Andre Mornet declared he wanted nothing to do with either since he considered De Brinon a "crooked business man" and Darnand a "murderer."

Never Protested Maqui Hunt

Darnand had little to say in his brief testimony but when the judge asked him whether Petain ever protested against his pursuit of the Maquis, the militia chief answered, "Never."

De Brinon, much to the defense's displeasure, said: "The marshal always told me we owed nothing to England but owed a great deal to America and we must effect an agreement between Germany and America. I'm convinced he was absolutely in agreement with the policy represented by Laval. My impression is that he was sincere and was not playing a double game."

De Brinon asserted Petain was in favor of reconciliation with Germany and on the whole was satisfied with his meeting with Hitler at Montoire.

Invasion Background

As for backstage events at the time of the American landings in North Africa, Capt. Archambault gave the following account:

On Nov. 8, after the first American landings, Petain wired Adm. Darlan at Algiers, expressing his confidence in him. At Vichy a majority of the council of ministers overrode Auphan's violent opposition to calling on the luftwaffe for help. Petain said he would wire for Darlan's opinion.

The next day Laval departed for Germany, leaving orders for Darlan not to make any decision in his absence. A delayed reply to Petain's telegram arrived, expressing opposition of Darlan, Adm. J. P. Esteva, and Gen. August Nogues to calling on the luftwaffe.

On Nov. 10 Petain approved armistice terms offered by the Americans which Darlan had wired, but backed down after Laval telephoned from Germany saying that the action would cause German reprisals. Meanwhile Darlan already had given himself up to the Americans and was replaced by Gen. Auguste Nogues.

On Nov. 11 Petain protested German occupation of all France as a violation of the armistice convention. On the following day Nogues sent Petain a project of accord with the Americans for the establishment of the political status of North Africa and proposed the reinstatement of Darlan. Petain approved both proposals.

STETTINIUS GETS NEW JOB; RANK OF AMBASSADOR

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9 (AP)—Edward R. Stettinius Jr. today was appointed the United States representative on the preparatory commission of the allied nations organization with the rank of ambassador, it was announced by President Truman.

E. R. Stettinius Jr.

The President, in a letter to his former state secretary, said he wished Stettinius "success in this vitally important undertaking."

The White House said Stettinius probably would not attend the first routine meetings of the executive committee of the preparatory commission. The group is so called because it will do the spade work for the allied nations organization until the required number of nations have ratified the San Francisco Charter and made it effective.

ARMY TO STUDY POSSIBILITY OF REDUCING FORCE

Atom Bomb, Soviet Step Considered

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9 (AP)—War Secretary Stimson said today the war department will study the Pacific war situation to see whether atomic bombing and Russia's entry will permit another cut in the size of the army.

But the possibilities of both those new elements "had been in our minds for many months," the secretary added. He said the test must be the number of men "which we believe may be needed for the complete defeat of Japan with the least possible loss of American lives."

Denies Hoarding Men

The secretary told Johnson he could state "categorically that the army has not been holding millions of men it could not use."

"The army is deploying forces to the Pacific at the rate necessary to meet operative requirements," his letter said. "What shipping is left over is being used to meet the commitment of discharge by the merit system."

Stimson said Johnson's request for "candor" compelled him to observe that charges that the army "is deliberately delaying the release of soldiers contribute no little to the understandable discontent of men who have been anxious for many months to return home."

Stimson noted that the atomic bomb had been introduced since Johnson wrote him criticizing the army's size.

Disputes Figures

"I anticipate that you may feel that this development reinforces the point of view expressed in your letters," Stimson wrote. "I want, therefore, to say that in my opinion common sense and prudence dictate that we continue with our reliance on well tested modes of warfare [supplemented, of course, by the atomic bomb], until sufficient time has elapsed for the significance of this new weapon to become fully incorporated into military planning."

Stimson took issue with figures that Johnson had cited, saying they included only part of the men in the Pacific theater, omitting entirely those in the India-Burma and China theaters.

New Factors Heeded

"The war department will, of course, appraise the military situation and the size of the army in the light of the successful use of the bomb and the new declaration of war," Stimson said.

"We shall also give heed to any new factors which may develop from day to day. But we shall not do our duty if we plan for the reduction of the army by even one man below the number which we believe may be needed for the complete defeat of Japan with the least possible loss of American lives."

THE BEST LAID PLANS OF MICE AND MEN

The congressional joint economy committee has been informed that 35 of the 44 nations which agreed to finance the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration are in default of their obligations. All were to have contributed 1 per cent of 1943 income toward operating expenses. We are paid up, and so are Britain and three of the dominions, Costa Rica, Brazil, Panama, and Iceland. Elsewhere, the eleemosynary cause lacks appeal.

Since the United States is paying 72 per cent of the bill, even the countries in good standing with the treasurer are getting off at a bargain rate. UNRRA, partly because of the delinquencies, is passing the hat again for another billion and a half. We will presumably be billed at the usual ratio. The fact that we are paying the freight is nothing new. We have been doing the same thing in every other related field since lend-lease was established in March, 1941, with the solemn assurance that it would save us money in the long run by providing the tools with which others would finish the job.

Rep. Everett Dirksen, however, finds a number of other grounds for viewing UNRRA with a jaundiced eye. In calling for an investigation of its operations, he set forth his reasons for being critical and buttressed them with the statements of two former American UNRRA officers who resigned in disgust.

One of these men told of being prepared for a mission to the Balkans at an UNRRA indoctrination school, where a Czech born economist and a lady professor instructed the novitiate relief dispensers in the culture patterns of the Balkan countries. "During this schooling," said Mr. Dirksen's informant, "I was struck with the fact that no teaching was relative to the American view, but entirely the viewpoint of the nationals of the Balkans."

The Czech and the lady professor, for instance, taught, "We must recognize that the local people in power were subject to bribes," and "we must pay complete attention to their viewpoint." It struck the student that he and his colleagues in UNRRA were being given the hint that they might have to pay graft out of UNRRA funds in order to distribute largess among the Balkan peasants.

Once overseas, this UNRRA officer found that the agency was to move "into the sphere of British influence, and the top American personnel seemed to be entirely subservient to that influence." In Italy, these Americans "were told we were going into British battle dress, and complete British outfits, even to bed rolls and mess kits, were issued. I balked strenuously at this and flatly stated I did not come over to blot out and submerge my American identity. The top American criticized me for this stand, stating I was not representing America but rather a united nations organization." The rebellious officer finally bought two American uniforms, paying for them himself.

The UNRRA section in Italy was attached as military liaison to allied forces, but was dominated by the British. The ranking American military officer with the section was a lieutenant colonel; the British brought in a brigadier general. "The military liaison plan of distribution," the UNRRA officer said, "was to turn over to the party in power in the various countries the relief goods and let them distribute—certainly a powerful political weapon."

When it is recalled that the British established a government in Greece favorable to them, and that in Italy no one could serve in the government if they vetoed him, as they did Count Sforza, it becomes apparent that relief largely supplied by America, paid for by America, and under the administration of American personnel was being used as an instrument of British political policy.

Most of the Americans in UNRRA didn't care. "A large part of the personnel," said the UNRRA officer, "frankly stated they were on a world tour and to hell with the taxpayer." The other evidence produced by Mr. Dirksen was to the same effect. It added up to a sorry mess of mismanagement which Mr. Dirksen predicted would "earn for this country a reward of ill will and contempt."

UNRRA is but one of many schemes which our do-gooders urged upon the nation as a national duty in administering to a sick world. Like every other form of burocracy, it has proved to be shot full of inefficiency, waste, and corruption. What little success it has achieved has been claimed by allies who put up little of the supplies or money, but saw that they seized the top management posts; while all of the failures are gladly attributed to us.

But the facts can be expected to make little impression among the pure of heart and lame of brain. They certainly haven't jolted UNRRA out of its dream world. As one disillusioned field worker told Mr. Dirksen, "The agency will continue to kid itself." Only when the harvest of ill will and contempt of which Mr. Dirksen spoke is brought in will there be any appreciation of the fact that committing beautiful plans to paper and digging deeper into the pocket than anybody else are not automatic guarantees that gratitude will be the reward of philanthropy. The philanthropy, to pay off, must be managed as efficiently as the Rockefeller Foundation manages its enterprises, and so far the New Deal hasn't displayed any of that kind of talent.

GEORGE THE LAST?

The English king has been an anachronism for a long time, but the irony of the station has never been brought home quite as fully as it will be in the experience in store for George VI. It will shortly be his duty, in full robes and panoply, escorted by the lords and ladies of the royal household and by the Beefeaters, to proceed in a painted stage coach drawn by eight bay ponies to the chamber of the house of lords, there to open parliament.

In the speech from the throne, the monarch enunciates the program of the new majority party. As is known, this is Labor, which is dedicated to a program of nationalizing mines, transport, industry, and the Bank of England. The members of the Labor government embrace ex-cab drivers, men who worked 18 years underground in the coal mines, a former school teacher, a printer, and others of the lower orders.

The party is sufficiently revolutionary to have chosen as its anthem "The Red Flag," which was sung by the hon. members in the sedate atmosphere of commons when they gathered the other day to rejoice in their victory over Mr. Churchill and the upper classes. The party has been dead set against the crown since Labor members of socialist tendency first appeared in the parliament of 1906. On that occasion one of the Laborites, reflecting on the regal splendor of Edward VII. as he stood at the bar of the house of lords, remarked to a colleague, "A wonderful sight! It will take a lot of undoing."

When King George VI. makes the speech from the throne upon the opening of the first parliament in which Labor ever has held an overwhelming majority, he will be obliged to outline a platform that may be anathema to him. A royal personage in a socialized society just doesn't belong. When he states the program of Labor, he may be an accomplice in the disappearance of himself as an institution.

It is customary on these occasions for the king to use the royal "We." When he unfolds the plans of Professor Harold Laski, we wonder whether his mode of address will be, "We propose to nationalize the Bank of England"? And if it is, will people think that he means that he himself indorses this idea, or that he and his dear friends, the horny handed stalwarts of the Labor party, do so together?

HOGGING THE DOCTORS

The Association of American Physicians and Surgeons has sharply questioned the services on their reasons for refusing to grant discharges to doctors, of whom more than 40,000 are being held on active duty. The association has addressed to the army and navy a series of questions concerning their policy which are less questions than statements of incontrovertible fact.

The services are asked whether it is not true that since V-E day they have had a tremendous surplus of doctors. They are asked whether medical officers are to be kept on duty without their consent after the war is over; whether medical officers will not eventually be forced into the veterans administration; whether younger doctors who are amenable to New Deal control of their prospective practices are not to be used as a nucleus around which socialized medicine can be organized; whether the huge number of doctors now in service are not being kept under discipline in order to silence their opposition to regimented medicine.

The sponsors of the Wagner-Murray-Dingell expanded social security bill have demonstrated the validity of the association's allegations by the indecent haste they have shown in attempting to jam thru this legislation. Meanwhile, the attitude of the New Dealers seems to be that if they cannot achieve their program in one way they will do so in another. Plans to provide free medical care for all of the 15 million and more veterans of this war, together with their immediate families, will insure a vast expansion in the medical program of the veterans administration, and would mean that perhaps a third of the nation's population would receive medical care from government doctors at public expense.

The reduction in number of doctors available to attend to the civilian population, because of wholesale inductions into the army and navy medical corps, has created conditions of hardship which may have been designed to put the public into a receptive attitude toward what Sen. Wagner disingenuously calls "health insurance." It would be easy to spread the impression that inasmuch as the overworked doctors still in private practice were not able to meet the demands upon them, the government should take over medicine so that care could be spread equally among all who need it.

The army and navy and the burocrats have formed a sympathetic working combination all thru the war, and in this particular matter of state medicine they are perhaps closer together than at any other point. When the army corners the supply of man power, food, or materials, the burocrats have the excuse for promulgating a thousand and one regulations to tie the civilian economy into knots, spread hardship, delay reconversion, and assist the process of regimentation.

Most of the doctors in uniform are condemned to sterility, handling routine sick calls better turned over to a medical corpsman, or spending hours on paper work that a WAC or WAVE is just as capable of performing. The plea of necessity no longer can be advanced when the major half of the war is over and the surviving enemy is on the receiving end of almost all of the punishment, the severity of which is increasing daily thru the use of new and terrible weapons.

Gustavson, eminent scientist and vice president of the university, and William F. Ogburn, chairman of the university's department of sociology.

"Originally scheduled topic for the broadcast was 'A Guaranteed Annual Wage.'"

ELEMENTARY, WATSON

Speaking of atoms—and aren't we all?—please remember before you become hysterical that there are 92 elements in the structure of the universe, according to the present score by innings, and that each has its own special and peculiar kind of invisible teenie-weenies, most of them refusing to be cracked. Uranium, which forms the stuffing for atomic bombs, is a notoriously weak sister with an atom that cracks like a soft-boiled egg. The victory of science over uranium was like striking out the pitcher, and most of the other atoms in the batting order are tough babies.

Among the elements that have been discovered since the cracking era began are several whose names suggest that their atoms may be exceedingly stubborn. They are gallium, germanium, polonium, and europium, which are obviously named after France, Germany, Poland, and Europe. Another rare item on the roll call is illinium, named after the state or university of Illinois, and, therefore, above suspicion.

The names of many modern additions to the list of elements are likely to throw Delos Avery, the atom-cracker of poetry, into an ecstasy, because he dotes on weird words. For example: lanthanum, cerium, praseodymium, neodymium, samarium, gadolinium, terbium, dysprosium, holmium, erbium, thullum, ytterbium, lutecium. If bigger and better atomic bombs are ever made, these might serve as a shotgun prescription.

Among the many contributors to atomic theory was a Chatterton or Keats of science named Henry Moseley, whose precocious genius was snuffed out in World War I. His death at the age of 28 inspired the best atomic poem to date, "The Ballad of Ryerson," by Edwin H. Lewis, of which we will present a sample:

Beyond the violet seek him, for there in the dark he dwells,
Holding the crystal lattice to cast the shadow that tells
How the heart of the atom thickens, ready to burst into flower,
Loosing the bands of Orion with heavenly heat and power.

YOU WILL REMEMBER

I shall not seek you in the city's wake
Where constant jostling tread would break
A frail, frail dream. On any thorofare
You would forget that I am there.

But I shall seek you where a buckeye tree
Lays shadows intermittently
On purpleness: an iris path, the musk
Along a hedge turned mauve at dusk.

And where the glory of the moonlight spills
Upon the low surrounding hills.
You will remember, and remembering then,
You'll lay your hand on mine again.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

G. B. S. writes: "I am a veteran of World War I. whose health has failed to the point where I am advised I require hospital care. I have been told I am entitled to hospitalization by the veterans' administration, whether or not my disability has any connection with my military service. Where and how do I get this service?"

Application for hospital care should be made to the veterans' administration on form 10, which will be supplied by this department if addressed, stamped envelope is sent. Submit the application to the nearest veterans' facility, and if you are found to be admissible you will be notified at once. If you are not admissible you also will be informed and told the reason why. Preference in veterans' hospitals is given at all times to men with service-connected cases, and under present crowded conditions, resulting from hospitalization of veterans of the current war, veterans with nonservice-connected disabilities must wait their turn for beds. Most hospitals have large waiting lists. Do not go to the hospital until you are notified by the veterans' administration.

J. P. asks: "Where can I obtain a copy of my discharge? I was discharged a short time ago, and the certificate was lost before I had time to have it recorded."

Send an addressed, stamped envelope to this department, and application for certificate in lieu of discharge will be sent to you.

THUMBSUCKING AND OTHER HABITS

EVERY phase of childhood is educational and stimulating to parents. Each period presents its own particular problems and those of the first two or three years are concerned mainly with physical care. But in this age group certain habits may prove distressing.

The most common type is referred to as "reflex sucking." The youngster apparently relishes fingers, toes, or toys as much as food. Practically all infants indulge. It is a natural process and should occasion no alarm if baby is contented and well nourished.

Thumbsucking is especially prevalent. We have all heard dire tales of misshapen jaws and teeth that may follow but, in the majority of cases, if not maintained beyond the first 12 months, no particular attention should be paid to it. On the other hand, if the tendency persists until the sixth year, there is danger that dentition will be affected. Furthermore, the little one stands the chance of being humiliated by playmates and possibly his teachers. In addition, the practice often points to delayed maturity and we may observe other signs of infantilism such as bedwetting. True, there are many adults who carry childish characteristics from the cradle to the grave, but most parents want to do all in their power to encourage normal personality development in their offspring.

Tots between two and five usually prefer the fingers to the thumb. They enjoy the solace provided by the act when they are tired, bored, embarrassed, or depressed because of punishment. In other words, it is a source of consolation much as the grownup will take a drink or two in order to overcome a sensation of frustration.

Mechanical appliances are helpful with some infants but most authorities prefer a less direct approach. They feel that after the age of 2 these devices center the child's mind on the disorder, making it too important. Certainly nagging is useless. The best management is to discover the cause of the basic disturbance which drives the child to a desire for compensation. Meanwhile, whenever the movement is noted, the attention may be distracted—momentarily, at least—by handing him a toy or assigning a minor task that will occupy his hands.

Associated with the habit, or appearing after it is broken, may be yanking of the hair, lip biting, picking the nose or the fuzz off blankets or sweaters, or pulling at an ear. These maneuvers carry the same significance as thumbsucking except that in the case of the ear, investigation should always be made for infection in this structure.

Banging the head against the mattress, crib, or buggy is another annoying caprice that usually disappears by the fourth year. It does not seem to do any damage altho some thickening of the skull, in the region that is struck, may result. In babyhood this condition, unlike thumbsucking, rarely has an emotional basis. It apparently satisfies a sense of rhythm. In older youngsters, however, a psychic background may be present.

Perverted appetite is another complaint. A few toddlers, even those who refuse wholesome food, take pleasure in eating dirt, ashes, coal, and bits of cotton or hair picked up from the floor. If this difficulty continues into the second year, the youngster may be mentally retarded but, as a rule, it merely indicates again the inclination of children—especially when hungry—to convey everything to the mouth.

LEG DEVELOPMENT

V. C. writes: Will exercise or massage develop the legs? I do not want to put on weight but I would like to have fatter limbs. Could you tell me what to do?

REPLY

Walking, dancing, and movements of the foot will afford sufficient exercise for the calf muscles. Massage may be helpful and just the right amount of food to deposit fat between the muscular bulges may complete the job of becoming another Marlene Dietrich. Beyond this, mother nature rules.

SUGAR FINDINGS

O. M. T. writes: Is sugar in the blood more dangerous than in the urine?

REPLY

All of us have this substance in the blood but should the amount become excessive, some trouble must be suspected. The quantity in the urine depends upon the level in the vital fluid. As a rule, if it is found in the excretion, we can assume that the blood contains more than it should.

The Stars in the Course of Man

Only the stars still move in their courses. How long they?

It is toward thoughts like these that the questioning mind, troubled and awed by the atomic bomb, must inevitably turn. Note the Big Dipper: Unchanged. Note the w of Cassiopeia: Unchanged. Note the claws of Scorpio: Unchanged. Note the two red stars that seem to pursue each other in a trail of fire. They move! Atmospheric changes stemming from the devastation of a city of Japan? Unleashed energy mounting at last to height untold and until now out of reach? Then the sigh of relief. A green light blinks beside the two red stars. It is a stratoliner winking on its way, its path cut and recut by the great white beacon from the tower built by soap. The stars move as ever.

What now of progress? Is it illimitable? What of it is for good? To the scientist there must be an answer. To the average man there must always be a question. Why must every secret of the universe be probed? Why must all order be undone? The universe, known and unknown, is orderly. Why not man?

The secrets of nature "so long mercifully withheld" was the sad, reflective phrase used of the atomic bomb by Churchill. "To be or not to be," spoke the contemplative Dane. "Quo vadis?" asked the Latin.

Will man do good or ill with his awful knowledge? What will man do with himself? What does man do with his fellowmen?

What of the scientists who unlocked the atom? Do they think it bodes good? The perfector of the submarine thought it a great boon to peaceful commerce; he died a few months ago, wiser. Leonardo da Vinci, who first invented it, withheld his knowledge from the world. He previously had invented the prototype of the armored tank, the bombing plane, flame throwers, and poison gas; foresaw the Galilean law with "The sun does not move," Newton's law with "Every weight tends to fall toward the center by the shortest way," and Einstein's theory with "Write of the quality of time as distinct from its mathematical divisions"; served as military engineer for Caesar Borgia and Ludovico Sforza and called war bestialissima pazzia [most bestial madness] and was to go down in history as one of the world's greatest savants in exact science, not in completed endeavor but in conjecture. Yet of his most astounding discovery, the submarine, he wrote:

"How and why I do not describe my method of remaining under water for as long as I can remain without food; and this I do not publish or divulge on account of the evil nature of man, who would practice assassination at the bottom of the seas by breaking the ships in their lowest parts and sinking them together with the crews who are in them."

Leonardo worked diligently over the airplane, studying the laws of flight. He was hampered only by insufficient knowledge of suitable motive power. Edward MacCurdy, interpreter of his voluminous notebooks, says that had he thought of death from the skies, he probably would have agreed with the artist in Johnson's Rasselas. The latter mastered the art of flying by inventing wings on the model of the bat's, but refused to divulge his secret, saying: "If all men were virtuous, I should with great alacrity teach them all to fly. But what would be the security of the good if the bad could invade them from the sky?"

Yet the airplane, too, was perfected by gentlemen who saw in it a means to transcend space and barriers. It did that and a trifle more.

The duty of man, wrote Leonardo, is "to preserve the chief gift of nature, which is liberty." He also wrote, prophetically, of swords and spears: "The works of men's hands will become the cause of their deaths."

What was it man said when he first innocently brushed green twigs together and made fire? Perhaps the same thing scoffers said of the first automobile. Perhaps he said, exultingly: "My fate now is in my hands." Or perhaps he said, ruefully, "Of a little life we make great travesty."

FROM B-29 CREWS TO B-29 STRIKERS

GUAM, July 31—We the undersigned enlisted men of the 20th air force, which is devastating the "Land of the Rising Sun," are naturally very much perturbed by the recent reports of strikes in the United States, particularly the 50,000-odd workers in B-29 engine plants in Chicago and elsewhere, news of which has reached us via radio rebroadcasts. The latest news we received was that some 20,000 strikers had agreed to resume work on July 30; but what about the remaining 30,000 slackers?

No truer words ever were spoken than those of a commentator on our local radio reports a couple nights ago, which ran something like this: "The strikes in B-29 engine plants may succeed in doing what the entire Japanese empire has failed to accomplish—stop the raids over Japan." Does the almighty dollar hold so much of importance in the minds of our friends and neighbors for whom we are now fighting, giving our untiring efforts with insufficient sleep and heavy strain, and in a great many cases, our very lives, that these same friends and neighbors can thus deliberately, and apparently with no feeling of guilt and no twinge of conscience, take time out to go on strike for more money, collective bargaining, or whatever the current flimsy excuse may be?

In the mind of any service man there is nothing lower than warplant strikes and all who participate therein.

HE'S CHAIR-BORNE

Blytheville, Ark., Aug. 2—The editorial explaining the word "chair-borne" is the last straw. For your information, "chair-borne troops" is a title reserved for us unfortunate people who are doomed to slavery pounding a typewriter. Altho we may have enough points to receive a discharge from the army, we cannot return to our normal lives because the army considers us essential.

We certainly would like the privilege of exchanging our chairs with yours.

REVERSE LEND-LEASE?

Chicago, July 24—Yesterday I purchased a copy of The Tribune at one of the loop stands. In the change I noticed a foreign copper coin smaller than our cent.

On examination I find the coin to be a soviet 2 kopeks [1932] sickle and hammer design, nominal value, 2-5 cent.

I have no kick coming; I construe this merely as a gesture on the part of Russian lend-lease. S. HYMAN

SAVING OUR FLYERS' LIVES

Chicago, Aug. 7—Maj. Bong's untimely death, as so well stated in The Tribune's editorial, is indeed a tragedy.

The public should know that the untimely death of Maj. Bong and many other valuable army pilots could be avoided or, at least, their chance of survival greatly increased, were the army to require the employment of final airplane inspectors who would have to make the first test flight of every plane inspected by them. Under present conditions in airplane factories, it is not uncommon for final inspectors to O. K. the flight condition of a plane on the word of sub-inspectors or ordinary airplane mechanics. They know that they don't have to go up in the plane on its test flight. There are plenty of men in the airplane factories who have had hundreds of hours of flying experience and who could be readily trained as inspector-pilots.

Politician-lawyers in the war department are not capable of comprehending the value of the lives of great Americans like Maj. Bong. Only an aroused public opinion will bring about a change to an intelligent governmental policy which will conserve the lives of men who have proven their value to the entire nation. WILLIAM WAGNER

RESERVED TENNIS COURTS

Chicago, Aug. 6—Your columns of Aug. 3 published a letter from Lily Barker complaining that 10 tennis courts at Sheridan rd. and Addison st. in Lincoln park are locked and barred.

Evidently your correspondent is unaware that these are special clay courts that are being conditioned and held for a city-wide tennis tournament, benefiting and interesting thousands of tennis players in this area. Following the completion of the tournament, about Aug. 19, if weather permits, the courts will once more be thrown open to use.

Meantime, there are 10 asphalt courts at this location that are open to general use, and an additional group of cement courts a few blocks north at the foot of Montrose ave.

NO LIQUOR ON CREDIT

Chicago, Aug. 8—What can I do to stop a tavern owner from lending money to my husband so that he can treat the crowd? Sometimes he spends his entire week's pay before the check is in his hands. Yes. The Illinois statute forbids selling liquor on credit. Your husband can refuse to pay, or you can report the tavern to the licensing officials.

DRAFT MASTER HOUSING PLAN TO CLEAR SLUMS

Begin with 4 Areas Near Downtown Chicago

BY GEORGE TAGGE

A master housing plan recommending use of city-state slum clearance funds in areas close to downtown Chicago is being compiled for submission to the public and all interested groups, Temple McFayden, chairman of the state housing board, said yesterday.

McFayden said it is proposed to work from the heart of Chicago toward the periphery, rather than to skip about. Reports are being prepared on one area in each of four sections—north, northwest, west, and south. The project area boundaries are as follows:

North: Chicago av., Fullerton av., La Salle st., and the Chicago Milwaukee St. Paul and Pacific railroad tracks.

Northwest: Grand av., Division st., Ashland av., and Milwaukee av.

West: Halsted st., Oakley blvd., Congress st., and the Baltimore and Ohio railroad tracks.

Hope to Spread Money

"Because not a great deal of money is available, good judgment will be necessary to spread it to the best advantage," said Carl Gardner, planning director for the Chicago Plan commission.

The state recently appropriated 10 million dollars for slum clearance thruout Illinois, of which Chicago may get about 5 millions. The city has authorized a 5 million dollar bond issue for the same purpose. Beyond this city and state officials do not see eye to eye.

McFayden, head of the board which will pass upon each application for state funds, said that he and Gov. Green aim at helping private enterprise rebuild slum land and favor private home ownership. Mayor Kelly has said he does not want to see city funds, at any rate, used to help private industry make a profit.

Mayor Ponders U. S. Loan

Mayor Kelly said that the 10 million dollars in city-state funds for Chicago could be used to get a 90 million dollar federal loan, which could be used to erect public tax-exempt housing.

McFayden and Gardner are members of a committee which will take up a report on one of the project areas at each weekly meeting, starting Aug. 14. Other members are H. Evert Kincaid executive director of the plan commission; Ald. Lindell [9th], chairman of the city council housing committee; Ald. Kells [28th], a member of that committee; Robert Taylor, chairman of the Chicago housing authority, and Elizabeth Wood, executive secretary of the authority.

KIDNAPER'S PALS SEPARATE; THEN ONE SURRENDERS

Harvey L. Hinderliter, 22, of 4835 Ash av., Hammond, seaman 2d class, one of three prisoners who escaped from the Great Lakes Naval Training center Tuesday, surrendered yesterday to Chief of Police George Ehlert of Crystal Lake, McHenry county.

Another of the escaped prisoners, Jack Navarre, 23, of Independence, Kas., seaman 2d class, was recaptured Tuesday night in Savanna, Carroll county, after kidnaping two girls and a forest preserve policeman.

The third, Tracey W. Wood, 30, of Rose City, Mich., seaman 2d class, is still at large. Hinderliter told Chief Ehlert that he and Wood hid in the vicinity of Slocum lake, a mile west of Wauconda in Lake county, but separated yesterday. Navy officials said charges against Navarre and Hinderliter will depend upon an investigation of the escape, now in progress.

ARLINE JUDGE'S DIVORCE UNDER FIRE BY TUOHY

Says He Will Act to Void Decree

Proceedings to set aside the divorce granted in Chicago May 17 to Miss Arline Judge, 33, film actress, will be started today in Superior court by State's Atty. Tuohy, he said last night. On Aug. 3 she was married to a fourth husband, Vincent Morgan Ryan, 41.

"It's not true," said Miss Judge in Hollywood, Cal., when told of Tuohy's assertion that he had evidence she had not resided in Chicago the required length of time. She maintained she had established legal residence here for more than three years, but had divided her time between Chicago, Hollywood, and New York.

Divorced by Judge Sabath

The divorce at issue was granted by Judge Joseph Sabath in Superior court to Miss Judge from Capt. James R. Addams of the British royal air force on the ground of desertion. Miss Judge sued under the name of Mrs. Mary Ann Addams and gave her address as 5518 Everett av., which is the home of Mrs. Annette Davis, sister-in-law of Miss Judge's lawyer, Phil R. Davis.

Atty. Davis said that Miss Judge used the Everett av. home as a mailing address, while she resided in the Palmer House and later at the Ambassador hotel. He said it was not claimed that she lived at the Everett av. address.

Criminal Action Unplanned

Tuohy said that perhaps Miss Judge thought a mailing address constituted a legal residence in the state. The state's attorney said perjury probably could not be proved in the case, and said his office did not contemplate criminal action.

Mrs. Davis and Alexander L. Jarema of 719 Forest av., River Forest, an investment broker, were witnesses for Miss Judge, and they have been questioned by Tuohy in an investigation that he started Tuesday.

Investigation Is Requested

Tuohy said his office was asked to make the investigation, but that he was not free to disclose the source of the request. Judge Sabath is on vacation.

Miss Judge and Ryan, an account executive with Grant Advertising, Inc., 919 N. Michigan av., were married in Las Vegas, Nev., a few days after he was divorced here from Lucia Turner Ryan, 38, of New York. He charged desertion.

HOW KRUSCHEN and Coffee CHASES "MORNING AFTER" MISERY AWAY

evening BEFORE morning AFTER

Now Simply Drink "Morning After" away This Simple Quick EASY WAY

The digestive tract needs to be cleaned out, and depressed nerves need a lift, when you wake up feeling terrible the "morning-after." If this is not done you may feel terrible for hours longer than may be necessary. Your head swims, you feel depressed, nervous and jerky. Taking commonly used depressant headache preparations may only further depress the nerves and that's wrong. So to clean out the digestive tract, to help steady those nerves and to feel good again, just try this . . .

. . First thing in the morning when you get out of bed, take bubbling effervescent KRUSCHEN in ice cold water, and to help steady the nerves follow it a half hour later with one or two cupfuls of good strong coffee. You can get a package of effervescent Kruschen at any drug store. Caution: Use only as directed. A teaspoonful of good effervescent Kruschen mixed with a glassful of ice cold water is inexpensive to use and makes a delicious and refreshing ice cool drink. Get effervescent Kruschen today. Always have it on hand for such emergencies.

REPORTS POINT DISCHARGE PLAN FOR PHYSICIANS

A.M.A. Journal Describes It as Like GI's

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Physicians will be discharged from military service on a point discharge system similar to that covering GI's they have treated, the Journal of the American Medical association announced today.

The system for the discharge of medical officers was drafted by the office of the surgeon general, United States army, the Journal said.

While the system establishes criteria for separation from service, the surgeon general's announcement did not disclose the basis on which points would be awarded. Neither did it indicate when or how many medical officers might be returned to civilian life.

Two classes of officers were established, the announcement said, "one for scarce specialists, the other for nonscarce specialists and general duty officers." The list of scarce specialists was kept to a minimum, the army added, after a review of world-wide requirements and availabilities.

Basis for Separation

The criteria for separation follows:

"1. Medical corps officers returned by a theater or declared surplus by a major force [except those with primary military occupational specialties listed in paragraph below] are eligible for release from active duty if their adjusted service rating is 100 or above.

"2. Medical corps officers in certain scarce military occupational specialties are eligible for release from active military duty if they have an adjusted service rating of 120 or more; gastroenterology, ophthalmology and otolaryngology, cardiology, dermatology, allergies, anesthesia, neuropsychiatry, neurosurgery, thoracic surgery, plastic surgery, orthopedic surgery, clinical laboratory.

"3. Medical corps officers over 50 years of age, irrespective of their specialty classification, are eligible for relief from active military duty if they are returned to the United States by a theater or declared surplus by a major force.

Efficiency Index Rules

"4. No medical corps officer with an efficiency index of 41 or more who desires to remain on active military duty will be relieved, irrespective of age, military occupational specialty or adjusted service rating."

The announcement said that because general hospitals in the United States are at peak and because the surgeon general desired to send replacements to the Pacific as quickly as possible, "the age provision is not being put into effect at the moment for personnel in the army service forces, and no medical corps officer in the nonscarce category is being released who has less than 110 points [except those who returned from overseas since V-E day]."

[Officials in Washington, D. C., last night withheld comment on the American Medical association's announcement on the point discharge system for physicians in the services.]

5 LOST, 32 SAFE IN SINKING OF MINESWEEPER

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9 (AP)—The minesweeper UMS 39 was blown apart by a Japanese mine and lost with five of her crew on June 26 during preinvasion minesweeping operations off Balikpapan, Borneo.

Lt. Robert M. Sullivan

Announcing this today, the navy said nine crewmen and two officers were injured, none seriously. The ship carried 37 officers and men and half were blown overboard by the blast. The broken ship sank in 10 seconds. Loss of the vessel had been reported previously but without any details.

Her commander, Lt. Robert M. Sullivan of 439 S. Kensington av., La Grange, Ill., said the ship's sweeping gear touched off two other mines almost simultaneously with the explosion of the mine beneath the UMS 39's keel. The 32 survivors were in the water for an hour and a half about 1,500 yards from a Japanese held beach. The men were picked up by other naval vessels.

EX-YANKS STILL PICKETING CITY HALL IN CAB ROW

Members of the American Cab Drivers association for discharged service men yesterday picketed the city hall for the second consecutive day in protest against a city ordinance limiting the number of taxicab licenses to 3,000. Edgar Sirles, 1632 N. Bell av., a former cab driver and a discharged veteran, charged that the ordinance is unfair to service men and constitutes a discriminatory contract between the city and the Yellow and Checker cab companies, which hold a majority of the present licenses.

FRENCH VILLAGE ENSHRINES DEAD CHICAGO FLYER

Sends Envoy to Tell Parents of Heroism.

Inhabitants of the little French village of Sainte Genevieve les Gasny have enshrined 1st Lt. William Dian, 22, Crane High school graduate and Thunderbolt pilot, as their hero because he sacrificed his life to save them from death on Aug. 18, 1944.

William Dian

The German invaders had set up an anti-aircraft position on the banks of the Seine, near La-Rouche-Guyon, in their futile effort to halt the surge of Americans from the Normandy beachheads.

Killed Saving Villagers

In the dusk of evening three Thunderbolts roared over the Gasny hills, dived with guns wide open at the anti-aircraft nest, then circled to come back.

Lt. Dian, pilot of one, zoomed over a wood. Bullets from a machine gun on a road set his plane afire.

The flaming Thunderbolt nosed earthward. Residents said he might have crash landed in the village, killing some of them but saving his own life. Instead he chose to make a run for a plain to the north.

As his Thunderbolt lost altitude and speed, Lt. Dian was attacked by a machine gunner stationed on a roof. He attempted another turn. The plane plummeted into a forest.

Bury Body With Honors

Villagers ran to aid the flyer, but the Germans held them back. That night the townsfolk recovered the body. Next day, after the Germans retreated, they buried him with honors in the village cemetery.

The mayor of the village wrote: "Since then the tomb of the airman Dian, which is looked after by the municipality, is always covered with flowers by the hands of pious people who do not forget the sacrifice made by this soldier."

Robert Marzier of Paris, who came to New York on business recently, was commissioned to visit Lt. Dian's parents, James and Tessie Dian. But they had moved from 846 N. California av. to 3133 S. 54th av., Cicero, and he didn't find them.

The parents may soon receive a call from M. Marzier. The Red Cross in New York yesterday gave him the Dians' new address.

Vernon Marquardt, 43, of 7657 Coles av., a laundry truck driver, reported to police yesterday that he was robbed of $50 in a hallway at 4729½ Ellis av., by a Negro who threatened him with a knife.

DISCHARGED U. S. HERO ON WAY TO WAR FOR CANADA

Ivory Bird, 22, of Washington, D. C., who served in the army air forces six years, three of them in overseas fighting, then was given a medical discharge in April, 1944, arrived here yesterday on his way back to the Pacific battlefronts. He is in an artillery division of the Canadian army.

He enlisted in the American army at 15 and won the distinguished service cross, distinguished flying cross, the air medal, and four Purple Hearts. He fought in the Philippines, Guadalcanal, and made 127 missions in 39 days as chief gunner on a bomber.

A year after his discharge from the American army, he joined the Canadian army, and is now a corporal in an aircraft artillery outfit. He arrived here with 400 other Canadian troops under supervision of Lt. Col. L. M. Jones, Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan.

The navy accounted for most of the increase, reporting casualties of 146,077, as compared to 139,810 last week. The army total, announced by the war department, is 922,139, against 920,017 for the preceding week.

ARMY RELEASES SERGEANT SO HE CAN TEND HIS SON

Master Sgt. Floyd Pittard, 27, a veteran of 26 months in the South Pacific, returned to Aurora yesterday with a dependency discharge from the army, to care for his infant son, Floyd Jr., left motherless by the death of Pittard's wife, Florence, on June 19.

The Red Cross arranged for Pittard to be flown back to this country and burial was delayed until July so he could be present. Subsequently he applied for and received a dependency discharge because his mother, Mrs. Floyd Pittard, 806 Charles st., Aurora, is too ill to care for the child.

Pittard said he plans to start a refrigeration sales and service business in Aurora.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BEN MARKLAND

Aug. 9, 1945

NORTHERN Illinois farmers are having one of the best oat harvests in many years. The first 30 acre field of Vicland oats harvested on the Wheaton farm produced 1,854 bushels, an average of 61.8 bushels per acre.

Heavy rain in Kendall county last Sunday delayed progress of the threshing ring in which the Fox river farms are coöperating, but the shower was so valuable from the standpoint of the corn crop that none of the farmers complained about delay of the oat harvest. Oats from two of the six farms in the ring have been threshed, and the 23 farmers coöperating in this project are ready to start operations on the Fox river farm.

Oat Crop Excellent

When we visited the threshers yesterday, they were operating the steam engine and separator on the Frank Budd farm, which adjoins the Fox river farm on the west. The 50 acres of Columbia oats on the Victor Garner farm, the first threshing area, produced 3,257 bushels, an average of 65.1 bushels per acre.

The manager of the Fox river farm believes his oats [Columbia and Tama varieties] will average 65 to 70 bushels to the acre. The Tama stands on the farm may produce a higher yield than the Columbia acreage.

Little Disease Noted

There was no rust disease in Tama, and only slight disease in the Columbia. The Tama oats seem to have sturdier stems than the Columbia variety, as evidenced by the fact that last week-end's heavy rain did not dislodge the Tama stands.

Another favorable aspect of this year's oat harvest is the weight of the grain. Columbia oats from the Garner farm weighed 38 pounds to the bushel, compared with 32 pounds standard weight for oats. There have been reports of oats in Kendall county weighing 41 pounds to the bushel.

One of the sidelights of the oat harvest on the Kendall county farms was provided by a retired railroad fireman who traveled from Chicago, and spent a day watching black smoke pour out of the stack of the steam engine that powers the threshing machine. He handled the throttles, helped shovel coal into the boiler, and listened contentedly to the chugging of the engine, which reminded him of his early days on "the road."

★The GARDEN★

ADVANTAGES of applying a mulch over seeds planted in July and August are apparent in a garden cultivated by one of the farm employes. He planted 25 row feet of Chinese cabbage July 21, after spading and raking the row in the usual way. After planting, he covered 20 row feet with a light mulch of redwood fiber. No mulch was placed over the final five feet.

Seed germination in the mulched area was almost perfect, but in the unmulched section only four of approximately 30 seeds germinated. The hot weather of late July and early August baked the topsoil, forming a crust that few of the unmulched seeds could penetrate.

The redwood mulch prevented this crusting and insured germination. A mulch of peat moss, clean straw, or dried grass clippings probably would have been as effective.

WIFE DIVORCED BY SAILOR SEIZED AS ADULTERESS

Mrs. Alma E. Vanderspool, 34, of 817 Commonwealth av., Waukegan, was arrested yesterday on a warrant issued by Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady of Lake county after her indictment Wednesday on a charge of adultery. She was jailed with her bond set at $2,000.

The indictment, returned by the Lake county grand jury, also named Herman Bittner, 33, who the woman's husband, Theodore, a sailor, charged was living with her. Mrs. Vanderspool told Judge Dady that Bittner had gone to Mexico, Mo., but that she loves him and will marry him as soon as he gets back.

The sailor's charges were aired before Judge Dady when he was granted a divorce and custody of the couple's four children.

$1,000,000 KEESHIN STRIKE DAMAGE SUIT DISMISSED

A suit for $1,000,000 damages which was filed May 17 by the Keeshin Motor Express company against local 705 of the Chicago Truck Drivers, Chauffeurs, and Helpers' union, while a strike was in progress, was dismissed by agreement yesterday before Judge Elwyn R. Shaw in federal District court. The suit charged that the strike was a violation of the war labor disputes act and that the union and three of its officials unlawfully attempted to prevent the company from continuing freight operations.

Altho numerous food items are on the shortage list nowadays, there are some foods in good supply. These vary from time to time, and wise meal planners make use of whatever is easy to obtain at the moment. Right now, eggs and cottage cheese are fairly plentiful, and it's sensible to use them whenever and however possible.

Picnic eggs are a favorite companion to sandwiches or cold salads on warm days. Cut six hard cooked eggs in half lengthwise and remove the yolks. Mash yolks with ¼ cup minced onion, 2 tablespoons minced green pepper, 1 tablespoon chopped stuffed olives, ½ teaspoon salt, and 1 tablespoon mayonnaise. Refill halves, and sprinkle with paprika.

For a more tart stuffed egg, good for an hors-d'ouvre tray, remove yolks of 6 hard cooked eggs cut lengthwise and mash 4 yolks with 1 teaspoon onion juice, 2 tablespoons catsup, 1 tablespoon cream, and ½ cup mashed sardines [or substitute anchovy paste to taste]. Season with cayenne. Refill the halves and decorate with remaining 2 yolks, sieved; paprika, and strips of green pepper.

Cottage Cheese and Jelly Omelet
[Serves four or five]
4 large eggs
3 tablespoons milk
¼ teaspoon salt
½ tablespoon butter or margarine
Jelly or jam
1 cup cottage cheese
Parsley

Beat eggs, milk, and salt together until light and frothy. Melt butter or margarine in skillet, and pour in th egg mixture. Cover and cook over low heat 20 to 25 minutes, or until omelet has set and is lightly browned on the bottom. Spread top with tart jam, jelly, or preserves. Spread cottage cheese over this. Roll or fold omelet, garnish with parsley, and serve immediately.

Here's a filling main dish salad, to be served in a large wooden salad bowl or in individual bowls, combining meat, vegetables, and cottage cheese. Any left-over or canned meat, sausage, or frankfurters will make a hit in this combination.

Tossed Cottage Cheese Salad
[Serves six]
2 cups cooked potatoes, diced
1 cup cooked or canned meat, diced
1 cup cooked peas or beans
½ cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup diced dill pickle
Salt, pepper to taste
1 cup cottage cheese
½ cup mayonnaise or cooked salad dressing
Salad greens
Radish roses

Combine vegetables, meat, and pickle. Season to taste and chill thoroly. Just before serving, add cottage cheese and mayonnaise and toss together lightly, until blended. Serve on lettuce or other salad greens. Garnish with radish roses.

Peaches Can Be Baked to Make Tasty Dessert

Plentiful peaches suggest not only canning, but also fresh peach desserts of all kinds. For baked peaches, pour over four washed peaches a sirup made of ¼ cup honey, ¼ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons margarine, and ½ teaspoon almond extract. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 30 minutes.

Foresee Boost in Cuts from Larger Lambs

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON

Stock yard officials predicted yesterday that the housewife will find fewer of the smaller lamb cuts she likes in the meat markets next winter but there will be a larger percentage of cuts from more mature lambs.

This action is expected to follow the change in the policy on lamb subsidy prices by the department of agriculture in Washington, D. C. It is predicted the change will arrest the trend toward slaughter of lambs at light weight, which has reduced meat production in this field drastically in recent years. Under the new program, several million dollars monthly in federal subsidies will be poured into the hands of sheep raisers and feeders, as premiums for the production of heavier animals.

Spokesmen for packers and sheep raisers said they can assure the housewife there is just as much, or more, quality in the meat of older and heavier lambs as in the small ones that she has made popular in recent years by her demand for the small, lear chops and roasts. Meat from 100 pound lambs, handled properly, can be made as tender in the skillet as the lamb from a 50 to 75 pound animal.

In fact, some chefs prefer the more mature lamb meat, both for taste and tenderness, especially when properly aged. Many 100 pound lambs are less than a year old. Their meat is fatter than that from the baby lamb, sold at six months of age.

In normal times when the housewife went into the butcher shop and selected chops or a roast, she unknowingly was laying down production rules which the meat animal raiser or feeder had to follow in order to get premium prices. Packer distribution experts have always followed closely the trend of consumer taste in meats. To get the cuts wanted in the butcher shop, the packer had to give premiums for the animals that produced them, thereby forcing the men on the farm to obey the housewife.

Desires of the civilian consumer now, however, are pushed into the background by war time requirements for tonnage. The man who raises lambs weighing more than 90 pounds will be able to collect up to $3.15 a hundred pounds subsidy from the government late next winter. The highest payment to those sending in 65 to 90 pound stock will be $2.50, while those marketing lambs under 65 pounds will get only $1. Despite the drive to increase lamb weights, the total tonnage anticipated will be much less than usual because of the drastic reduction in number of sheep.

John Nash Ott to Take Bride on West Coast

BY JUDITH CASS

A WEDDING of interest here which will take place Saturday, Aug. 18, in Spokane, Wash., will unite in marriage John Nash Ott of Winnetka and Mrs. Agnes Anderson Greenough. Because of travel difficulties, Mr. Ott and his bride will not have a wedding trip, but will return at once, to be at home in his Winnetka residence.

Mrs. Greenough is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Christian Anderson of Seattle and Spokane. She attended the Anne Wright school in Tacoma and is a member of the Spokane Junior league. During the war she has been serving as a Red Cross nurses' aid.

Mr. Ott is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Nash Ott and a stepson of Mrs. Ott of Winnetka. He was one of the first men in that village to be drafted, entering the navy and taking boot training. Later he was commissioned as a lieutenant and was stationed in Washington, D. C., for a time in the office of the undersecretary of the navy. He recently was honorably discharged from service and has returned to business in Chicago.

Mr. Ott and his former wife, Mrs. Fentress Ott, who now lives in Pasadena, Cal., have four children, Wendell Fentress Ott, David Fentress Ott, James Forgan Ott, and John Nash Ott III. Mrs. Greenough has two children, Tucker, 10, and Ann, 7.

Engagement News

Of interest to the many Chicagoans who knew the former Katherine Blossom when she lived here is the announcement which she and her husband, Col. William S. Bacon, are making today of the engagement of their daughter, Barbara, to Capt. George L. Rosenberg of the army air forces. Mrs. Bacon, a sister of George W. Blossom Jr. and of Francis R. Blossom, is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George W. Blossom of Chicago.

Miss Bacon was graduated from the Brownmoor school and from Bennington college. Her fiancé, son of Mrs. Jacob G. Rosenberg and the late Mr. Rosenberg of Rochester, N. Y., attended Phillips Exeter academy and Columbia university.

Miss Bacon will continue in her post at Camp Ketchuwa, Mich., at which she has served as counselor for several years, until just before the wedding, which will take place Sept. 1. As Col. and Mrs. Bacon now are living in Tooele, Utah, where Col. Bacon heads the army air base, the ceremony will take place in Salt Lake City. Capt. Rosenberg will take his bride to Davis-Monthan army air base in Tucson, Ariz., not far from her parents' ranch in Oracle, Ariz.

At present the Francis Blossoms are in Castle Park, Mich., for a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Woodcock of Wilmette announce the engagement of their daughter, Doris Elizabeth, to Charles D. Wardner of the Michigan Shores club, Wilmette, and Concord, N. H. The wedding is planned for September. Miss Woodcock attended Miss Wheelock's school in Boston, Mass.

Here and There

Lt. Col. Peter J. Rooney III., who is on temporary duty in San Francisco, Cal., awaiting his transfer to Boise, Idaho, hopes the housing situation will be less critical in the latter city so that his wife, the former Edith Harrison, can join him there. Mrs. Rooney and her father, Carter H. Harrison Jr., are having a holiday at the Huron Mountain club, where Mrs. Harrison and their two younger daughters, Carol and Joan, expect to join them over Labor day. The eldest daughter of the family, Mrs. Kevin B. McLoughlin, is living in Los Angeles, Cal., awaiting Lt. Comdr. McLoughlin's return from sea duty in the Pacific.

Any day now the Fowler McCormicks expect to welcome Mrs. McCormick's son, Lt. Alexander Stillman of the naval reserve air forces, to Barrington. Lt. Stillman is on his way home from Tinian, where he recently was decorated by Rear Adm. Marshall R. Greer for his work as pilot of a navy patrol bomber. Both of Lt. Stillman's brothers are stationed in this country. Maj. James Stillman is on duty in San Antonio, Tex., as a surgeon with the army air forces. Lt. Guy Stillman and his wife and children

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Model Secretaries

Beautiful stenographers who turn models are not unusual. But beautiful models who turn stenographers—that is a story of a different hue.

The two secretaries for that starring songstress trio, the Dinning sisters, were models before they undertook their fascinating white collar careers. One secretary, Loretta Phillips, is blonde; the other, Jean McCulley, is chestnut haired. Each is a tempting subject for a color camera. Looking at them, it's hard to believe these two W. C. G.'s mean business—but they do, and on a grand scale.

All in a Day's Work

Let's say your day begins at 9 or 9:30, by taking a letter to Stupe & Stupe, acknowledging an order [future delivery] for 600 doorknobs. Loretta's and Jean's day begins at about 10:30—with the unexpected. Jean's first job the other morning was to find a roofer for the house of one of the Dinning sisters. That was only the start of a 24 hour day, as Jean is personal secretary to the Dinnings and accompanies them to rehearsals, radio programs, and the Hotel Sherman, where they are appearing.

It is Jean who is responsible for all musical arrangements being on hand [with no trombone part missing!]; she must take down, in shorthand, any changes made in the songs, fuss over costumes to see they are clean and ready, attend to personal as well as business mail—and even hire nursemaids for the various Dinning households. It was Jean who, when the girls sang not long ago at Camp Ellis, jaunted around with a major to find an iron and ironing board to press the crinkles from the caroolers' costumes. And it is Jean whom you might see almost any day sitting in a car, motor running, out in front of Tribune Tower, so that the three songbirds can flit from a W-G-N rehearsal to the Sherman and back again to go on the air.

No Time for Commas

Loretta is office manager. She is in charge of the "home office" of the Dinning sisters, where business arrangements for radio programs, television, recordings, and movie or personal appearances are handled. Loretta not only has been a model but, beginning with her high school days, she has held a number of intriguing jobs.

Once Loretta [who looks a bit like Jean Arthur] was a receptionist for a theatrical agency, but found she didn't have sufficient will power to keep from "joining up with the acts—including a skating team," she says. Now, all of 20, she feels it is high time to "settle down" in a job, tho the infinite variety of her tasks is scarcely conducive to "settling."

Both secretaries will go to California this fall when the Dinning sisters make two movies. In Hollywood, as elsewhere, life will be hectic, and fun, for the two model secretaries and their popular "boss ladies." "There's just no time," say Jean and Loretta, "for commas, semicolons, or colons" in their busy secretarial days.

Texas Guinan's Life a Natural for Technicolor

"INCENDIARY BLONDE"

By Mae Tinée

Pictures such as "Incendiary Blonde" probably are the reason technicolor was invented. It's the perfect medium for bringing such tales as the life of Texas Guinan to the screen. Beginning with all the colorful trappings of a traveling wild west show, it progresses to the gaudy plumage of the lavish Broadway stage spectacles of the Ziegfeld days and ends in the glassy glitter of the night clubs of the prohibition era. Every color in the rainbow comes into play, and the photography thruout is excellent.

Betty Hutton throws herself into her role as the exuberant gal from the Lone Star state who dropped "Mary Louise Cecilia" and became simply "Texas" and makes her a genuine if uninhibited person. She sings and dances and kids the customers with abandon and good nature, and if the real night club queen was anything like Betty you could see why they'd come back for more. However, all this is on a very moral plane, and the lady fights gangsters who try to muscle in on her racket with sturdy statements about "decent folks" who never knuckle down to such crooks.

Barry Fitzgerald plays her father, and he's a lovable old coot, with his dry wit and scratchy voice, even if he did mess up the family fortunes with his hopeless business schemes. He's a great addition to the film.

Tex's love life, as represented by Arturo de Cordova, seems a bit improbable. He's the noblest guy that ever lived, altho a little unbusinesslike in some ways, renouncing her firmly thruout the film for various reasons, among them his wife, Tex's father, and a couple of gangsters who badly needed some holes in their heads. Personally, he'd never raise my blood pressure, but every lady to her own taste.

People are going to think the Irish are a lot of morbid ghouls if the movies don't stop their goings-on. First we have Mary of "The Valley of Decision" with her father's curse hampering her at every turn, and here we have Tex with a black Irish curse—source unknown—which gives her a premonition of early death.

Apparently the film has stayed fairly close to fact regarding Tex's theatrical and screen career—she did actually make a number of quickies in Hollywood—but the facts of her life vary a bit.

On the whole, the film is a gay, galloping, entertaining piece, and them as like to weep have ample opportunity to exercise that privilege during its last 10 minutes.

Silly Goings-On

"BEDSIDE MANNER"

Released by United Artists, directed by Andrew Stone, featuring John Carroll, Ruth Hussey, Charles Ruggles, Ann Rutherford, Claudia Drake, Renee Godfrey, Esther Dale, Grant Mitchell, Joel McCrea, John James, Frank Jenks, Bert Roach, Vera Marsh, Sid Saylor, Earl Hodgins, Mary Currier, Constance Purdy, Mrs. Gardner Crane, and Joe Devlin. Presented at the Oriental.

A certain nosy gent who stopped at my desk and looked at the press sheet said, "That picture has a good title—it'll attract us morons." Mebbe so, but that's about the best that can be said for it.

It's all about one of those beautiful, glamorous lady doctors who swaggers about with a mouthful of medical terms [she even says spiritus frumenti when ordering drinks for herself and patient after a brief stitching session in the operating room]. In this case she's a plastic surgeon, but blithely delves into psychiatry when a man in love with her pretends he needs such attention.

Ruth Hussey is too good to be wasted in this sort of stuff, and John Carroll is hardly dapper or good looking enough to get away with being such a clown. Charlie Ruggles struggles along as a character the feminine M. D. refers to as "Uncle Doc."

"Bedside Manner" has my personal nomination as the silliest picture of the month.

Seafood Au Gratin Sure to Be Family Favorite

(Other recipes, menus, and food suggestions and news are on the opposite page)

Whether canned or fresh fish is used for this tempting sea food au gratin, the result is guaranteed to prove a family favorite. If individual sea shells aren't available, serve the creamed fish on toast points or in patty shells. Try canned shad or halibut or any fresh cooked fish in season (such as halibut or cod). To make:

[Tribune Studio Photo]

Cook ½ cup chopped celery until tender, saving ⅓ cup cooking water. Melt 3 tablespoons margarine, add 1 tablespoon minced onion and ¼ cup chopped green pepper, and cook gently for several minutes. Stir in 3 tablespoons flour. Gradually add ½ cup celery water and 1 cup milk, cooking to a smooth white sauce. Add cooked celery and 1½ cups flaked fish [cooked or canned], heat thoroly, and fill individual sea shells with mixture. Top with ¼ cup buttered crumbs and ¼ cup grated cheese. Bake in hot oven [450 degrees] for 10 minutes, or until crumbs are browned. Serves six.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug 9—When you have your nose to the grindstone, you get so close to the making of movies you lose the sense of detail, the work, and the patience that goes into their production. But yesterday I got a thrill out of what would have been casual routine when I took John Elwood, vice president of the National Broadcasting company, and Niles Trammel Elwood, his 12 year old son, on the boy's first tour of a studio. . . . We caught up with Errol Flynn on the set of "Never Say Goodbye." You should have heard young Niles' remark, "Oo boy! Wait till I get back to school!" It was a cafe scene, and S. Z. Sakall as a waiter was running true to type—he'd just spilled soup down the front of Errol's suit. Errol was using it as an excuse to get away from the party and off to his girl. [Not that he ever needs any excuse.] . . . A gambling joint was in full operation on the "Dancing With Tears" stage, with Zachary Scott and Harry Lewis at the roulette wheel. Elwood Sr. remarked, "Well we were always amazed at David Belasco's perfection of stage detail, but this makes him look like a piker." We literally walked miles up and down the French and English streets, Arabian villages, western towns, and wound up at the New England fishing village, with boats moored at its docks, that is being used in Bette Davis' "A Stolen Life." The boy said, "Well, Dad, you don't need to send me on that tour of Europe now." We ended up at the drug store across the way, where we all had ice cream sodas and I felt 50 years younger.

Heard, But Not Seen on the Screen

Herbert Marshall's voice will run thru "Duel in the Sun," but you won't see him. Being a narrator isn't as ungrateful a job as you think—remember Bob Taylor in "Fighting Lady." . . . Hear the "Mary Magdalene" company will go to Palestine for the duration of making the picture. In 1910, Sidney Olcott did the same trip for "From the Manger to the Cross." . . . Did David O. Selznik slip RKO a niftie when he sold them "Notorious"? I understand it's about the atomic bomb and they can't get the story out much before eight months' time, waiting for Ingrid Bergman and Cary Grant. By then there'll be a new miracle, the way things are going. . . . When a GI Joe asked Enid Markey to autograph a war poster yesterday on the "Snafu" set, she saw a drawing of herself by James Montgomery Flagg with "Belgium and I both need you" printed underneath. It was part of the recruiting campaign for World War I, in which our actresses were largely used for poster material.

Sharp Witted Piece of Work

I hear Robert Siodmak refused to reshoot the ending of "Uncle Harry," so Boy William Neill was brought in to do it. There was a tempest all around, with Joan Harrison, Hollywood's temperamental woman producer, walking out at Universal for the second time. Well, the ending may not have pleased Joan, but it's a sharp witted job on a delicate subject. And some of our other feminine producers who were at the preview were all eyes and ears. . . . John Hodiak has bought a ranch for his mother and father in Tarzana. They'll spend the week-end moving. . . . Myrna Loy's latest fan letter is from Berlin—on Adolf Hitler's personal stationery. Our GIs sure have moved in!

Movies Stars Turn Literary

George Murphy has turned into an author. He is doing a book on his life called "Vaudeville Wasn't So Bad," in which he reminisces on command performances for the prince of Wales, queen of Spain, and Marie of Romania. . . . And Hoagy Carmichael has gone literary again. This time it's "Rhapsody in Mud." It tells the origin and history of music in the 1920s. . . . Sergei Eisenstein sent D. W. Griffith a copy of the Russian "D. W. Griffith, American Film Master." It'll be translated into English by Jay Leyda. Well, that's the second country to write about D. W.—Maybe we'll take the hint. . . . Judy Canova says she'll call her biography "The Corn Is Grown." . . . Virginia Weidler and Dick Mains picked up the romantic thread in Washington, D. C., recently, just where they dropped it when Dick went off to war. . . . They say Jimmy Durante looked romantic at Las Vegas recently with a bee-youtiful strawberry blonde.

Wheel Chairs Sought for 2 Blind Persons

BY SALLY JOY BROWN

[Sally Joy Brown department activities are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

The need of wheel chairs is again claiming our attention. Idle chairs can be placed advantageously with invalids who have been unable to enjoy this balmy, sunny weather. The following are only two of many similar appeals.

Mr. S., who is supported by an assisting agency, is blind and has been paralyzed for many years, deprived of the use of his legs. He is confined to his room in a congested, shabby part of the city and has been unable to get out of doors for more than a year. He is without relatives, but a friend, who is partially blind, spends much time reading stories from Braille to him. Since she is adept at making her way around the neighborhood, she has volunteered to wheel him about if a stroller type wheel chair can be obtained for him. Cartage can be arranged.

Mrs. L. writes in behalf of a friend, whose sister suffered a stroke three years ago. It is difficult to care for the afflicted woman without a wheel chair. Such an aid would facilitate handling her and also would make it possible for her to be taken outdoors. The address is on the northwest side, and an offer from that general area could be called for at least expense.

Thru the Looking Glass

Some women are gifted at removing and applying their own nail polish with all the skill of the professional. Others, such as us, are so clumsy at it the heart sinks to the shoes when polish begins to chip far in advance of the beauty shop appointment.

But clumsy or not, when polish beings to look shoddy it's far better to whip it off entirely than to go about with the polish facade cracked. Don't let even a few hours pass. The only thing worse than grimy, black rimmed nails are those with their red coat all shattered.

And if you want to get your old polish coat off in a hurry, with the minimum of mess and smear, be sure you invest in some of those wonderful little pads of flannel saturated in remover. They are godsends to the woman whose fingers aren't particularly nimble because they save her all the trouble of maneuvering with cotton, orangewood stick, and a bottle of stuff that under no circumstances should be allowed to spill.

Some of the removers we like are put up in glass jars [which must be kept tightly covered, by the way]. Each pad — they are thin little wafers in petal pink—is generously saturated with a remover solution that's efficient but not acidulous. One pad is enough to remove the polish on all 10 nails if you're neat. If you're inclined to slosh, you can use one pad for the 10 nails and another for the finger tips.

The best way, we think, is to pat each nail with the pad and press the pad down gently. Then start the actual removing, because that first pat does a good loosening up job. You'll find the pads aren't expensive, and they're plenty handy.

Monteux Surrounds Brahms with Unusual Scores for Second Brilliant Ravinia Concert

Passacaglia in G minor.....Handel
[Transcribed for string orchestra by Alfred Akon]
Symphony No. 2, D major.....Brahms
Prelude, Chorale and Fugue..Franck-Pierné
Pastorale and Tarantelle.....Creston
Orchestral Fragments, First Series, from "Daphnis and Chloé".....Ravel

Word of connoisseurs' music gets around fast, and the largest of the midweek crowds, about 5,000 people by incomplete count, thronged Ravinia last night for the second of Pierre Monteux's concerts with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. It was something of a masterpiece in program making, with rarely heard music clustered about the backlog of Brahms' Second Symphony, and in performance it was what we have come to expect of our orchestra when Monteux holds the baton. I like to think the two have a special affinity, but honesty compels me to admit that Monteux is a wizard with any good orchestra. Part of his necromancy is to make that orchestra sound magnificent.

Would you think, just offhand, that after all these years the Brahms D major could be a revelation? Most conductors, even the good ones, play it as if the whole point lay in reaching the final objective of eloquent brilliance. Monteux takes you the same place, but he shows you all the scenery along the way. The lovely inner voices of the orchestra speak out in full definition, all the detail strikes the ear with ravishing freshness, and there is created a glistening clarity that gives the symphony its full, often unsuspected stature. And how the orchestra plays! The andantino had a melting serenity rarely captured in weeks of concerts, and from the first note to the last the symphony mounted superbly to its pre-destined climax. This was Brahms with character, and its character was Brahms.

Mr. Monteux began with a score dedicated to him, the Handel Passacaglia in G minor, transcribed for string orchestra by Alfred Akon. It is a distinguished piece of work, clean and clear and charming, with a remarkable reproduction of organ tone, and it was played with the transparent brilliance that is a Monteux characteristic.

Two of the after-intermission scores were new to the Chicago Symphony's repertory. The first was Pierne's orchestration of Franck's noble piano work, the Chorale, Prelude, and Fugue, an ingenious and interesting treatment particularly when the winds and brass sing the stately chorale, tho as a steady companion I would stick to the original. Then, perhaps with an outbreak of his impish humor, Mr. Monteux played Creston's Pastorale and Tarantelle, a duskily voluptuous episode deeply indebted to both Ravel and Debussy, but admirably wrought on its own account and superbly played. The catch was that he followed it with the real thing, the first series of fragments from Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe." This is an exquisite experience in listening, particularly the murmurous nocturne, and if the orchestra wasn't as bewitched as the audience, at least it made bewitching sounds.

Short Coats Take Lead in Fall Fashions

BY REA SEEGER

Enough new winter coats have been unpacked to demonstrate the popularity of the short coat. This new high fashion short length is young and smart. The first models are not so short as to seem abbreviated, but the full dress length is conspicuously absent from the shopping scene.

Of course there will be many full-length winter coats in the mid winter showings, but the first fall and early winter season coats are short. Many of them swing about six inches above the dress hem, some clear the kneeline, and others are appreciably above the knees.

These coats are distinguished by the snappy back flare. A new front fullness is introduced just below the shoulder seams or below the yoke line. Sleeves are dramatically different, as in all the suits and dresses and coats of the 1945 fall season. Arm holes are very much larger. That dolman shoulder line is omnipresent. The upper half bulk thereby achieved is the newest and most revolutionary silhouette of fashion history.

Both belted and unbelted coats are abundant. All kinds of belts are wearable, from belts made of the same fabric as the coats to very glittering fake jewel studded affairs for dress parade occasions.

Gray leads the preference list in coat colors. High colors and beige seem tied for second place. Plaids, checks, and stripes are available in untrimmed and in lavishly furred creations. The latter innovation is a new fashion note to watch closely.

Double breasted coat models are swank and young, and seem even younger when worn with the belt cinched tightly around the normal waistline. Short coats with narrow fur collars and narrow cuffs are ideal first fall buys for the career girl and for campus wardrobes. Those of brilliant colors—such as scarlet, gold, and vivid green—are smartest when contrasted with dark brown or black fur.

INSTALMENT XVII.

NO COMPROMISE

Linda must have guessed what Ben was thinking. A wave of color beat into her face.

"I don't like him any better than you do," she whipped out. "I detest his impudence—and what he stands for—and everything about him. But that's no reason why I should stand aside and let him be killed by an assassin. We've got to do something, Ben."

Ben loaded his fork with mashed potatoes and gravy before he answered. "Nothing we can do," he retorted, sharp irritation in his voice. "It's got beyond us. You can't compromise this fight. Either the cattlemen win or the homesteaders do."

"I know." She hesitated. "Could Rod do anything with your father—if I could get him to try?"

"What makes you think you could get him to try?" he asked.

She began to arrange the dishes on the tray, to avoid looking at him. "He's always been nice to me," she said. "I think he likes me."

"And you like him," Ben suggested.

"Well, he's my cousin, sort of, isn't her?"

"It couldn't be that you're in love with him," he said.

"No, it couldn't," she flared.

"Because Rod wouldn't be good for you. He's too like father—too hard and too bossy. No woman—even if he loved her—could bend him an inch from the line he chose to follow. Rod has taken his stand on this matter. He's right in the front of the fight, and he wouldn't say a word to hinder father. Fact is, I don't know anybody more likely to shoot down Sherrill than Rod. He'd do it openly, in a fair fight."

"Do they think they are God—Rod and your father? Who made it their privilege to take other men's lives? Doesn't it ever strike them that they can be wrong, too?"

"Maybe we're making too much of this, Lindy," her cousin said. "Maybe all they will do will be to burn Sherrill's ranch house."

The Bruce Sherrill never let it disturb the casual ease of his manner, he knew that he was walking thru the valley of the shadow. From the earliest frontier days the cattle industry had been a violent and precarious one. The ranchman had survived because he was an individual strong and rugged. Cattlemen had fashioned their own law, and the moral value of it depended upon the character of the enforcer.

The homesteader had either to be accepted or to be fought illegally. Men like Jeff Randall and Ned Daly justified their high handed methods on the ground that only terrorism would protect their rights.

Bruce had survived so far because he was not a rustler preying on the stock of the big ranches, and even tho he was a far more dangerous enemy they had hesitated to sacrifice him. But he felt he had worn their patience too thin. The shooting of Ben Randall had been the last straw. By the nature of his business he was forced to live outdoors, and tho he took what precautions he could he knew that he never swung to the saddle without the possibility of having a bullet whip across a hillside at him.

Ramrod worried over him. "I saw you riding the south prong yesterday," he protested. "A mark asking to be picked off."

"I was looking for the heifer that got out of the big pasture," Bruce explained.

"Are you the only man in this outfit who can ride? What's the matter with telling Mark or Neal to go? Or me? I'm still able to fork a bronc."

They were at breakfast. Neal walked to the stove, got the coffee pot, and poured himself a cup. "Anybody else?" he inquired.

Mark gulped down a last swallow and pushed his cup forward. "Seeing you're up," he said. "And I think Ramrod is right, Mr. Sherrill. Leave us do the hill ridin' for a spell."

Neal would be 19 in a month, and he had done a man's work for three years. One thing he did not want was to be babied. "Mark and I are just two spots in this game, but don't count us out." He grinned. "We are two of the heroes at the siege of the Quartercircle D C where there was a pint of lead spilled and nobody hurt."

"I wouldn't ask for better men," Bruce said. "But after all, this is not your fight. I advise you to leave. You are under no obligation to stay."

Neal flushed angrily. "How come you think we're quitters? I aim to stick around."

"Same here," Mark agreed. "In pitch a deuce is sometimes good as an ace."

Bruce was touched at the loyalty of his big broad shouldered young riders. "Fact is, we don't quite know where we are," he commented. "All the fireworks may have been to scare me and other other homesteaders away. Nobody has been killed yet."

His foreman snorted derisively. "You sure take a lot of convincing. Rod told you his piece the other day, didn't he? And his father. Do you want an affidavit from old Jeff that he means business? 'To whom it may concern: I'm not foolin' when I shoot up Bruce Sherrill and attack his ranch and burn his haystacks and comb the hills to dry-gulch him and kill his horse. I mean to fill him full of slugs.' Signed J. Randall."

Gilcrest bowlegged into the room and tossed two letters in front of Bruce. "Picked 'em up in your mail box as I came along. How's everything on Bear creek?"

"No complaints," Bruce answered. "Grass fine. How about Squaw?"

"About as usual. Pete Engle's house is finished and they have moved in."

"No new trouble with the cattlemen?"

"No. Couple of Pitchfork riders drifted up the crick yesterday and stopped to watch the Engles moving in. One of 'em was that fresh guy Wally Jelks. He made a sarcastic crack about what a nice little house it was and how he hoped it wouldn't burn down accidental like the other one. But there's another thing. Two fellows rode in yesterday with a pack outfit and set up a tent. Claimed they came to fish. Might be, but I got to sorta wonderin'. Folks don't usually pack a couple hundred miles just to fish."

"Give their names?"

"Barnard and Sawyer. They dropped in to our place for milk. Asked a lot of questions about the trouble between us and the cattlemen. Course, tenderfeet always are poppin' off with fool questions. That may not mean a thing."

"But you think they may be stock detectives?"

The actual bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	1 no trump	Pass
2 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead, king of hearts.

There is current the impression among a large body of bridge players that the possession of a five card suit must be telegraphed promptly and in no uncertain terms to partner. This bidding misconception is based upon a confusion between the terms "may" and "must." To put it briefly a good five card suit [more frequently referred to as a rebiddable suit] may be rebid if it suits your convenience, but there is no "must" about it.

There may be several things you would like to tell about your hand and you may find that you have neither the time nor the space to tell them all. In such cases you must select the most important bit of information and telegraph that to your partner. More often than not you will find that the possession of a five card suit is the least important of the items and may therefore be neglected in favor of more vital features.

You may have a very fine five card suit and refuse to rebid it because the simple rebid of your suit may tend to discourage your partner from further participation in the auction and you have the desire to describe a strong hand and invite your partner to go on. Remember it is much more important to describe your hand than it is to describe your suit.

Another occasion when a rebiddable suit may be neglected in favor of a weaker suit is when an effort is being made to park the hand safely, and no convenient place has as yet been found. Today's hand is an example. South opened with one spade and when partner responded with one no trump decided not to pass because he had two short suits.

Whether or not he should have passed is a close question, but with the two doubletons no great fault can be found with his decision to bid. The choice of his rebid however, was very faulty. He elected to show his five card suit and the contract was set 200 points in routine fashion.

Assuming that a rebid is in order, the only proper call is two clubs. If it should turn out that the hand belongs in spades, partner can still return to that suit, and if North happens to be short in spades and long in clubs so much the better. Nine tricks in clubs could have been delivered without the slightest effort.

As a rule when two choices are open to you, in late rounds of bidding the cheaper of the two should be selected. Two chances are surely better than one.

Sgt. Randolph Coleman, who served with the army in Holland, Belgium, and Germany and received the bronze star, is managing to see most of his relatives during his 34 day furlough. After spending the first few days in Winnetka with his mother, Mrs. William Ogden Coleman, and his aunt, Mrs. F. Eugene Ackerman, who was here from New York, he accompanied Mrs. Ackerman back east and had a visit with his brother, John Marvin Coleman, a midshipman enrolled in the naval reserve training school at Columbia university. Recently he has been in Michigan with another aunt, Mrs. Dudley Wing of Evanston, and her children.

When Sgt. Coleman leaves next Friday for California to train for duty in the Pacific, he hopes to have a reunion with his other brother, Maj. William O. Coleman of the marines, who is on duty in Van Nuys, Cal.

Other Wedding News

When Lt. Edward Blanchard Winslow of the coast guard received transfer orders from Atlantic duty to the Pacific, he and his fiancée, Miss Madeleine Clark, suddenly decided to be married in New York, where the pretty bride has been pursuing a career as a radio writer. The ceremony took place at 4:30 p. m. June 14, just two weeks after their engagement was announced in the chapel of the First Presbyterian church, with a reception following in the Beekman Towers.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Underwood Clark of Evanston went east for their daughter's wedding. Also present were the bride's sister, Mrs. Bentley G. McCloud Jr., who came from Washington, D. C., with Lt. McCloud, to serve as matron of honor; Lt. Winslow's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph G. Winslow of Albany, N. Y., and his brother, Lt. Richard Winslow, who was best man. The bride will remain in New York until Lt. Winslow returns from sea duty.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Louise Whipple, daughter of Mrs. Pope Whipple of Evanston and of Newton P. Whipple of Winnetka, to Lt. [j. g.] Rolland Robert De Martin of the naval reserve dental corps, at 8:30 p. m. last Saturday in the chapel of the First Congregational church in Evanston. The Rev. Hugh Elmer Brown, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony, which was followed by a reception in the Georgian hotel. Lt. De Martin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph De Martin of Flint, Mich.

FASHIONS
By Angela

Sequins will glitter this year as never before, but the treatment will be more dainty and subtle. Dresses, hats, scarves, and other accessories will be trimmed with delicate scroll designs and in combination with beads or small stones.

The smooth black after-five dress at the left, with cap sleeves and deep vee neckline, features an all-over scroll design of shiny black sequins on the bodice and across the upper part of the slightly full skirt. A string belt, to which an enormous cabbage rose is attached, ties at the side. The back is slim and unadorned.

For general all-purpose wear is the smart black one-piece sheer in the center, with deep armholes, rounded shoulders, short notch lapels, and material buttons on the bodice. A sequins fish of turquoise and pink on the shoulder is its only color accent. The skirt has tiny darts across the front under a material belt.

The cocktail dress at the right, with the extended shoulder line, brief cap sleeves, and vee neckline, has soft folds depending from the shoulder. A black sequin trimmed peplum, curved in front, continues straight across in back. The skirt maintains the same sleek arrowlike slimness.

A Left-Handed Child Is Not an Abnormal One

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Altho many teachers are informed on the subject of a change of "handedness" in children, it is a subject which many other teachers and parents do not understand. Therefore, if your left-handed child is entering school do not let his or her handedness be changed.

Here is a letter of interest:

"My dear Mrs. Bevans:

"I have a boy who is 13 years old and has been using his left hand ever since he was a baby. He eats, writes, and plays ball; everything he does is left-handed.

"What I would like you to know is that he is always picked for all sports. He is also good at drawing pictures. I was glad when I read your article and as a dad I am very proud of my left-handed boy. I would never try to change him."

I quote this letter to emphasize what I have said so often in this column—that the child who is left-handed is as normal as if he were right-handed; that he can be as deft, as clever, in the use of his hands and his whole body as any other child; that he can be as capable mentally and in sports and manual activities as the child who is right-handed.

However, the left-handed child does not come into a full, poised, mental and physical development unless he is allowed to use his hands as his spontaneous impulse directs. If he is constantly urged, forced, or coaxed to employ his right hand against his inclination, trouble almost invariably follows—in muscular awkwardness, in mental proficiency, and in personality.

Part of this trouble is actually physiological; part of it is the logical result of making a child feel he is handicapped by constantly correcting him and making him conscious of being "different."

Paris Fashions Thrill WACs from Chicago

BY ANNE BRUYERE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Aug. 9—Tea at the Ritz, served in delicate Sevres porcelain on gilted Louis XV. tables set amidst exquisite paintings by Eugene Delacroix, Louis David, and Mme. Vegée Lebrun, thrilled two Chicago WACs, who also got an eyeful of the latest summer fashions by the Place Vendome couturiers.

The girls were Irene Schaefer, 1020 Lawrence av., and Nettie Parson, 4508 N. Central Park av., who took time out to see how elegant Parisiennes spend their warm summer afternoons.

They admired a Schiaparelli printed cerise and white ensemble with the open tunic worn by the Princess Edmonde de Polignac. They thought the draped-off-the-face turban in the same fragile white mousseline de soie as the gloves was something extra smooth, too.

"I'd like to be wearing the pin striped dress with the puffed hip pockets for a walk in State st. right now," signed Irene as she glanced at an Agnes Drecoll original made up in Bianchini Ferier's new silk crepe. With the model was worn a pert straw skull cap from which vivid feathers, flowers, and berries swept up to form the crown.

Nettie preferred the swank and impeccable beauty of all the tailored clothes. "I think that linen suit's awfully smart," she whispered excitedly, indicating an embroidered Martial et Armand model in cool yellow ochre with a gracefully swaying skirt and long cutaway front jacket. "I'd wear it to the best tea shops in the loop."

Gifts for Algonquin Put Total at $1,287; $751 Is in Ice Fund

The Camp Algonquin fund of Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., has reached a total of $1,287, an increase of $30 coming from gifts of $15 from Joy Elin Carlson, $10 from J. Wiard Johnson, and $5 from the Wesleyan Service guild of Wheaton, DuPage county. A total of $61 in donations to the Ice fund included an anonymous contribution of $20; $10 each from E. R. L., R. N. Gilmore, and Joy Elin Carlson; $5, anonymous; $2 each from K. Moore and M. A., $1 from M. S. F., and another $1, anonymous. The Ice fund now totals $751.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

Due to unforeseen difficulties with whatever it was that Bill Dietrich was using yesterday for enemy foolers, the White Sox abandoned, for the moment, their hate campaign against all those above them in the league percentage column. Dietrich experienced what is known as a big inning—six runs in this case—and that was more than Washington's Senators needed to maintain their position on the heels of the pacemaking Tigers.

The score was 7 to 2.

As encouragement for the problematical Dietrich, the Sox provided a one run lead at the outset and, until the end of the fourth, the bespectacled athlete performed as if he needed no more assistance. But the fifth brought a deluge of one pass and five hits, three of which were for extra bases and one of them by Mike Kreevich, a Sox alumnus. The iron man, obtained from the Browns on waivers, was making his debut as a Senator.

Where Are Those Hits?

The Sox attack, a far cry from the 18 hits they poured on the Senators the night previous, was little more than a two man job against Mickey Haefner, a little guy who pitches with his left arm. The only domestic performers able to annoy Mickey consistently were Leroy Schalk, with three singles, and John Dickshot, with a brace of doubles. They were the only ones able to make their way beyond second base, Schalk doing it twice. It was Haefner's 11th victory against 9 defeats.

The Sox were potent enough to get a single and double in the first inning and yet had to have outside assistance to get across the run that stood them in good stead until the fifth. After two were out, Schalk singled and moved to third on the first of Dickshot's two baggers. As a matter of safety, Haefner provided Tony Cuccinello with a free ride, loading the bases, and the Senators would have emerged from the jam safely if Haefner hadn't balked while pitching to Guy Curtright, Schalk scoring.

Ferrell Starts Trouble

Rick Ferrell singled to start the unhappy fifth and, altho Haefner wanted to bunt, he was agreeably surprised with a pass. It wasn't long before both dashed home, propelled by Kreevich's two bagger. George Myatt raised Dietrich's temperature a bit more by tripling, Kreevich strolling home. Buddy Lewis doubled for his third hit and Myatt counted. After Joe Kuhel and Harlond Clift had been retired, George Binks singled and Gill Torres' grounder slipped thru Cass Michaels' hands, Lewis scoring. Then Mike Tresh threw wild trying to stop Torres' steal of second and Binks counted on the error.

Between the first and sixth innings when they scored again, the Sox were very timid about their bat swinging. In the four inning interval there were two singles, one of them included in the series for which Schalk was responsible. His streak continued with his third hit at the start of the sixth and again he took third on a double by Dickshot. Three outs followed, one of them a fly ball by Cuccinello on which chalk crossed the plate.

Bill Lee Holds Former Mates to 6 Safeties

BY EDWARD BURNS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Boston, Mass., Aug. 9—Big Bill Lee, hero of successful Cub pennant quests of other years, spanked the Chicagoans today as the Braves slapped Paul Derringer all over the lot in a 7 to 3 Boston victory.

Bill Lee

Derringer, who blew two of the three games the Cubs lost on their last prior trip along the Atlantic seaboard, again showed himself allergic to salt air as he pitched four singles in the first inning, a homer by Butch Nieman and two singles in the third and a double and three singles before he was knocked out in the fifth.

The Cardinals beat the Giants again, thus reducing the Cub lead to five and one-half games.

Bill Is Just Too Tough

The Cubs, who have done their most terrific hitting of the year on visits to Braves' field—they made 31 hits in yesterday's double header, for instance—were held to a mere six by the once famous Cub. Half of the total was made by one of his former roomies, Stan Hack.

The three hits not made by Hack all were knocked in the third inning, a single by Phil Cavarretta, a double by Bill Nicholson, and a pinch single by Paul Gillespie.

The teams will play single games tomorrow and Saturday. Tomorrow Hank Borowy will pitch against Al Javery.

The Start Is Great

The game opened on a familiar note, a single by Hack, after which Don Johnson walked. Stan and Don advanced on Peanuts Lowrey's sacrifice, then Cavarretta was given an intentional pass, loading the bases. Pafko flied to Carden Gillenwater, Hack scoring and Johnson reaching third. Nicholson flied to Holmes.

The Braves took a 2 to 1 lead after two were out in their end of the first inning. With one down Vincent Shupe and Holmes knocked successive singles. Nieman struck out, but Gillenwater singled to right center, scoring Shupe with the tying run. Holmes approached to within six feet of third, then stopped when he saw Hack get the ball on a cut-off by Cavarretta. Hack tried to tag him in a chase back to second and when Stan tried to toss to Johnson as the race approached second, he hit Holmes in the back, Tommy reaching second safely as Hack was charged with an error. Temperamental Paul promptly pitched a single to Workman, Holmes scoring.

Nieman Crashes Homer

Shupe opened the home third with his second single. Holmes filed out, but Nieman socked the ball over the right field screen, scoring behind Shupe.

The Cubs shaved the Braves' edge to 4 to 3 in the fourth. Cavarretta opened with a single and was forced by Andy Pafko. Nicholson doubled off the left field fence, Pafko stopping at third. Gillespie batted for Dewey Williams and singled to center, scoring Pafko and Nicholson.

Shupe opened the home fifth inning with his third straight hit, a double. Holmes was credited with a hit when his slow roller to the mound evaded Derringer's glove. Nieman lined to Cavarretta, who stepped on first to double Holmes. Workman singled to right, scoring Shupe. Workman got to second on a bunt and Gillenwater bashed a single to center, scoring him.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD

THE report that Frankie Frisch is to be fired as manager of the Pirates and succeeded by Bill McKechnie of the Reds is news to both. . . . "A good seven inning pitcher," was McKechnie's reply when asked what he thought of Hank Borowy. . . . In many games, Bill, seven good innings are enough. . . . Members of the Cubs are agreed that Crosley field is the finest playing layout in the National league. . . . More fans turn out to see the Portland Beavers play on the road than at home. . . . The figure for nine road weeks was 250,000 and for eight on the Portland lot, 216,000. . . . Kermit Wahl, Cincinnati Reds' infielder, is one of the few big leaguers to come from South Dakota. . . . With only one letter man each on its basketball and track squads, North Carolina won Southern conference titles in both sports. . . . Athletes who have won letters this year at the University of Pennsylvania include Juan Llerena of Rio de Janeiro and Kashrub Mahindra of Calcutta, India. . . . Ray [Sugar] Robinson's original contract for his impending bout in Chicago with Jack La Motta called for a $20,000 guarantee, but he refused to sign until the promoters threw in an extra five grand. . . . Alex Kampouris, who played the infield for several major league clubs, including the Cincinnati Reds and the New York Giants, is at second base for the American air base unit of the Alaskan wing, air transport command, at Edmonton, Alta. . . . The Florida boxing commission has been admitted to the National Boxing association. . . .

Tony Canzoneri will take over the management of Jim Kimball, Brooklyn heavyweight, when the latter is discharged from the navy. . . . Kimball has been working on hospital ships overseas. . . . Lt. Bill Rhodes, former University of Texas guard, has joined the Georgia Navy Pre-Flight coaching staff after a tour of duty in Adak, Alaska. . . . Lt. Rhodes played with the west eleven in the 1939 San Francisco Shrine game. . . . Capt. Chester Chesney, former Bear center, writes from Calcutta, India: "The other day Jim Thorpe sailed into this port [he's in the merchant marine, you know] and I took the old boy on a tour of the service hospitals. . . . Practically every GI in the wards remembered and cheered Jim. . . . It was hard to tell which was happier, Jim or the boys he was entertaining."

Sudden Thoughts

Bridges

Men have bridged the depths of chasms
And the winding rivers wide,
Welding into one the people
Parted by the pulsing tide.
Now across these outstretched girders,
Serving well the common weal,
Flows the stream of teeming thousands
Joined by links of stone and steel.

But we need still mightier bridges
Than have yet been built by men,
Bridges of good faith and friendship
To unite mankind again.
For the world is wide and waiting
To bestow her blessings when
We shall learn to span the currents
That divide the hearts of men.

What Will Folks Think?

Two kinds of people we contact each day,
"What will folks think?" is what one class will say;
Actions, appearances, all, will revolve
Around this great problem they're striving to solve.

"What will God think?" is what others will ask,
And O, how much simpler and sweeter the task!
What peace He bestows for each trial well borne—
A crown for each cross—a rose for each thorn!
—Clara Elizabeth Otto

Cool, Isn't It?

On a torrid, seething day like this
I think of Okinawa
And the lads who fought that gallant fight
On dripping, dank Tarawa.

They had no air cooled movies
In which to while the hours,
No air conditioned restaurants
Like cool and shaded bowers.

When you feel the heat is getting you down,
That you can't stand another day,
Just ponder a while on that sultry isle
Down Iwo Jima way.

What would they give to be back here
In this heat with which you're messing?
Yes, for the boys in the thick of it, friends,
Our "tough spell" would be quite a blessing.

PACKERS TURN ON SPEED FOR OPENING DRILL

34 Candidates Get Two Hour Session

BY EDWARD PRELL
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]
[ALL-STAR ROSTER ON NEXT PAGE]

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 9—A training tempo that neither the Chicago Bears nor Washington Redskins approached in recent years was set today by the Green Bay Packers as they opened drills for their part in the 12th annual College All-Star game to be played Aug. 30 in Chicago's Soldiers' field.

Thirty-four players reported to Coach Curly Lambeau and his associates on the vacant lot adjacent to City stadium this morning. So Curly, perhaps inspired by the sunshiny atmosphere, proceeded to order a two hour session, during which he had the athletes going thru the entire football training routine.

What, Passing Already!

First came calisthenics, but Mons. Lambeau soon succumbed to his famous weakness—forward passing. He was a keen instructor and observer as pitches were thrown by Irving Comp, Lou Brock, and Paul Duhart of last year's team. Completing the foursome was Ken Keuper, one time roommate of Frankie Sinkwich at the University of Georgia, who last year played with the All-Stars against the Bears.

Later on Lambeau gave the punters a chance to kick the ball, with the others chasing or retrieving the spirals. The climax came when Curly ordered the squads to run thru 14 plays, mostly passing. This could be safely regarded as an omen that the professional champions plan to pitch a ball or two against Bernie Bierman's All-Stars under the lights of Soldiers' field.

Assistant Coach Walt Kiesling, the gigantic fellow who once played with the Packers and who has just served out a term as coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers, was as surprised as the sideline fans at the fast and varied first day training routine.

Veterans Are Plentiful Now

"We can do this," he said, after some personal speculation, "because we have so many veterans. Having an experienced team really simplifies it, and I had forgotten about such things while with the Steelers, where we had a new team almost every season."

At that, Lambeau announced the result of a recount disclosed he will have only 19 of his veterans for the National league season. An earlier poll indicated he would have 23. Pittsburgh, which drafted Duhart, is going to keep the young man, but he is eligible for the All-Star game. Paul was picked up by the Packers last year, but his class had not been graduated at the University of Florida. So into the draft pool he went last April and the Steelers nabbed him right away.

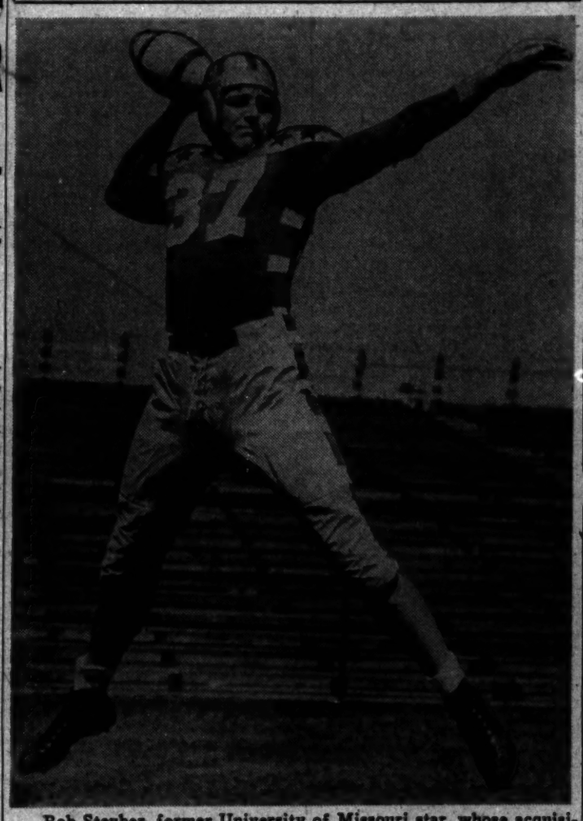
Bob Kahler, veteran half back, is in the army. Paul Berezny and Ade Schwammel, right tackles, will not return, even for the All-Star contest. Lambeau also has lost three right ends for the season—Harry H. Jacunski, Ray Wehba, and Alex Urban. Jacunski, who is joining the Notre Dame coaching staff, will report to the Packers a week before the All-Star game. After playing in this one he will return to Notre Dame.

Lambeau Honored at Banquet

Coach Lambeau tonight was presented a plaque by the Green Bay Packers, Inc., at a dinner in commemoration of the team's silver anniversary in the Beaumont hotel. Presentation was made by Dr. Weber W. Kelly, one of the Packers' early day presidents. Lee H. Joannes, president of the Packers, paid tribute to Lambeau as the man responsible for keeping professional football alive in Green Bay and successful in competition with teams in the nation's largest cities.

Joannes, in explaining the nonprofit setup of the Packers, took occasion to deny ever-occurring reports that the club will be shifted to Milwaukee. John H. Evans, president of the Green Bay Rotary club, was toastmaster. Present at the dinner were members of the squad, former players, coaches, stockholders and fans, numbering 300.

MORE LUSTER FOR ALL-AMERICA



Bob Steuber, former University of Missouri star, whose acquisition for post-war service with the Cleveland Panthers of the All-America conference was announced yesterday. Steuber, pictured in the uniform he wore as a member of the 1943 College All-Stars, also played a few games with the Chicago Bears that season.

BUSHER, BEAUGAY RUN TOMORROW AT WASHINGTON

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

If all goes well and Trainer George Odom of the Louis B. Mayer stables thinks the sensational 3 year old Busher can handle top weight of 126 pounds for the $30,000 Dick Welles handicap, the spectators at Washington Park tomorrow will see two of the finest fillies in the country on parade, for Mrs. Elizabeth N. Graham will send her unbeaten juvenile, Beaugay, after first money in the afternoon's companion piece, the $45,000 Princess Pat stakes.

Mrs. Graham, the New Yorker who operates the Maine Chance farm, thinks so much of Beaugay that she went right back for more during the recent Keeneland yearling sale and purchased a half sister of the Stimulus-Risk youngster for $46,000. That amount, by the way, falls just short of the money Beaugay has earned in four races this season, $48,390. The filly won the Arlington Lassie, the Fashion stakes at Belmont, and the Polly Drummond stakes at Delaware Park.

A Chance for Revenge

After breezing six furlongs in 1:16 1-5 late last week, Beaugay went out again Tuesday and under stout restraint stepped a half mile in :48 1-5 over a slow track to convince Trainer Tom Smith she is ready for the Princess Pat.

The arch rival of Beaugay in the Lassie, which was worth $35,900, was Col. C. V. Whitney's Enfilade, which set the early pace and stayed right in there with the Maine Chance filly until the final sixteenth where she tired slightly and wound up beaten a length and a quarter. Enfilade is ready for the Princess Pat. She rattled off a half in :48 on a muddy course Monday morning and went five furlongs in 1:02, a most impressive move.

Sirde Wins Feature

The $5,000 Fulminate handicap, yesterday's principal offering for a crowd of 16,000 went to Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Sirde, a black 4 year old which had been beaten seven times in eight starts this season. Jockey Otto Grohs brought him in a length and a half in front of Walmac farm's Old Kentuck in a six horse field. Mrs. Clyde Troutt's Take Wing was third. The winner paid $5 and ran the mile and one-eighth in 1:51.

There was a dead heat for first in the fifth race as J. K. Houssels' To Wit, the favorite, and Herbert M. Woolf's Leavenworth crossed the line together. Al Bodlou was up on To Wit, which paid $2.80, and Willie Bailey rode Leavenworth, at $4.20.

The daily double races went to J. H. Rouse's Sugar Beet [$18.60] and Cameron and Plante's Havana Lad [$9.20] and was worth $147.20.

The mutuel handle for the day was $1,169,227.

Call for Musicians

MUSICIANS who wish to join the College All-Star band, which will appear in Soldiers' field the night of the All-Star game, Aug. 30, are asked to communicate with Ray Dvorak, director of bands at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis.

Harry Hillman, Dartmouth Track Coach, Dies at 64

Hanover, N. H., Aug. 9 (AP)—Harry L. Hillman, 64, Dartmouth track coach for the last 35 years, died today at Dick's House, the college infirmary, after suffering a coronary thrombosis two days ago.

Born in Brooklyn, Hillman was one of the nation's greatest track athletes during his youth. He was a member of three United States Olympic teams and was a triple champion in the 200 and 400 meter hurdles and the 400 meters run at the 1904 games at St. Louis.

After entering the coaching ranks here in 1910, Hillman developed many intercollegiate champions, including Earl Tomson, who won an Olympic hurdles title for Canada in 1920 at Antwerp.

Hillman served on the coaching staff of the 1924, 1928, and 1932 United States Olympic teams and was trainer for the 1935 American Davis Cup tennis team. In addition to his coaching berth, he held the rank of professor in Dartmouth's physical education department.

He is survived by his widow, Hazel Quantin Hillman, a son, Captain Harold Q. Hillman of the army air forces, and a daughter, Madeleine Hillman, a WAVE stationed at Jacksonville, Fla.

Capt. Hillman, holder of the air medal with an oak leaf cluster, recently was released from a German prison camp by the 3d army.

HARTNETT QUITS JOB AS MANAGER AT JERSEY CITY

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 9 (AP)—Charles Leo [Gabby] Hartnett stepped down today as manager of the Jersey City Giants of the International league and was replaced by Russell Carl Wein, 29, an infielder.

Confirmation of the change was made tonight by Charles Stoneham, vice president and secretary of the team which has skidded into the second division after leading the league July 4.

"Gabby just walked in and said 'I'm quitting.'" said Stoneham in describing the move as a complete surprise.

Club officials said Hartnett, who joined Jersey City as manager in 1943 after a distinguished major league career, including three seasons as manager of the Chicago Cubs, flew back to Jersey City tonight.

PANTHERS GET CHICAGO BEARS' BACK FIELD ACE

He'll Join New Club When War Ends

Cleveland, O., Aug. 9 [Special]—Robert J. [Bob] Steuber, rated one of the best all-around half backs middle west football has produced in the last decade, will play with the Cleveland club of the All-America conference after the war. This announcement was made today by John L. Brickels, acting general manager in the absence of Lt. Paul Brown.

Steuber, whose home is in Glendale, Mo., is an aviation cadet stationed in Pensacola, Fla. After his graduation from the University of Missouri, where he was recognized as all-America caliber three successive years, Steuber joined the Chicago Bears and played a few games with the Chicago club before reporting for service with the navy. The Bears, it is reported, had counted on him to rejoin the team after the war.

Helps Win '43 All-Star Game

Steuber was a member of the 1943 All-Star squad. His 50 yard return of a punt gave the All-Stars the first touchdown in their ultimate 27 to 7 victory over the Washington Redskins. Since joining the navy he has played with DePauw university, Ottumwa [Ia.] naval air station, and Iowa Pre-Flight. He is 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 205 pounds. He was a member of the baseball and track squads, as well as the football team, in his undergraduate days at Missouri.

Steuber was an end his first season with Missouri, but Coach Don Faurot moved him to left half back in 1941. His brilliant running and passing were mainly responsible for Missouri's success in winning the Big Six conference title that fall and again in 1942.

Joins Array of Stars

In Paul Brown's system Steuber probably will be used at right half back, the position he played with the Bears.

Acquisition of Steuber gives the Cleveland All-America back field another nationally prominent name to add to a list which already includes Otto Graham of Northwestern, Eddie Prokop of Georgia Tech, Gene Fekete of Ohio State, and Dippy Evans and Creighton Miller of Notre Dame.

BATTLE OF GREENBACKS?

Signing of Steuber by the aggressive Cleveland Panthers provides the first incident between the All-America conference and the National Football league and perhaps presages others to come.

At its meeting in Chicago last April the All-America's overture to the National league for a coöperative agreement was spurned. The All-America requested a meeting among representatives of the two leagues to work out problems, such as negotiating rights to players, but received no encouragement.

Transfer to Coaching Roles

Steuber is the first active player on National league rolls to make the leap to the All-America, tho the Miami All-Americas have signed two National leaguers as assistant coaches. These are Ensign Hampton Pool, Chicago Bears' end, and Lt. [j. g.] Jim Poole of the New York Giants, also a wingman. They will assist Lt. Comdr. Jack Meagher, Miami head coach, and probably will be part time players—now that the die is cast between the rival organizations.

The All-America has announced the signing of several college stars who previously had been selected by National league teams, but never have played professional football because of being in military service. Among these is Angelo Bertelli of Notre Dame, Boston's top 1944 choice, who has agreed to play with the Los Angeles team operated jointly by Don Ameche and Christy Walsh.

Comdr. Larkin of C. Y. O. Gets Leave After 4 Years

Lt. Comdr. William F. Larkin, executive director of the Catholic Youth organization, will return to Chicago today on leave after spending four years in the service, the last two in the Pacific.

BY WILFRID SMITH

Nick Suseoff, who played end three years for Washington State and was a member of the 1943 All-Star football team which defeated the Washington Redskins, heads the group of linemen added to the 1945 squad today. With a few exceptions, this completes the group of collegians which will oppose the Green Bay Packers in Soldiers' field Aug. 30 in the 12th game of the series sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

Other newcomers, who are scheduled to report Sunday at Northwestern university, are John Karmazin, Wake Forest end; Denver Crawford, Tennessee tackle, and Carl Buda, Tulsa; Bob Ivory, Detroit; Joe Pawlowski, Illinois, and Steve Enich, Marquette, guards.

Scores in East-West Game

Suseoff, 24, weighs 215 pounds, is a powerful defensive end and also excels as a pass catcher. One of his outstanding feats was scoring on a 50 yard pass in the 1943 East-West game in San Francisco. Nick's home is in Los Angeles, where he attended Roosevelt High school. For the last two years he has been in the army air corps and now is stationed at Merced, Cal.

Karmazin also has been in military service since Jan. 29, 1943 and is stationed at Drew field, Fla. He played end for one year at Wake Forest.

Crawford, 24, played three years at Kingsport, Tenn., High school before matriculating at the state university in Knoxville. He was in a reserve classification during the 1942 football season which was climaxed by Tennessee's victory over Tulsa in the Sugar bowl game. Crawford blocked a punt by Glenn Dobbs in that game and scored a safety. This, quite naturally, was his greatest thrill in athletics. He now is stationed at Fort Worth, Tex.

Ivory attended Catholic High school in Detroit and then enrolled at the University of Detroit where he played guard for one season. He is 21, weighs 202 pounds, and is 5 feet 11 inches tall. He has been in the army air force since June 21, 1943, and is stationed at Drew field. He was a member of the 3d air force eleven last year.

On Illinois Squad Three Years

Pawlowski, a veteran of three years of competition as a guard on the University of Illinois team, played 60 minutes of the 1942 Illinois-Minnesota game which the Illini won. He entered the army in July, 1943, and is stationed at Fort Benning, Ga.

Buda has been a regular guard on the Tulsa team for three years and his value to Coach Henry Frnka's eleven is indicated by the fact he played 55 minutes in the Sugar bowl game in 1946 and duplicated the performance in the Orange bowl game last Jan. 1.

Bernie Bierman of Minnesota, head coach of the All-Star squad, will meet with the assistant coaches tomorrow. They are Howie Odell, Yale; Jim Lookabaugh, Oklahoma A. & M.; Ray Eliot, Illinois, and Jeff Cravath, Southern California. The players report Sunday and will proceed immediately with their first drill.

LATSON, WARD HEAD AMATEUR CARD TONIGHT

Fred Latson, St. Louis sectional Golden Gloves featherweight champion, who defeated Jackie Boyd, 1945 Chicagoland Golden Gloves flyweight title holder in his last Chicago appearance, will meet James Ward of Chicago in a five round amateur bout tonight in Madison-Cicero outdoor arena, 4820 Madison st. John Gulley, St. Louis light heavyweight, is paired with Sammy Davis, Chicago, in a three round secondary feature.

DYKES TO PAY $25 FOR RUN-IN WITH UMPIRES

James Dykes, White Sox manager, yesterday received notice that he was indebted to the American league office to the extent of $25. This amount is payable immediately to President Will Harridge as the result of Dykes' dispute with the umpires in Comiskey park last Monday.

New York, Aug. 9 (AP)—Leo Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and Joseph Moore, 50, a special patrolman in the club's baseball park, were held for grand jury action today following a court hearing on charges of assaulting a spectator last June 9.

Christian testified that some one said Durocher wanted to see him behind the dugout at the conclusion of the game. He said when he appeared Moore pushed him thru an iron gate into an enclosed area and that Durocher appeared some 10 minutes later.

EARLY ABOLITION OF WLB IS URGED BY AFL COUNCIL

Restoration of Bargain Rights Demanded

BY GEORGE HARTMANN

Abolishment of the national war labor board "as soon as possible after the war ends," and restoration of free collective bargaining between employer and employe were asked by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor yesterday.

The council, now in summer session in the Drake hotel, also instructed William Green, president, to present to President Truman the AFL's program for adjustment of the little steel formula and its demand that the government end "without further delay" the wage freeze of the NWLB, "which is jeopardizing the well being of the entire nation."

Hope for Early Action

"The NWLB is now entering its final phase," said the council. "When peace returns there will no longer be any reason or justification for its continued existence. War time wage control by government will necessarily give way to free collective bargaining in peace time. The AFL hopes that happy event is not far distant.

"But in the meantime, the NWLB has an immediate and imperative duty to perform. Our nation must be spared the shock of sudden transition from a war time to a peace time economy. Interim adjustments of the government's wage policy can and should be made right now to facilitate the reconversion process, prevent serious impairment of living standards, and provide the high and steady flow of purchasing power without which post-war production cannot find a market."

Seek 15 Per Cent Boost

In its request for adjustment of the Little Steel formula, which puts a 15 per cent lid on pay increases above the levels prevailing Jan. 1, 1941, the AFL board asked that basic wage rates be brought back into equitable relationship with increased living costs.

"The minimum adjustment in wage rates that would compensate the nation's workers for the loss of purchasing power that has resulted from higher prices is an additional 15 per cent," the council stated. "Labor asks and demands that such an adjustment be made now for the further reason that loss of overtime and incentive bonuses together with down grading have caused an alarming shrinkage in take-home pay."

The council also will ask that free collective bargaining be restored to permit employers to grant pay increases to their employes, without submitting such increases to the WLB for approval, if they certify that the wage advances will not increase the price of their product.

Shun World Organization

Green, a member of the executive council of the International Federation of Trade unions, announced that the AFL board had forbidden him to attend a meeting of the IFTU council in London, Sept. 3. This was done, he said, because leaders of the IFTU, including Walter Citrine and Walter Schevenels of the British Trade Union congress, are actively engaged with the soviet trade union movement and the Congress of Industrial Organizations in forming the new World Federation of Trade unions.

The AFL has refused to take part in the WFTU because of soviet and CIO participation, asserting that the Russian unions are not "free" in a trade union sense and that the CIO is a "dual organization."

LAWYER BLASTS OPA'S 'RUINOUS' PENAL SYSTEM

Stores Shut for 'Not Filling Out Form'

Negaunee, Mich., Aug 9 [Special]—A plea for action by congressmen to stop the office of price administration's "ruinous practice" of suspending businesses for inadvertent violations was disclosed today to have been made by Atty. Michael F. Defant, a prominent upper Michigan Democrat.

In a letter to Rep. Hook [D., Mich.], now at his home in Ironwood, Defant declared the OPA had shown itself to be "vindictive" and with a "narrow burocratic perspective." Copies of the letter were sent to Sen. Vandenberg and Sen. Ferguson of Michigan.

Defant, former chairman of the Marquette county Democratic committee, recited the cases of three businesses he had represented in OPA hearings in which they were ordered suspended for periods of 15 to 20 days and said he had decided that "out of self respect I will no longer represent any one before that agency."

No Criminal Intent

"I believe pressure should be brought to bear on the OPA," he wrote to the congressmen, "to force that agency to eliminate the practice of suspending small business men for violations that do not involve deliberate criminal intent and which arise out of failure of the OPA to efficiently and promptly carry out its function.

"Suspension orders should not be issued in cases which involve the failure of business men to fill out a form. . . .

"The ruinous practice of suspending American citizens from carrying on their business for violations which do not involve criminal intent is so foreign to our American concept of justice that it frightens one merely to think of it."

Stores Ordered Closed

The three cases were those of the Suess Markets in Negaunee and nearby Gwinn, which has been ordered to close both its stores for 20 days, and the Holmgren Motor company and the Safety Super-Service, whose suspensions for 15 days were ordered about a year ago. In none of the cases, Defant said, was there any element of wilful intent to violate OPA rules.

The Suess Markets ran behind in their ration account early this year, Defant related, because of moving items on and off ration lists and a refrigerator breakdown. The owner, Daniel Suess, was ordered to close shop, the attorney said, "when he dared to raise his head and make a protest to what appeared to him to be an injustice."

The Holmgren Motor company's case, he said, was "one of the more silly acts of the OPA." Thru the negligence of boys working in the garage, unindorsed gasoline stamps were taken. As a penalty, the OPA took away stamps for 235 gallons of gasoline, then petitioned for a suspension order based partly on the charge that the garage was short those stamps.

Strayed

Buck, a fox terrier veteran of 26 missions over Germany, sniffed a friendly "Hello" to workers at the Chicago airport yesterday when he had a brief stopover en route to catch up with his outfit, the crew of an B-24 bomber known as the Monster now at Sioux Falls, S. D.

Buck got separated from his friends during a refueling stop at Philadelphia, Pa., on July 23. The dog flew over the Atlantic last September as a 6 week old pup traveling in the gas mask pouch of his owner, T/Sgt. E. A. Aichroth. He was considered the luck of the Monster.

It was his collar tag—"Frank Buck—Bring 'Em Back Alive. Crew KJ-23"—that brought about his restoration to his owners when he was found in Philadelphia. When he rode in here yesterday, a paper stapled to his crate also imparted a few remarks to the public. It read in part: "I am GI Frank Buck, Bring 'Em Back Alive. Give me a drink. I like fire plugs. . . . I like to be loved. . . . I am not glass, but please handle me with care. . . . I don't like to be in this box unless absolutely necessary. That's for sure. . . . Signed, Bucky."

9:01 A. M.: 'SOAP'! 9:15 A. M.: A RIOT BY 1,000 WOMEN

Miami, Fla., Aug. 9 (AP)—Nearly 1,000 housewives milled and tussled in a wild elbow-jabbing scramble for soap in a Miami grocery today.

By 9:05 the word had spread like wildfire. "Soap! And lots of it!"

Housewives and laundresses came a-running. By 9:15 a puffing, heave-hauling throng that would have shamed a tug-of-war team was jamming the store.

One woman fainted. Another had to be carried out of the crowd—but not until she had her soap.

"I'll never sell soap that way again," said C. D. Gardner, assistant manager of the chain store system.

"And our stock," he added ruefully, "Well, it's torn and broken—suds and soap chips all over—just a mess."

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passage with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

MAYWOOD TO GET CHICAGO WATER LATE IN AUGUST

Maywood will begin receiving its entire water supply from Chicago about Aug. 20, Public Works Commissioner Hewitt said yesterday, after completed installation of 15,000 feet of 36 inch pipe from the Springfield av. pumping station. The project cost approximately $350,000, of which the federal government contributed $190,000. Original estimate of the cost was $475,000. The pipes were laid from the northwest side, which has larger mains and a smaller population, instead of from the nearer Mayfair av. pumping station, to avoid jeopardizing the water supply on the west side. From now until Aug. 20, Hewitt said, engineers will be busy testing and sterilizing every foot of the new pipe line.

TRUMAN GIVES WPB PROGRAM OF CONVERSION

Would Relax Curbs 'Soon as Possible'

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9 (AP)—President Truman today called for removal of war time production controls as soon as possible to speed development of a healthy peace time economy. He made clear, however, that the time had not come when American business men can be freed of all restrictions.

Julius A. Krug

In a letter to Chairman Krug of the war production board, Mr. Truman outlined a five point program for orderly conversion of industry, tho leaving open to question a settlement of the sharp dispute between WPB and the office of price administration over removal of war controls.

Krug and Bowles Confer

Krug and Price Administrator Bowles conferred together with Mr. Truman shortly before he released his letter. Presumably they discussed the differences which arose when WPB proposed to ease controls on clothing production and OPA objected. Allocation of scarce materials became the issue, which OPA said was much broader than jeopardizing its clothing price rollback plan and involved the stabilization program.

Writing that WPB should play an important part in reconversion, Truman said he and War Mobilizer Snyder were agreed the agency could make a "great contribution" and that its work was not done. Some WPB officials had taken the position all authority for specific steps back to peace time production rested with the office of war mobilization and reconversion.

Seeks Increased Output

The President requested that WPB follow this program.

1. A vigorous drive to expand production of materials in short supply to meet both military and civilian requirements.

2. Limitations of manufacture of products requiring scarce material.

3. Broad and effective control of materials stockpiles to prevent "speculative hoarding" that would "endanger our stabilization program."

4. Provision of priority assistance to break production bottlenecks that might impede reconversion.

5. Allocation of scarce materials for lower priced consumer goods essential "to the continued success of the stabilization program."

"Every opportunity must be given to private business to exercise its ingenuity and forcefulness in speeding resumption of civilian production, subject to war needs," said Truman. But to achieve unprecedented civilian production, he said, it was necessary that WPB "continue for the present some of the effective measures it adopted to achieve unprecedented war production."

Both Sides Get Backing

This had a direct bearing on the dispute as to whether WPB may lift curbs on materials when OPA believes they must be retained to help control the cost of living. The President said controls should be lifted "as soon as they are no longer needed," but that there must be continued allocation of scarce materials when "essential to the stabilization program."

Apparently WPB gained the right to determine when a material no longer is in scarce supply, but OPA could point to Mr. Truman's emphasis on the stabilization program as supporting its cost of living stand.

The instruction to provide priorities assistance to crack bottlenecks left in doubt the extent this measure may be used. WPB already has granted a vast amount of such assistance for machine tools and other equipment, particularly in the case of the automobile industry.

However, there has been virtually no assistance for obtaining materials, mainly because WPB considered that function outside its province. With the blessing of Mr. Truman, it may undertake to provide such aid.

TRUCK OWNERS, UNIONS FAIL TO AGREE ON RAISES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9 [Special]—Officials of the Cartage Exchange of Chicago and of the Illinois Motor Truck Operators association met with officials of two Chicago truck drivers' unions before the national war labor board today in an attempt to agree on further wage increases for 15,000 Chicago truck drivers if the "in lieu of theory" is revised, William B. Crawford, attorney for the exchange, announced. The "in lieu of theory" permits increases of 6 cents an hour instead of overtime.

The unions and truckers could not agree, but the two associations decided to notify their membership to immediately pay an 8 cent hourly increase granted by WLB to the drivers, June 13, and to sign a contract with both unions, Crawford said.

WPB Civilian Help Termed Chiefly Advice

The war production board is withdrawing positive assistance from all except military and military-supporting production, and offering to reconverting industries chiefly advice on the few remaining conservation of materials orders, Paul A. Jenkins, WPB deputy regional director, told a Chicago Association of Commerce war problems school in the Palmer House yesterday. The board will continue to help break bottlenecks that might cause severe and unusual hardships, he said.

The Chicago area today is the nation's preëminent war production center and probably will retain this position until the defeat of Japan, he asserted.

Materials Remain Short

Such cutbacks as have been made do not necessarily make more materials available for civilian production, he said. It often takes weeks for order cancellations to be passed down thru the chain of subcontractors to suppliers of materials.

Almost half the reductions to date have been in aircraft, releasing large quantities of aluminum and manganese but little steel and other materials fundamental to reconversion.

The nature and extent of future cutbacks will depend upon how much material can be salvaged from the European war theater, how soon the redeployment of materials to the Pacific can be accomplished, and how much of a battle the Japanese wage, Jenkins said.

Need War Workers

News of the atomic bomb and Russia's entry into the Jap war mean that more persons will leave war jobs for work with a post-war future, he said. Yet to meet essential production schedules Chicago war plants and the railroads need 20,000 more workers.

James M. McConnell, manager of the WPB district priorities department, said general and emergency priority assistance is available for conversion problems between now and Jan. 1.

GLASS COMPANY ISSUE TO START OKLAHOMA UNIT

The Brockway [Pa.] Glass company yesterday registered 10,000 shares of 5 per cent $50 par cumulative preferred stock. Proceeds would be used to establish a plant in Muskogee, Okla. Present plants are in Brockway and Crenshaw, Pa.

Solar Manufacturing company preferred stockholders authorized the issuance of 1½ million dollars of 5 per cent sinking fund debentures, due 1960, with nondetachable stock purchase warrants. The issue will be underwritten by Van Alstyne, Noel & Co., and proceeds used to retire mortgages on plants in Chicago and North Bergen, N. J., and to provide additional working capital.

Halsey, Stuart & Co. offered $4,200,000 of Kings County Lighting company first mortgage bonds, 3¼ per cent series, at 102.41 and interest to retire a loan.

SENIOR CHARGES REDUCED

Please tell me what are the principal reasons for the increase in net income reported by Electric Power and Light corporation.—L. S.

An important factor is a reduction in Electric Power and Light subsidiaries' interest and preferred dividend requirements as a result of large scale refinancing and retirements. This was only partly reflected in the 1944 earnings. Other causes included a rise in operating revenues and reduced allowances for depreciation and depletion.

Despite an increase in subsidiaries' outstanding debt last year from $178,630,000 to $214,297,000, the annual charges were reduced from $9,230,000 to $6,601,000. The average annual interest rate is now 3.08 per cent, compared with 5.22 in 1943. Yearly dividend requirements on publicly held subsidiary preferred stocks were cut from $5,795,000 to $2,136,000. Utah Power and Light is excluded in these comparisons.

The full amount of the $6,288,000 combined savings in prior charges cannot be carried thru to net income because of federal taxes. The parent company's consolidated net income last year was $9,200,616, or $11.96 a share, on the combined $7 and $6 [first] preferred stocks, compared with $6,335,303, or $8.23 a preferred share, in 1943. In the 12 months ended last March, reflecting a larger proportion of the savings, the net income was $10,681,211, compared with $5,890,322. Undeclared cumulative dividends as of July 1 totaled $79.22 a share on the $7 preferred and $67.90 on the $6.

ANDERSON SEEKS END OF CATTLE SUBSIDY IN MOVE FOR MORE BEEF

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Anderson said today he is trying to work out with cattle producers an agreement to drop subsidies in an effort to increase beef production. He reported his efforts to President Truman and told reporters the American National Live Stock association is polling its members on the plan.

If the cattlemen approve, subsidies would end July 1, 1946, Anderson said, adding:

"And I think we would have more beef by next winter in anticipation of that."

The government now pays 400 million dollars a year in subsidies to maintain beef prices. Anderson said he had proposed to the cattlemen that half the subsidy be absorbed by an increase in retail prices and the other half by reducing the cattle prices.

BURNS RESIGNS AS NEWSPAPER CHIEF FOR WLB

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9 (AP)—Resignation of Robert K. Burns of Chicago as chairman of the daily newspaper printing and publishing commission of the war labor board was announced today. Frederick S. Deibler, vice chairman of the commission since its establishment March 1, 1943, was named successor. Deibler is professor emeritus of economics at Northwestern university, where he taught from 1904 to 1942.

Justice William L. Knouse of the Colorado Supreme court and a public member of the 9th regional WLB at Denver, has been named a public member of the commission to fill the vacancy. The position of vice chairman was left vacant. The commission has jurisdiction over all voluntary wage adjustment cases and dispute cases involving daily newspaper printing. Its office is in Chicago.

OPA Clothing Critics Draw Bowles' Fire

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9 (AP)—Price Administrator Bowles took issue today with critics of the government's textile and clothing program, particularly those in the industry.

He made public a letter to Curt Forstmann, a member of the OPA woolen and worsted industry advisory committee, in which he said:

"I am sure that if you were to spend the amount of time and effort in making this program work as you have spent in trying to compel its abandonment your objectives could be accomplished much more successfully at a much earlier date and you would be making a much greater contribution to the national welfare.

Termed Threat to Program

"I am reluctantly driven to the conclusion that some members of your industry have failed to comprehend the importance of stabilizing prices, particularly clothing prices which at this time represent the greatest threat to the entire stabilization program."

Bowles said Forstmann complained that OPA ignored the advisory committee recommendations for revoking the woolen maximum average price plan. This is an OPA program designed to return clothing prices to the 1943 average. The advisory committee insists the plan is unnecessary.

Refers to Rise in Prices

"Our figures show that there has been a steady rise in the per yard prices of woolen and worsted fabrics since 1941," Bowles said. "While, of course, MPR [maximum price regulation] 163 has prevented a rise beyond 1942 levels in style numbers made at that time, our records show that widespread upgrading has taken place in the pricing of similar, comparable, and new fabrics."

Bowles said the committee's suggestion that the order be revoked "is not the sort of advice that we can follow consistently with our responsibilities especially where you neglect, at the same time, to give us an idea of a better kind of regulation."

KAISER'S STEEL PLANS FOR WEST ARE REAFFIRMED

Oakland, Cal., Aug. 9 (AP)—Henry J. Kaiser, west coast industrialist, today said the decision of United States Steel corporation to abandon its move to acquire the Geneva steel plant near Provo, Utah, and set up cold reduction mills at Pittsburgh, Cal., will not affect his plans to establish an "independent" western steel industry.

Kaiser said the Pittsburgh expansion "will not in the least lessen our drive to establish a permanent, independent, integrated western steel industry."

RFC Ready to Sell

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9 (AP)—Officials of the Reconstruction Finance corporation today said they "still stand ready" to negotiate with anybody who wants to make an offer for the RFC owned steel plant at Geneva. They said they have not received a definite offer from either Henry J. Kaiser or Colorado Fuel and Iron, but both have said they will make offers and "we expect these offers pretty soon."

WHEELER ASKS INQUIRY OF RFC LOANS TO B. & O.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9 (AP)—Chairman Wheeler [D., Mont.] of the senate interstate commerce committee, in a letter to the federal loan agency, has suggested a "thoro investigation" of loans made by the Reconstruction Finance corporation to the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, it was learned today.

The letter, dated July 28, was addressed to John W. Snyder as federal loan administrator. It was turned over to Charles B. Henderson, acting administrator, who said today that he is preparing a reply.

Wheeler said he had been told that the RFC during the last 12 years loaned more than 85 million dollars to the B. & O. and "at least 82 million of these loans are unpaid today."

STOCK MARKET PRICES RISE ON BIGGER VOLUME

Truman's Program Factor in Gain

New York, Aug. 9 (AP)—Wall st. interpreted Russia's entry into the Pacific war as bullish today and stock market prices rose fractions to more than 4 points, with about half the large gains made in a late rally.

Steels and motors led the advance but sizable gains also were made by rails, rubbers, utilities, metals, aircrafts, and specialties. Volume rose to 1,460,000 shares from 700,000 Wednesday and was the largest in more than three weeks.

Truman Plan Has Effect

The Russian action was believed to mean a shorter war, which would result in business and industry facing post-war problems sooner than previously had been expected. President Truman softened this possibility, however, when he presented a five point plan designed to speed reconversion and recommended that controls be lifted as soon as possible.

Of 952 issues traded, 684 advanced, 144 declined, and 124 closed unchanged. The Associated Press 60 stock average rose 1.3 points to 65.3.

BOND PRICES RISE

New York, Aug. 9 (AP)—Medium priced railroad issues led the bond market higher today after an early slump. The early declines of fractions to about a point in some of the popular issues were converted into gains of as much before the end of the first hour and as the session progressed individual favorites extended the rise to more than 2 points.

CHICAGO LIST GAINS

Prices closed higher and turnover increased to 26,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Volume leaders with gains up to ½ point included Peabody Coal, Radio, Admiral, and Swift. Commonwealth Edison was unchanged.

MEAT ANIMAL SUPPLY NEARS THURSDAY LOW

Receipts at the Chicago stock yards yesterday were among the smallest recorded on a Thursday. Only 2,900 cattle arrived, the fewest for that day of the week since June, 1942, and sold quickly at mostly steady to strong prices, with $17.90 per hundred pounds the top.

Hog arrivals totaled only 4,500, including shipments direct to packers, the smallest Thursday volume in many years. Twenty of the largest stock yards, including Chicago, received only 26,000 hogs, less than the market here alone required. Prices remained firm at ceilings.

The run of 2,000 sheep and lambs was the second smallest since June, 1944. The market, still unsettled by the recent switching of federal subsidy payments from packers directly to farmers, averaged about steady. Some lambs, however, sold as much as 25 cents higher.

VETS GET FIRST CALL ON EXCESS PLANES, PARTS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9 (AP)—War veterans received No. 1 priority today for the purchase of airplanes and parts from government surpluses in a new surplus property board regulation, effective immediately. Aircraft was excepted in an earlier order permitting veterans to buy material and equipment to set themselves up in business.

The board stipulated that a plane so purchased must be used essentially for business, such as shuttle transportation, flying school, or special licensed transport service, not for personal or private purposes. The Smaller War Plants' corporation will handle the sales.

Sanitary Board Authorizes Construction Bond Issue

The sanitary board yesterday authorized sale of 2 million dollars of construction bonds to the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, which bid par plus a premium of $15,606 on 1¾ per cent bonds, due 1965. Each year $100,000 will become optional for retirement. Proceeds will be used for construction work in the sanitary district within the next year.

Money in Circulation Up 139 Millions in Week

First Air Conditioned Trolley Coach to Get Test in Atlanta

An air conditioned trolley coach—the first ever built for local city transportation—will be delivered soon to the Georgia Power company for use in Atlanta, Ga., Frank L. Murphy, chief engineer of Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company, said yesterday. Future exploitation will depend on its success in experimental operation there.

Pullman-Standard is building the test coach at its plant in Worcester, Mass. The coach was ordered in June, 1944, but construction was not possible until the war production board lifted restrictions on use of materials. It is one of 323 trackless trolley cars authorized by the WPB to be built in 1945.

Evidence of Determination

"This air conditioned coach is evidence of the determination of the transit industry, which carries more people than any other form of transportation, to hold its increased business after the war by offering new conveniences and comforts," said Murphy.

"Tho the air conditioning equipment weighs some 1,500 pounds, installed, the test model is similar in appearance to the familiar trackless trolleys operating in 43 cities in 25 states.

"The Atlanta experiment, which should provide valuable data on installation, operating, and maintenance costs of air conditioning, as well as public reaction to the innovation, will be watched with interest by the entire industry."

Large Capacity Required

The cooling and dehumidifying capacity on the coach will about equal that on the standard railroad car and will be about twice that on buses in intercity service. The large capacity will be required because of the large number of passengers carried and the necessity for opening and closing doors frequently in local operation.

The conditioned air will be distributed thru ducts passing down both sides of the coach from the ceiling. The equipment will provide 800 cubic feet of outside air per minute for ventilation and the fans will circulate 2,200 cubic feet of cooled dry air per minute also. The equipment was made by the Carrier corportation, Syracuse, N. Y.

There were 3,555 trackless trolleys in operation in the country in 1944, compared with 578 in 1935. Chicago has a large number.

British Report Big War Time Imports Rise

LONDON, Aug. 9 (AP)—The board of trade tonight reported British imports exclusive of munitions aggregated $5,224,788,000 in 1944 compared with $4,930,440,000 in 1943 and $3,678,036,000 in 1938.

Disclosing for the first time details of war time imports, the board said receipts of munitions rose from 836 million dollars in 1942 to 2 billion 608 millions in 1943 and 4 billion 220 millions in 1944.

1944 Exports Lower

Britain's 1944 exports, previously announced, were only 1 billion 32 millions, or about 54 per cent of pre-war volume. Reëxports of imported merchandise totaled only $29,444,000 in 1944, compared with the 1938 total of $246,100,000.

Retained imports of food, drink, and tobacco, declined in 1941 and 1942 to less than three-quarters, by volume, of 1938 figures and in the two succeeding years were only slightly higher.

To make the most of short shipping space, Britain reduced imports of bulky commodities such as animal feed, timber, iron ore, and wood pulp, substituted more finished goods for raw materials, and eliminated water from normal imports thru taking dried eggs instead of fresh eggs and concentrated fruit juice instead of fresh fruit.

United States Shipments Mount

The value of imports from the United States represented two-fifths of all imports of nonmunitions in 1943 and 1944 compared with one-eighth in 1938. The increase in United States shipments began immediately after war started, the board said, "and was not solely the result of lend-lease tho the bulk of the imports in the later war years came under that arrangement."

Value of these nonmunitions from the United States in 1944 was $2,130,368,000, compared with $2,140,288,000 in 1943, $1,410,248,000 in 1942, and $471,920,000 in 1938.

MAYOR ORDERS BONDS SOLD FOR SECOND AIRPORT

Tells Upham Market Is Favorable

Mayor Kelly's announced determination to obtain a second major airport for Chicago was given substance yesterday when he sent a memorandum to City Controler Upham advising immediate issuance and sale of 15 million dollars in airport bonds approved by the voters June 4.

The mayor's memorandum told Upham that, from a seller's viewpoint, the bond market now is extremely favorable, and that he believed the entire issue, bearing 1½ per cent interest, could be sold at a premium.

Our Transport to Grow

Other cities are selling airport bonds, the mayor said, and from all standards they are good investments. Air traffic, he pointed out, will grow by leaps and bounds in the post-war world; its importance as a means of passenger and freight transportation will increase rapidly.

"It seems certain," the mayor said, "that the federal government will provide substantial financial aid in the establishment of new airports thruout the country. It will be motivated, not only by the importance of air transportation, but by the added national security which a widespread system of airports will insure."

Speedy Action Urged

"If Chicago can show the federal government that it has 15 million dollars in cash all ready, it will be in an advantageous position as far as getting assistance quickly is concerned," Mayor Kelly added.

It will also be desirable, he continued, to have the funds available to an airport committee, to be approved by the city council Aug. 21, when the committee bargains for a site for the new port.

"The sooner we can get started building a new port, the sooner we can expect federal aid," he said.

Slusser had been in jail since Saturday on complaint of his wife, Alice, 24, of Riverdale, who has a divorce suit pending, that he was $140 in arrears on temporary alimony of $20 a week for the support of her and their year old son, Dennis. The suit charges desertion.

When Slusser's attorney, Thomas F. Fitzgerald, appeared before Judge Edwin A. Robson in Superior court and told the judge his client's services were essential in the transportation emergency, Judge Robson released Slusser on his own recognizance upon his promise to pay up the alimony arrears.
